LLOYD GEORGE ASKS SANITY IN DEALINGS WITH BERLIN

Premier Replies To Savage Attack By Bottomly

A BIG PROBLEM

Explains Why Holland Was Not Forced To Give Up Kaiser

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 18.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Horatio Bottomly moved an amendment to the Address, in which he made characteristic criticisms of the Government's conduct as regards reparations and indemnities. After a speech by Mr. Lloyd George, the amendment was rejected by 181 votes to 40.

The Prime Minister, in the course of his speech, referring to reparations, said that at the forthcoming conference he would try to get the last farthing out of Germany, but he would not advance proposals which, according to the views of experts, he knew to be impossible of fulfilment. Germany had handed over a vast quantity of raw materials, ships and coal. The Reparations Commission was examining the divergent views of the Allies and Germans regarding the value of these.

Referring to the suggestion that officials should be sent to Germany to collect customs dues, he said it was easy enough to collect paper marks there, but it was a different thing to transfer them here at the rate of 230 to the pound. Mr. Lloyd George declared that no country in the world could pay the whole cost of the war.

Alluding to Mr. Bottomly's remarks that Holland had treated the Allied contemptuously, and that the Allies had abjectly kowtowed to Holland in requesting her to pocket her scruples as regards the ex-Kaiser, the Premier said he did not think Holland would have surrendered the ex-Kaiser on the simple insistence of Great Britain and France. Both these Governments had come to the conclusion that we could not afford anything in the nature of hostile action, and that it was not worth while. It would have been undignified for a great nation, merely out of bluff to say "Unless you do this we shall do that."

The Premier added that the trial of the other war criminals would be pressed at the forthcoming conference; also the necessity for Germany to balance her accounts and improve her currency. In his opinion the mark was not so ragged as it appeared.

Sees Good Outlook For British Trade

Inter-Imperial Prospect Much Better, Says Commissioner

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 18.—An optimistic view of British trade was taken by Mr. F. G. Kellaway, head of the Department of Overseas Trade, in the course of a speech at Luton. He said that reports he received showed that the tide was turning, particularly in regard to the inter-Imperial outlook. The prospects of inter-Imperial trade were more promising, in fact, than the prospects anywhere else in the world. The Australian market had been closed for some months, but there were indications that that state of affairs would soon be changed. The same applied to Canada and South Africa. It was impossible to speak so confidently in regard to India, but there were indications that trade with India would improve.

One reason, said Mr. Kellaway, why we had lost markets was that our high cost of production was making competition impossible. That was not due to high wages, but to the fact that we did not get fair return for high wages. Great Britain had lost contracts worth ten millions sterling because exporters and merchants were unable to give a definite date of delivery, owing to strikes and threatened strikes.

Naming Of Lord Reading As Viceroy Of India Unique Honor For Jews

THE appointment of Lord Reading as Viceroy of India is the greatest imperial appointment ever conferred on a Jew since Disraeli. The post has been accepted by Lord Reading. The Earl of Reading, Lord Chief Justice of England, won fame at the bar as Rufus Isaacs. He is widely known in this country, having been engaged in diplomatic and financial missions here during the war.

SELF GOVERNMENT FOR EGYPT URGED IN MILNER REPORT

Commission Recommends Anglo-Egyptian Treaty As Safeguard

WOULD RETAIN ARMY

Says Nation Cannot Dispense With British Assistance

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 18.—The report of Lord Milner's Commission on Egypt is now issued. It recommends the immediate bestowal of self-government on Egypt, but points out that, in view of the essential British interests there, it is necessary to arrange an Anglo-Egyptian treaty, in order to secure the special position of the British representative in Egypt; also enable us to maintain a force for the protection of Imperial communications, and to ensure that Egyptian policy shall be in line with that of the British Empire.

The report further points out that Egypt is not yet in a position to dispense with British assistance. It instances the case of the Capitulations, whereby extraterritorial rights, with exemption from taxation, are granted to foreigners. Without the removal of these Capitulations, says the report, no Egyptian Government could enjoy real independence, since, despite the prosperous condition of the country, they are crippling finance, and starving essential services.

On the other hand, the removal of these restrictions, as well as the reorganisation of the Mixed Tribunals, can only be accomplished through the mediation of Great Britain, who will therefore necessarily have to secure a position in Egypt that will enable her to assure the security of the lives and property of foreigners before it can be hoped to induce the Powers to part with the privileges their nationals at present enjoy.

"GO TO YOUR HOMES AND DIE"—FAMINE VICTIMS TOLD

Relief Workers Forced By Lack Of Funds To "Pass Sentence"

DRIVE THIS WEEK

This Will Be Period Of Reprieves—If We All Give Freely

"Go back to your homes and die!"

This verdict—as terrible to those who pronounce it as to those who must yield to it—is spoken in tear choked voices ten thousand times every day in the famine districts of North China.

The judges and executioners—they are both in one—are the famine relief workers. The victims, hapless prisoners at the bar of the world's inhumanity, are guilty of no other crime than that of asking for the pittance of food that alone can save them from a terrible, lingering death.

The judges and executioners in this great tragedy hold unwilling commissions, and pronounce their gently spoken but terribly significant verdicts with a suffocating reluctance. But the verdicts are spoken and the wretched victims pass on. Parents among them pass on to their little ones and the little ones pass on to that Grizzled Guardian who, if he cannot give them food at least can give them peace.

"Go back to your homes and die, for we have no food for you today!"

And why have they no food to give?

THE REASON

Because you and I, brother, are deaf to their cry and indifferent to their supplications.

Now the question is: How long are we going to remain deaf, and when will our indifference end?

The International Famine Relief committee has designated this week, beginning today, as Famine Relief Week.

This week, then, is to be a Week of Reprieves—reprieves for some, at least, of those who have been sent home to die, provided you and I do our duty. Provided we pause a few minutes in our mad rush of business and pleasure to listen to the small weak voices that are calling to us, faintly and less faintly with the passing days, from the stricken North. Provided we rouse ourselves from an indifference which, if we do not shake it off, will brand us as brutal. Provided, in a nut shell, that we reach down into our purses and give and give and give!

From Shahahsien comes a book containing the names of those who died of starvation and exposure prior to January 15. There are 1,116 names on the list. Added to this list if the unknown total of those whose deaths the famine has hastened. The average starvation death rate in the hsiens of the Shuntefu district in cold weather was from five to seven a day. Reports to H. S. Calt in the Chengting district told how the workers in going through the villages, investigating conditions, found so many authentic records of deaths, so many dying and so many weakened by starvation that they had to harden their hearts, refuse to listen to more reports and go on with their investigations.

DEAD UNBURIED

In many towns, according to letters received by Dr. Douglas Gray of the British Legation, some villages were so impoverished and the people so weakened that the dead could not be buried properly. They were carried to the fields and covered with a little earth, not enough, the writers said, to give protection against the crows.

All workers in the Paotingfu area report similar conditions. One man wheeled his wife 100 miles to a station and finding he could get no food there, that the treasury and the grain bins were empty, started back. His wife died on the wheelbarrow. He left the body at the roadside, went on as far as he could and then hanged himself to escape the final torture of hunger.

Suicides are common throughout the districts. Relief agents hear of distress, go to the family and frequently find the father has ended his life to lessen the number of mouths to be filled.

Deaths from actual starvation do not include all the casualties. Those who have chronic and

A Prayer For The Famine Sufferers

Holy and Wise Creator of Living Beings and of All Things that do nourish life. Merciful Father of Human Spirits who know that when they love and work for those in need they are most truly, Thy Children, teach us, we humbly and earnestly beseech Thee, to look with something of Thine own Pity upon those millions of our Fellow Humans Scattered through Five Provinces of Northern China who are even now perishing in the dull pain of hunger. O God of Love, break through the crust of our selfishness and smug content. Help us to feel for these starving members of our Race until we can really count it all joy to be able to share what we possess with them. When the processes of Nature on which they depend have failed to provide them with food, may the working of Thy Spirit in our hearts cause to spring emotions and resolves which will result in supplying this lack. Give them their daily bread, even though this be taken from us who have of Thy Bounty enough and to spare.

Especially do we ask Thee to bless the Nation-wide Appeal for funds during this new week, all Methods employed, All Agencies and Workers. May the Spiritual Forces of Friendly Helpfulness and Sacrificial Service overcome the Material Destitution of that stricken Region. And grant that as those of other Nations and of other Parts of China unite in relieving this Distress there may be awakened a more vivid and vital consciousness of National Unity throughout this Country, a deepened sense of Human Brotherhood among all men. Hear us, O Lord of our Lives, and help us during the days of this week to live and act as now we pray.

QUESTION OF YAP IS AGAIN RAISED

Draft Of Japan's Mandate For Pacific Islands Received At Washington

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 19.—A telegram from New York states that the American State Department has received unofficially a draft of the mandate for the former German Islands in the North Pacific which was granted to Japan by the Peace Conference.

According to the New York Times officials state that the United States does not regard the mandate as applying to the Island of Yap, which President Wilson holds was specifically excepted by an unwritten agreement among the members of the Supreme Council, and reserved for disposal by the Communications Conference.

It is understood that the opinions of Allied representatives differ with regard to the status of Yap. Great Britain is believed to have supported the claims of Japan, whose position is said to be that she would yield to the objections of the United States with regard to Yap provided Great Britain allowed equal rights for Japanese nationals in the former German islands of the South Pacific, mandates for which have now been given to Australia and New Zealand.

The management of the Ritz Cafe has donated its new orchestra to help out. Fifty invitations remain for those who apply early. Some 550 have been received and the limit has been raised to 600.

Cable Question Involves Mandates

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

Washington, Feb. 18.—It now appears that the question of the disposal of the ex-German cables taken over by Japan has become interwoven with that of the mandates. The question will be further discussed when the Communications Conference resumes on Monday.

TURK-GREEK ISSUES TO BE TAKEN UP BY CONFERENCE

Delegates Assembling In London For Meeting Next Week

SOME HARD KNOTS

Notable Figures Will Sit In Momentous Session At British Capital

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Feb. 18.—The preparations for next week's Near Eastern Conference in London are nearing completion. The Turkish and Greek delegations arrived in London on Thursday evening.

According to the Figaro, the French Premier will cross the Channel on Sunday, accompanied by M. Berthelot of the Foreign Office, and on Monday M. Briand will have a conference with Mr. Lloyd George, Count Sforza, M. Jaspar, (Belgium) and Viscount Ishii, in order to define the Allied point of view before meeting the Turkish plenipotentiaries.

The Petit Parisien deplores the irreconcilable attitude attributed to the Kemalists, and expresses the view that matters might be arranged with the Turks if they would confine themselves to asking the Powers to give Constantinople "some air" and relax the strict control that now presses on the government of certain districts where the majority of the inhabitants are Turks. The paper fears, however, that owing to their lack of political sense, the Turks will risk their own ruin for a second time; because, if the London Conference only ends in smoke from the point of view of the Near East, it will be the Turks and not the European nations who will be the victims.

OTHER VIEWS

The Matin expresses the opinion that the first part of the London Conference, which will deal with Near Eastern affairs, is not likely to lead to any very rapid decisions. The Greeks have one advantage, the Matin says, in that they are asking merely for the execution of a treaty that has been signed, and another in the fact that they have an Army of 100,000 men in Asia Minor. The Turks are divided, and will not easily listen to reason.

The first sitting of the Conference, this paper adds, will not be concerned solely with Turkish affairs, but equally with the preparation for the discussion of the reparations problem which should take place on Wednesday next. M. Loucheur, Minister of Liberated Territories and Reparations, accompanied by technical advisers, will be in London, and also M. Barthou, Minister of War, and Marshal Foch. It is considered necessary to work out the Paris agreements in all their practical consequences before the arrival of the Germans.

GERMANS UNCHANGED

The Petit Journal writes: "The speech-making tour of Dr. von Simons, the German Foreign Minister, in the various German State capitals, shows that the present German Government retains the mentality and the same habits of duplicity which marked the old regime. The Allied representatives who are shortly to find themselves face to face with the German delegates are now well aware what they are to expect from the latter. The only way to deal with them is the application of the penalties. Despite the warmth of Dr. von Simons' language, it is not yet proved that extreme means will not be effective. There is in the 'never' of the Foreign Minister and his Government, an admixture of bluff that leaves the door open to other solutions."

Gen. Gouraud Tells Of Syria's Wealth

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Feb. 18.—Prior to his impending return to Syria, General Gouraud addressed a gathering which included such prominent persons as ex-President Poincare, Cardinal Dubois and the Grand Rabbi of France, and impressed upon them the great resources of the country which he administers, particularly in wheat, cotton and silks. He announced that M. Clementel, ex-Minister of Commerce, would shortly visit Beyrout, in order to open the Trade Fair that is to be held there.

Chinese Ratepayers Will Hold General Meeting To Interpret Electoral Rule

Association, In Letter, Still Maintains Council Misinterprets Regulation In Advisory Committee Matter

A general meeting of the Settlement's Chinese ratepayers to be called in order to determine the exact significance of the Chinese Ratepayers' Association regulations to which the Municipal Council has taken exception, is the latest development in the impasse reached over the election of the Chinese Advisory Body.

The decision to call the general meeting was arrived at yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the general committee of the Association, following receipt of the Council's last letter reaffirming its position in declining to accept the names of the five men elected. A letter setting forth this decision, and also inquiring regarding certain other objections which have been hinted, was drawn up for transmission to the Council through the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce. The general meeting of the Chinese ratepayers will be called as soon as a reply is received from the Municipal body.

The text of the letter follows:

The Chinese Ratepayers' Association.

Shanghai, Feb. 19, 1921.

Dear Sir:

We have to thank you for your kindness in sending us a copy of Mr. Liddell's letter to you of the 17th instant in connection with the election of the Chinese Advisory Committee to the Municipal Council. We shall be glad if you will convey to the Council our appreciation of its assurance that there is no desire on its part to obstruct the Committee, though the belief in the existence of such desire is entertained by large sections of the Chinese community.

STILL SEE MISCONSTRUCTION

With reference to paragraphs 2 and 3 of Mr. Liddell's letter we are of the opinion that the Council is still laboring under mistranslation or misconstruction of a document in Chinese, a language unknown to most and foreign to all of the members of the Council. We are, however, aware that further continuance of the disagreement in the translation or construction is incompatible with the interest of the Chinese community and with that of the Council, as such continuance would only leave the former in their existing grievance of total non-representation in the municipal administration and expose the latter to the widely entertained impression of its desire to obstruct the Committee. We have therefore decided to call a Chinese Ratepayers' General Meeting for an expression of their own intention when the regulation 6 was passed. It would be unreasonable to maintain that we are infallible interpreters of their intention and more so that the Councillors are such interpreters. The proper course to take would therefore be to call upon the makers of the regulation to interpret it themselves and, if their interpretation is at one with the Council, to amend it.

ASK OTHER OBJECTIONS

It is, however, important to note that the Council in its letter of January 13, vaguely hinted at one or more other objections of a nature totally undisclosed but mainly, and in its letter of the 17th instant solely, confined itself to regulation 6. If the Council does not intend to waive such one or more other objections, we shall be glad to have all its objections at one time so that we may submit, if necessary, all of them to the General Meeting for the consideration of the Chinese ratepayers. The Council will appreciate that if all its objections were not to be communicated to us altogether and in definite terms it might involve the necessity of calling more than one general meetings and would certainly tend to convince the belief that there is a desire on the part of the Council to obstruct the Committee. You may assure the Council that the sooner such belief is dispelled, the better it will please the Chinese community.

We trust that we shall have the pleasure of having an early reply from the Council.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) Chengting T. Wang, Chairman.

The Chairman,
The Chinese General Chamber of Commerce, Shanghai.

U.S. Tariff Measure Stirs Canada's Ire

(Reuter's Service)

Ottawa, Feb. 18.—The newspapers express considerable hostility at the American Senate's action in passing the Fordney Tariff Bill. They are of opinion, however, that it will probably be a blessing in disguise, and demonstrate that Canada will not be coerced into surrendering her fiscal independence.

AMERICAN REPARATION DELEGATION WITHDRAWS

Note From U.S. Explains Why Nation Can No Longer Take Part

IS TREATY ECHO

Useless To Continue Until Status Is Fixed, Says Note

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Feb. 18.—The American semi-official delegation has withdrawn from the Reparations Commission. The American Government in a Note explaining this step, declares that the decision has been taken only after long hesitation and very careful examination of the question.

It points out that, as the United States has not ratified the Peace Treaty, its representation on the Commission is anomalous, and that, as the American Government has not collaborated with the Allies in drawing up the plans for the modification of the Treaty, it is useless to maintain even a semi-official representative on the Commission which will carry out the plans.

At a Ministerial Conference on German reparations, Signor Damelio, one of the Italian delegates to the Reparations Conference, stated that Germany during the first few years would pay as to 75 percent in goods and as to 25 percent in cash, and would gradually increase the cash payments until all the payments were in cash.

DEBATE IN BAVARIA

Paris, Feb. 18.—There was a full-dress debate on Thursday in the Bavarian Diet on the attitude of the Munich Government regarding the Reparations question and the disarmament of the Militia. Herr Hackermann, Majority Socialist, asked what the Bavarian Government proposed to do with respect to the Paris decisions. He sought to show that the Militia could be disarmed without peril to the country, and remarked that the Entente had not made proposals to Berlin but given orders. He suggested that requests (for modifications of the terms) might be submitted to the Entente, and if these were not accepted, they should do everything possible to carry out the conditions in order to avoid the application of the penalties.

Deep significance is attached in Germany to Bavaria's opposition to Berlin's attitude, and the possibility of grave consequences is hinted at.

Two Sinn Feiners Are Found Guilty

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 18.—Of the five alleged Sinn Feiners who were arrested in connection with the attempt last month to set fire to 60,000 barrels of oil stored at the Vacuum Oil Company's premises at Wandsworth, two, named O'Sullivan and Moran, have now been acquitted of the charge of murder, and sentenced to eight years' penal servitude on other counts.

Argentine Turns Down Allies' Plea

(Reuter's Service)

Buenos Aires, Feb. 18.—The Argentine Government has refused the Allies' request that it should take measures to prevent Germany from exporting war-materials to Argentina, contrary to the Treaty of Versailles. The ground given for this refusal is that Argentina is not concerned with the stipulations of a Treaty between other nations.

Train Bandits Make $400,000 In Haul

(Reuter's Service)

Toledo, Feb. 18.—The police are scouring the neighborhood in search of bandits who succeeded in effecting what is believed to be the biggest mail robbery in the history of the United States. Nine bags of mails, six of which were registered mail, containing bank-notes to the value of $400,000, have disappeared.

MIXED COURT IN HEARING ON R. V. F. PETITION

Matter Of Judgment Against Old Agents May Go To British Court

There was another development in the Russian Volunteer Fleet situation yesterday when Messrs. Stirling Fessenden and C. P. Holcomb, representing the new agents and the Vladivostok director, made application in the Mixed Court that a previous judgment, given in favor of the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works be rendered null and void. The judgment was against the old agents, who are now reported to be aligned with the newly formed "Constantinople Administration," and was in respect of repairing done on vessels of the fleet. Certain ships of the fleet were ordered detained under the judgment. The claim was for Tls. 170,000.

The grounds on which the application was asked were:

1.—That there never has been due any proper service upon this defendant.

2.—That the person or persons upon whom service was made had no authority to act for defendant, nor to accept legal service on his behalf.

3.—That the person or persons who filed answer to the petition of the plaintiff herein had no authority to act for or on behalf of the defendant, and the defendant is not bound by any allegations, confessions or admissions therein contained.

The application was heard by British Assessor Blackburn and former Russian Assessor Ivanoff.

Mr. Fessenden had in court the credentials of Captain D. A. Lukhmanoff, managing director of the Vladivostok Administration, both from the Far Eastern Government and from the Chinese Ministry. He intimated to opposing counsel that his clients would pay the bills alleged to be outstanding and on refusal inquired if there were anything more behind the case than had come out in the proceedings. Opposing counsel declined to be cross-examined and Mr. Fessenden then indicated, with all due respect to the present court and meaning no reflection whatever upon it, he would take the case up in the British Court, the plaintiffs in the case being a British firm.

There will be further developments in the situation next Friday when a suit for an accounting brought against Messrs. M. A. Morducovitch and W. G. Goddard, agents for the fleet under the old regime, is scheduled to come up for hearing in the Mixed Court.

MANDARIN SAILS FOR U.S. MONDAY

First Of Four Shipping Board Ships Built Here Ready For Maiden Voyage

The steamer Mandarin, first of four built in China for the United States Shipping Board and the largest vessel ever turned out by a Chinese shipyard, will sail for America on Monday at an hour not yet announced.

Following the departure of the Mandarin the Oriental, third of the quartet of shipping board ships, all of which are sister vessels, will be launched at 2:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The Celestial, second of the group was launched last August and the work of making her ready for sea is rapidly nearing completion. The Cathay, the fourth ship, is still on the ways, but will be launched in the next several weeks. These four big ships make a stride in China's shipbuilding industry. They were built in Shanghai in the yards of the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Company.

The Mandarin eclipsed every expectation of her builders and shipping board representatives on her trial run last Monday, achieving a sea speed of 14.07 knots when her estimated speed had been 10½ knots. It is believed that a like showing will be made by the Celestial on her trials which will be held in the coming weeks.

The Mandarin goes forth on her maiden voyage under command of Captain H. Rees and Chief Engineer John Dill, who came to Shanghai from the United States to take charge of the vessel. It is understood that the Mandarin will sail direct from here to San Francisco where she will be delivered over to the Shipping Board.

CARUSO "HOLDING OWN"

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Feb. 18.—Signor Caruso is now holding his own, and resting comfortably.

The eye of the Chinese police constable who met Ong Khe-yang on East Kashing Road a day or so agone sparkled instantly with the light of recollection. So he stopped this pedestriating individual and, dropping into the easy tones of old acquaintanceship, began reminiscing. Casually swinging his hickory traffic stick, he asked Ong if the latter remembered the last time they had met—and the six occasions previous to that. It was due to a certain carelessness regarding the title to sundry chickens of which Ong became possessed, as the C.P.C. recalled it, that the meetings chanced.

Ah, yes, sighed Ong, he remembered those occasions perfectly, but that was in the dim and rapidly receding past and things were different now. These days he was an upright and conscientious citizen, engaged in the tailoring business and completely reclaimed.

Ong's statement might have scored heavily with his official acquaintance, but at that moment there was a convulsive heave to the bosom of his gown and there issued therefrom a muffled but unmistakable squawk.

We have now the picture of an enraged policeman swinging his club wildly athwart the space lately occupied by Ong, while that worthy bounds frantically toward the hinterland of the scene and a ruffled and abandoned rooster scoots up an alleyway in the near foreground.

It was a good race, but Ong's handicap at the start availed him nothing and he subsequently made his eighth appearance in the Mixed Court, where it was ordered that he be laid away for a month, after which time the poultry of the Settlement will be safe but a new menace will loom for fowls abroad.

WONG EXPLAINS

Chinese Police Sergeant 824, who was on duty along the Nanking Road at 4.15 a.m., about the time the tide of garden truck vendors sets in, told the Court how alarmed he had been when he saw motor car No. 1498 come tearing down the street. It was nothing short of a marvel, I opined, that our foremost thoroughfare hadn't taken on the semblance of an Irish stew, or a frantic streak of succotash.

Wong Ah-tsang, who happened to be piloting the machine at the time the C.P.C. took its number, submitted that the policeman was laboring under a delusion. Wong conceded it to be a pardonable delusion. But he couldn't really have been driving fast because his car wasn't a fast car. It was a sort of old car, and somewhat rusty, and all that, and it made a lot of noise when in action, thus causing people to think that it was going a great deal faster than was actually the case.

The Court debited Wong's account $10.

GROSSLY EXAGGERATED

Theft of a bicycle from the Chinese Post Office was the charge they read over to Li Ching-sung, whereupon Li explained.

"I wasn't going to steal the whole bicycle," he deposed. "I was only going to take the bell."

Li has been rather a frequent caller at the Mixed Court, yesterday's being his sixth visit, but he won't be in again for at least six months.

At The Theaters

"Blind Husbands," a seven part Universal feature, is a picture which will interest every man and woman in Shanghai. The story is full of interest and many powerful scenes are staged. The picture is very popular in America and will doubtless attract Shanghai audiences. "Blind Husbands" will open at the Apollo Theater next Thursday.

Tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday nights the Apollo is showing a special program featuring the Armistice Day Celebration of 1920 in which the funeral procession and the burial of an unknown soldier in Westminster Abbey is shown. A delightful romance, "Help Wanted-Male" with Blanch Sweet in the leading role promises to be a treat. Blanch Sweet as the rough eyed Leona flashes her risque gowns, Parisian hosiery and bank roll and—you can imagine what happens.

OLYMPIC THEATER

"Love Me," a Paramount picture featuring Dorothy Dalton, is scheduled for tonight at the Olympic Theater also a Burton Holmes travalogue, "In Australia," and "A Village Smithy" a Mack Sennett two part comedy.

VICTORIA THEATER

The popular magicians, Chefalo and Palermo, who are putting on a splendid program at the Victoria Theater, will be seen here for the last time tonight. Every one who has not seen the wizards will find it worth their while to visit the Victoria Theater tonight.

ISIS THEATER

At the Isis Theater tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday Eddie Polo, the Hercules of the screen," will be seen in "The Vanishing Dagger" a picture of adventure. The serials featured are Episode 7, "Plunged to his Doom;" Episode 8, "In Unmerciful Hands;" Episode 9, "The Lights of Liverpool." Harold Lloyd, famous comedian, with Babe Daniel and Harry Pollard will furnish any number of laughs in Haunted Spooks." It is a scream. At the matinee today, the 4th, 5th and 6th episodes of "The Vanishing Dagger" will be shown while tonight William S. Hart in "Wolf Lowry," a Western five-reel drama is scheduled and the 3rd and 4th episodes of "Pirate Gold" with George B. Seitz in the lead.

Von Simons Sees Chance For Delay

(Reuter's Service)

Darmstadt, Feb. 18.—In the course of a conference with the Hessian Government, Dr. von Simons emphasised that failure of the London Conference would not mean immediate enforcement of penalties against Germany, which could only be enforced when Germany rejected the demands of the Reparations Commission, with which, according to the Peace Treaty, the decision lay. The German Foreign Minister therefore urged Germans strongly to support the Government's refusal to accept the terms of the Paris Agreement.

Archibald Rose Given Farewell

Tiffin Given For Commercial Secretary Of British Legation At Peking

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 19.—Over seventy members of the British colony here met yesterday at a tiffin given under the auspices of the British Chamber of Commerce in honor of Mr. Archibald Rose, Commercial Secretary of the British Legation, who goes on furlough next Wednesday.

Mr. Henning, who presided, spoke in high praise of Mr. Rose's services as Commercial Secretary, and, continuing, reviewed the commercial needs of business interests in China. Replying, Mr. Rose stated that British trade in this country was not progressing, but was healthily holding its own.

The guests included Sir Beilby Alston, the British Minister, Mr. R. H. Clive, British Counsellor of Legation, Sir Francis Aglen, Inspector-General of Cutsoms and the Right Rev. F. L. Norris, Bishop of North China.

Japs In Chita To "Get Information"

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Chita, Feb. 18.—The head of the Japanese mission, in the course of an interview, stated: "We have been sent to Chita by the Japanese Command for purposes of information, particularly in regard to the Assembly. The Japanese Command treats the Buffer-States as a fact, and hopes through the Assembly to hear the united voice of the Russians in the Far East.

"The Japanese command does not consider that Semenoff's and Kappell's forces are serious factors, as they have suffered many defeats and are unable to reorganise. Japanese commercial men are greatly interested in the renewal of trade. The only way to overcome the difficulty due to the lack of a stable currency is to exchange raw materials for Japan-

MOTOR TRUCKS

TRANSPORTATION has to do with the moving of materials from place to place. On its transportation facilities largely depends the individual development of any country. Interior China to-day would have no famine if it had roads for the proper distribution of foodstuffs and merchandise. Therefore, everyone should boost for roads, more roads, and good roads.

WE KNOW that hauling by truck is cheaper. It enables merchants to open up and develop localities which are overlooked now on account of slow and antiquated methods of deliveries. Its advertising possibilities are limitless! It gives such service to your patrons that, in comparison with the present methods employed by many, they readily see you appreciate their patronage.

TRANSPORTATION, as offered by this organization, is not a truck alone; not transportation advice or installations alone; not maintenance or service alone—but all these three together. So let us give you our data on operative costs of the proper truck for your business. We have in stock sizes and types suitable for all lines of business.

"GO TO YOUR HOMES AND DIE"—FAMINE VICTIMS TOLD

acute diseases that otherwise would be resisted, go down when famine come. Famine is a slow, nagging, wearing but relentless disease in itself. Its greatest toll is yet to be taken. Its only enemy is nourishing food and food can only be obtained with funds. This is the way the death danger is expressed by most of the workers.

DISEASES APPEAR

Famine fever and famine dropsy, the latter the great mocker in all famines, are appearing. Typhus is inevitable in the spring and must be fought but famine dropsy, evidenced by the puffed and often rosy cheeks, the distended stomachs and extreme muscular weakness, is already upon the starving provinces. The symptoms often convince the skeptical that the people are robust.

Mrs. Martin Egan, representative in China for the Saturday Evening Post and who has been in famine districts the world over for the last five years, declared after his first trip into the famine area of China that they were truly stricken and were about to die. She saw in the flushed faces, the tired eyes and the slow movements, the true indications of the famine dropsy that has been so much before her eyes in Europe and the Near East.

"Death is inevitable unless relief comes," was Mrs. Egan's verdict after her investigation.

SALE OF CHILDREN

Then comes the added terror of famine, the sale of women and children. This condition always comes with famine but never in Europe nor the Near East, so far as can be learned, were babies sold for four coppers each. There are records of such sales in the offices of the United International Famine Relief Committee.

"We are so poor we cannot afford to keep our girls," is a common explanation and a true one. If 50 coppers will buy grain for a family, prolong life a short time and the purchasers will feed the girls then all are saved for a time. This is the way that famine makes normal human beings look at the situation.

Yet standing out in all of this brand of sordidness that has appeared, are thousands and possibly millions of heroic Chinese mothers who suffer and die rather than sell a daughter into an atmosphere that nauseates their souls or to sell a boy into bondage.

In every relief station and famine school, stories of sales as are heard. Mothers and fathers, who have already sold children come to the stations for help to get them back. They did not know when they sold, that famine relief of any kind was obtainable.

NO REMEDY AT HAND

There has been no fund for redeeming girls who are sold and those who have been redeemed own their liberty to funds provided in most cases out of the purses of the workers. Often girls are found with broken limbs and scarred bodies because they fought their new masters.

Just two things will stop the traffic in girls: glutted market, in which so many girls will have been purchased that there will be no demand or a replenished treasury which will send grain to the starving families and make the sales unnecessary.

Everywhere there is starvation, menace of death by disease, sales of girls and women, torturing cold, suicide and bandits. The latter have added just one more burden to the sufferers. They raid stricken villages, carry away those of wealth who might help their neighbors and take a ransom, money that should be spent for grain.

There, brother—you with a table that groans under its load of rich viands, and you, sister—you with the warm furs and the sparkling diamonds—are the facts.

What are you going to do about it?

Bryan Has Plan To Revamp Party

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 18.—Mr. William J. Bryan, through his brother Charles, has issued a statement, outlining proposals for a legislative program for the proposed reorganised Democratic party. The program comprises measures intended to accomplish the work of peace, to eliminate profiteering, to prevent governmental extravagance and to restore the rule of the people.

Criminal Gang Disturbs Police On Pacific Coast

(U. S. Naval Radio through Reuter)

San Francisco, Feb. 18.—The police in all the coast cities have been ordered to guard against a coast-wide gang. It appears that two Chinese merchants at Los Angeles have been killed and one wounded, also that six Chinese who were in a room at San Francisco started shooting one another, with the result that one was killed and three wounded. The wounded Chinese merchant was shot three times in the head, but is expected to recover. Simultaneously in three cities the police interrupted Chinese New Year celebrations. Many persons were arrested for investigation.

DECOTINT Wall Finish

An Economical Distemper

Decotint is the ideal wall coating for interior decoration. It produces a soft, water color effect that indicates refinement, and can be easily applied on plaster, wood, or any other wall surfaces.

Will Not Rub Off

In 5 lb. paper cartons. Made in 28 shades and white; other colors can be obtained by intermixing.

Color cards will be sent upon application.

From all Painters or Andersen, Meyer & Co.

Note to painters:

Large stocks of DECOTINT in all shades, ready for delivery.

For high grade wall decoration, we recommend S-W Flat-Tone—the oil paint especially made for that purpose.

S-W MAR-NOT

Preserves the Natural Appearance of Wood Floors

To preserve the original appearance of the wood used in floors is an object much sought after in interior decoration and desirable for artistic effect.

Left to the ravages of time and wear, this will disappear and become soiled and unsightly. Wax alone will not secure it. But S-W Mar-Not (a clear floor varnish) will protect from all dirt and wear and retain the appearance of wood as Nature made it.

S-W FLOORLAC

Beautifies Woodwork and protects it

With one operation it stains and varnishes stairways, woodwork, furniture, kitchen cabinets, refrigerators, and all interior woodwork.

It reveals the natural beauty of the wood; gives a rich, brilliant, permanent finish that does not turn white; not easily marred or scratched; water-proof.

In popular shades of oak, cherry, mahogany, walnut, etc.

LEGION POST HAS DINNER AND MEETING

American Service Men Decide On Pilgrimage And Other Matters

Some fifty members of Fred-Ward Post of the American Legion met at the American Club last night for a "get-together" dinner and to name certain officers and committees and discuss plans for the year. Major Ross, Post Commandant, presided over the meeting and brought forward a number of points for consideration, including the matter of an annual pilgrimage to the tomb of General Frederick Ward at Sunkiang—which was definitely decided upon—the matter of annual dues, proposed entertainment of General William Crozier, former Chief of Ordnance who is expected here next month, and other business.

Officers appointed included Mr. J. T. Wright as Post Adjutant; Captain W. I. Eisler as Employment Officer; Major Arthur Bassett as Historian and Mr. L. Fred Patstone as Service Officer. A Liaison Committee was named, composed of Major Heyburn, Mr. Metz and Dr. Fearn and a committee on ways and means to take up the matter of finances, composed of Mr. Edwards, Major Heyburn and Mr. Michener. A Welfare Committee composed of Messrs. Hotchkiss, Merry, Raffensperger, Belknap, Crane, McQuade, Dayton and Drs. Fearn and Baldwin and Capt. Brennan.

Lateness of the hour and restricted space preclude a longer account of the meeting in this issue.

GREECE TO BE BIG GAMBLING MECCA, IS PLAN

Constantine Solves Problem Of Finances By Project; Liberal Support Sure

Paris, Jan. 15.—Greece will become the pleasure capital of the gambling world, with palatial hotels and casinos once Constantine is restored to the throne, according to private advices from Lucerne.

If this plan goes through, Constantine will have solved the great financial difficulty confronting Greece on the restoration of the King, because of the refusal of the allies to guarantee Greek funds any longer. It is believed that this vast scheme, which aims at transforming the Greek islands into a vast Riviera, originated in the brain of Constantine's American sister-in-law, the Princess Christopher, formerly Mrs. Leeds.

She expects to attract hosts of American millionaires to the new Monte Carlo. Greece possesses many natural advantages, including blue sky and an exquisite climate, calculated to make life agreeable for even the most finicky of millionaires.

According to gossip at Lucerne, Constantine has concluded agreements with a powerful group of casino promoters.

Tells Girl's Fortune Then Appropriates It

French Mystic With Egg Gets Life Savings, Springs New Trick

Paris, Jan. 8.—Here is a new version of the old "gold" brick trick as practised by a French fortune teller. According to one of his victims, a servant girl of Vanes, southwest of Paris, the fortune teller came around to the back door and asked her if she didn't want to get a glimpse into her future. The girl eagerly assented. Thereupon the fortune teller took an egg from his pocket and told the girl to hold it over her heart for a time.

"Now then," he said, after she had followed his directions, "I am going to break the egg. If it is good you will have a rosy future. If it is bad you will be overwhelmed with misfortune."

The egg turned out to be so very, very bad that it needed no close examination to determine its state. The simple hearted girl became greatly terrified. But the fortune teller told her there was yet hope. If she would take the blouse she were on Sunday and all her valuables and savings, tie them up in her silk shawl and let him hold the bundle for a while he could ward off the misfortune. She did. If money is the root of all evil the girl ought to travel in pretty good luck from now on, for the bundle contained all her earthly possessions, valued at 1,500 francs, and the fortune teller hasn't brought it back.

Trainmen Act Santa For Cripple Girl

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 25.—Santa Claus chartered two of the Illinois Central's fast passenger trains today and brought them to a stop before a lonely little farm house near the village of Laclede, in Effingham County, into which delegations of Illinois Central trainmen carried their gifts to Lottie Sprouse, an 18-year-old invalid.

For six years Lottie has carried on a romance with the trainmen, although her identity was unknown to them until a few months ago. When 12 years old she was stricken with infantile paralysis and rendered helpless. Her father met with financial reverses and could not afford to have her treated.

From a cot near a window in her home Lottie began waving her hands at trainmen as they whisked by. During the last two years she has not missed waving to a single train, even signalling those at night with a lighted match. Trainmen considered it a duty to "wave at the arm in the window." Recently they investigated and found out her condition and circumstances.

They passed the word subscribed. A big wheel chair, a robe, a large blanket, house slippers and a number of other gifts were given by the Champaign delegation. While it was presenting its gifts, one delegation from Centralia arrived and placed at her disposal a fund which trainmen will supervise while she is receiving medical attention.

When Lottie sat in her wheel chair today, it was the first time she has left her cot in six years. She waved to every train.

PERSONAL

Will the lady or gentleman who won the last sweeps kindly call at No. 9 Hongkong Road? Bring this clipping with you and you'll be glad you called.

LOST AND FOUND

That same Baby Peugeot has turned up again. Will some discriminating person please hand the sales-manager Tls. 500—take the car home and relieve the whole force from playing hide-and-seek with it?

YOU EXPECT TO PROTECT YOUR INVESTMENT!

The way to do this is to keep your car in PRIME CONDITION and the way to keep your car in prime condition is to have 'er GONE OVER once in a while at No. 9 Hongkong Road, and the best time to have her TUNED UP and PAINTED is in the WINTER TIME!

Just now, and while the cold weather lasts, you will not get the same pleasure out of DRIVING anyway, and can better arrange with your family to be without it for a spell—and that suits us!

We can give you PROMPT ATTENTION at this time. After a while, they'll be rushing us with requests for immediate attention and always in the rush season many have to wait.

SEE US EARLY ABOUT THIS!
—DO IT RIGHT AWAY!

THIS WEEK'S BEST BETS

And here's a list of a few of the good ones we are offering this week:

1918 Overland roadster, in prime condition and recently repainted. A snap at Tls. 400.

A DARRACQ—vintage of '13. Is now being painted and conditioned—you can have it for Tls. 425.

A Two-cylinder RENAULT—Tls. 350.

1919—MAXWELL 2-seater—in fine shape mechanically and looks like new ..... Tls. 600.00

1919—SCRIPPS BOOTH 3-Seater. This car, at the price, is a real "pick up." All new tyres—five of them... 800.00

1918—BUICK. 4-cyl. 5-passenger—extra tyre etc. In very fair shape ... 700.00

1913—DELAUNAY BELLEVILLE—7-Seater (electric lights, battery and generator) 1,200.00

And the feature of the week is an "A & O" (Alladays and Onions).

This car, in absolutely perfect running order, just repainted, all new tyres, is the best buy in Shanghai at Tls. 1,200.

If there's nothing in this list that interests you call in anyway. We are receiving new ones daily—and selling them immediately in many cases. Remember the number, 9 Hongkong Road.

ADVICE TO THE LOVE-LORN

Dear Miss Beatrice Barefacts:

I am a man of forty-three. I dress well, have a good position at a large salary and am said to be handsome. I feel that it is high time I should marry, and although I know many eligible young ladies (one or two I know very well) I seem unable to turn the conversation towards a proposal with any of them. Would you advise my proposing by letter? Or could you make any other suggestion?

Anxiously awaiting your reply,

I am,

Your, B. H.

Dear B. H.:

Your initials must stand for bone-head! A man of forty-three years to ask a nut question like that! I've seen you taking your girl home from the movies in a rickshaw—you, a man with a good position and a large salary! Sufferin' Cats! Spring your bank roll! Phone central 3809 and ask for one of those big limousines at $6.00 an hour. Take her home "the longest way round," and if you can't find an opportunity to pop the question then, you ought to be shot in the afternoon.

Easy Victory Comes Through Team Work In Fast Game; Morgan, Prior Star

The Portuguese team defeated the Harlequins yesterday afternoon in a Hockey League match by a score of 5-2. The game, which resulted in the easy victory for the Portuguese team, was spoiled by the rough playing of both sides. On the whole the play was very fast. The team work of the Portuguese was the feature.

Encarnacao scored in the first five minutes of play but Prior soon after tied the score for the Harlequins. The Portuguese then got together and pressed throughout to the interval Remedios, Oliveira and Encarnacao each adding a goal, making the halftime score 4-1.

On resuming the Harlequins pressed and forced a corner which Morgan converted in beautiful style. Again and again the Harlequins tried to pull up but the sterling defense of the Portuguese team withstood the attacks.

In a scramble in front of the goal Remedios shot. The ball hit the the goal keeper's pads and bounced out but Leitao, who was waiting, had little difficulty in poking it in. There was no further scoring and when the whistle went, the Portuguese were leading, 5-2.

For the winners little can be said as the team play was of the highest order. Morgan and Prior were the star forwards for the losers but unfortunately they received little support from the others. Mann played nice hockey. If it were not for the Harlequins splendid defense the score would have been much higher.

If the Portuguese team is successful next week in the match against the Police (South) team, it will come off on the top of the league.

Hankow Market

The British Chamber of Commerce of Hankow write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, February 9.

FINANCE & MONEY MARKET

There has been no telegraphic communications between Shanghai and Hankow during the week. Shanghai rates were received after business hours each day and therefore no business has been done. On Tuesday and Wednesday, 8th and 9th inst., banks were closed for China New Year Holidays. Taels T.T. on Shanghai, Chinese market 97.1—very little doing owing to the China New Year holidays. Dollars last quotation 69.25-69.45 buyers and sellers respectively—very little business doing. Native Interest, 4 percent.

EXPORTS

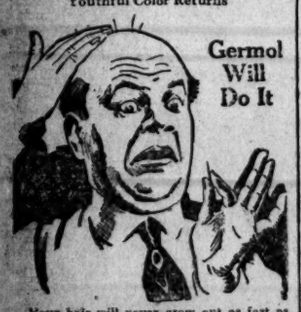
Local markets were practically all closed owing to the approach of China New Year Holidays. Home reports are anything but encouraging and tend towards still lower price levels, especially the markets for oil seeds and tallow which seem to be demoralised with no buyers at almost any price.

IMPORTS

Nothing to report.

You'll Not Be Bald Even At 80

Hair Stops Falling, Hair Made Beautiful, Youthful Color Returns



Your hair will never grow out as fast as it falls out. You can make it, not only stop falling out, but grow beautifully, besides restoring its natural, youthful, normal color. This is done by the amazing discovery, GERMOL. It gives every hair root its original youthful vigor and makes the scalp active. Every hair root sac develops great strength in gripping the hairs so they cannot fall out. The hair begins to grow profusely; its color returns. GERMOL is not a dye. GERMOL is a vigor intensifier. Your first trial will prove these startling results. End your hair troubles at once. Use GERMOL, you will need nothing else.

Turtle Serum Divides Berlin Medical Society

Eight Meetings Held To Discuss The Efficacy Of The Tuberculosis Specific Disclose A Wide Difference Of Opinion—One Doctor Against Its Use

Berlin, Jan. 8.—The Berlin Medical Society, after eight meetings and much debating over the Friedmann tuberculosis specific, is unable to reach a verdict that is generally acceptable to the membership. It appears that the trend of the evidence submitted was discouraging to those persons who anticipated revolutionary results in the treatment of the disease by the famous turtle serum.

Dr. Kraus of Berlin, who advised further experimentation on the ground that there should be success in a hundred test cases before a decision be given, has warned against the use of the Friedmann serum as a preventive, and declared that it was at best suitable only in individual cases, and should not be used as a popular remedy.

On the other hand, Dr. Descheich praised Herr Friedmann as a benefactor along with Pasteur and Jenner, but a majority of the speakers before the society were either cautious regarding what they had to say or wished to further test the serum over a period of years before rendering a decision whether it was a success or a failure.

The serum discovered by Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, German specialist, which he asserted was a cure for tuberculosis, was investigated for more than a year by the United States Health Service, which discredited it in 1913. Experts of the service declared that "far from making small animals more resistent to tuberculosis, a majority of those inoculated were made more susceptible to it." Many medical societies and boards of health have rejected the serum. A bitter fight for and against Dr. Friedmann has raged in German medical circles since the discovery of his "cure" was announced.

The Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy

ON the healthful heights of the beautiful City of Tsingtao stands the Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy, devoted to the education of young men. Besides the training ordinarily given to meet the requirements of universities and colleges, special instruction may be had in Modern Commerce, Office Executive Training, Physical Culture, and Athletics.

Tsingtao, a modern city in every way, is famous throughout the Orient as a summer resort, and abounds in opportunities for outdoor sports such as horseback riding, hiking, swimming, tennis, and boating.

ACADEMY ADMINISTRATION AND SCHOOL BUILDINGS

The Academy is conducted along the general disciplinary lines as found in the two American Military Academies at West Point and Annapolis. The School Day Program is arranged as far as possible on the same lines. The Officer-in-charge is an Annapolis man. The cadets are organised in two companies, and the Company Commanders Lieutenants, and minor officers are selected from the student body for having shown the highest proficiency in study, general department, and athletics. Students are obliged to wear the special Academy uniform which is made similar to the American army officer's. The cadets are called to their classes, meals, and drills, to the doctor's inspection, physical inspection, and athletics by their own bugler. In all school work they are obliged to develop their own initiative in responding to the ideals of the Academy.

EQUIPMENT

The Academic building is an attractive and serviceable structure, four storeys in height, and contains the Administrative Office, Reception Room, Library, Dining Halls, Dormitory, Recitation Rooms, and the Gymnasium. The building is fireproof, is lighted by electricity, has modern plumbing throughout, and its architecture though massive is beautiful.

Nearly half of the entire storey below the large dining hall is devoted to the preparation and serving of food. The kitchens are fully equipped and are under strict supervision. The quality and the service of the food are in entire keeping with the Academy itself.

THE LIBRARY

The Library, furnished with reference works and the best of literature, magazines, and newspapers, is for the use of the cadets.

THE RECEPTION ROOM

The Reception Room is open at all times and the boys, when not in recitations or at study, may gather here to read and be at ease in restful and companionable ways.

THE GYMNASIUM

The new large Gymnasium will for many years meet every need of the Academy for indoor exercise under fine and wholesome conditions. Adjoining the main exercise room are the locker rooms, shower baths, and storage room for apparatus.

THE INFIRMARY

The Infirmary is especially fitted for the care of sick cadets and is entirely devoted to this use. Its isolation insures quiet and comfort for the sick and opportunity to care for patients in the most thorough manner. The Academy retains its own Medical Officer, thus assuring earnest attention being given to the health of the cadets. Medical inspection is held daily and whenever necessary medical aid is given.

FURNISHINGS OF THE ROOMS

The cadets' rooms are supplied with spring bedstead, mattresses, pillows, chiffonier or bureau, table, chair, and clothes closet.

THE STORE

The Store, in charge of a member of the faculty, is open each day at a stated hour. Here the cadets may obtain books and other necessary articles, as well as a limited amount of candy.

ADMISSION

Candidates for admission to the Academy are given a preliminary examination and are assigned to a course which they, in conjunction with their parents' or guardians' wishes, select. Upon taking up a particular course of study the cadets are expected to carry the course through to completion.

Each applicant for admission is required to fill out the Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy application blank and file it with the Registrar, together with the matriculation fee. No applicant will be accepted unless he can show honorable discharge from his previous school.

Each applicant for admission to the First Year of the Pre-University Course must have a certificate showing that he has completed satisfactorily the United States Grammar School, the English Day School, or the equivalent. Applicants who are not qualified to do the work of the First Year will be enrolled in the Preparatory classes. Applicants for admission to the higher classes will be tested on the work of the preceding year.

The second term of the academic year begins on March 1. All who plan to enter should be present at that time.

PROMOTION AND GRADING

The grading is in charge of experienced professors of the Academy. If, in the opinion of the professors in charge of the grading, at the end of the Probation Period of four weeks, a cadet seems unable to do the work of the class to which he has been assigned, or if he proves to be able to do the work of a class above the one to which he has been assigned, he will be regraded. Reassignment to a higher or lower class may be made at any time for adequate reason.

Two formal examinations are held each term and as soon as possible thereafter a report is sent to the cadets' parents. These examinations in connection with the daily recitation work, determine the cadets' rank and promotion. Thus the Academy makes every effort to keep the parents at all times informed as to the standing of the students.

A grade of 70 or over in four-fifths of a student's work is necessary for promotion.

An average grade of less than 60 in a course indicates complete failure, and if not made up, involves dismissal from the course.

Cadets who have received a grade of at least 80 in all subjects in their course for any term are excused from taking the final examinations of that term, and thus have the opportunity to add several days to the Christmas and Spring holidays.

A cadet is considered a member of that class with which he is taking the majority of his work.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

The Academy prescribes three definite courses, namely, the Pre-University or Classical Course, which comprises studies for entrance into American or English Universities, the Scientific Course, which for students not planning to attend college gives thorough training in the essential and practical subjects beneficial for them in taking up their life work, and the Commercial Course, which leads to a certificate of graduation and qualifies those who complete the course to enter the commercial field with an excellent chance of achieving immediate success. A Pre-High School Course is also given.

The courses of instruction of the Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy are under the supervision of a corps of professors holding degrees and having professional teaching certificates from the various states of the United States of America.

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH

Professor Charles A. Jacobus, Ph. B., formerly Vice-Consul at Vladivostok, and a graduate of the University of Arkansas, supervises the Department of English. Courses in English Grammar, Rhetoric, Composition, American and English Literature are offered especially for the Classical and Scientific Courses but are open to all cadets who desire them.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS

The Mathematics Department, under Captain Ralph Naill, C.E., gives the students a thorough training in Advanced Arithmetic, Algebra, Plane and Solid Geometry, and Trigonometry.

DEPARTMENTS OF HISTORY AND LANGUAGES

These departments are directly under the supervision of Miss Rosemary A. Brennan, A.B., B.S., a graduate of the University of Maine and of Simmons College in Boston. The subjects included in the Department of History are Ancient History, Medieval and Modern History, United States History, English History, Civil Government, and Current Events.

Courses in French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Latin are offered.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

The Commercial Course is in charge of Miss Ethel W. Foster, B.S., a graduate of the well-known Eastman-Gaines College of New York, and of Malden Commercial College. Miss Foster is assisted by Mrs. W. A. Flewelling, also a graduate of the Malden Commercial College. The subjects studied in this course are Shorthand, Typewriting, Accounting, Business Technique, Business Organisation and Administration, Business Correspondence, Penmanship, Salesmanship, Political Economy, and Commercial Law.

In addition to the subjects offered and the lectures given, the course is augmented by practical talks on modern commercial methods from prominent business men passing through Tsingtao, and also the students are given the opportunity of becoming acquainted first-hand with the administration methods of large organisations represented in the community.

Each student prior to receiving his certificate must supplement his course by serving one month in the Model Office.

Positions are secured with various commercial firms throughout the Orient for the cadets who have taken the Commercial Course.

DEPARTMENT OF RUSSIAN LITERATURE

The Russian Department is competently handled by Miss Ludemila Popoff, a graduate of the University of Petrograd, assisted by Miss Nadine Geitz, of the Oriental Institute at Vladivostok. Splendid work is being carried on in this Department.

DEPARTMENT OF VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Walter A. Flewelling, B.A., is at the head of the Department of Vocational Training. Professor Flewelling received his Vocational Education at the famous Boston Normal Art College and is able to produce big results in Mechanical Drawing, Modeling, and Woodwork. His methods are modern and under his guidance the cadets quickly obtain a working knowledge of materials, tools, and design, secure interest in construction and develop hand, mind, and heart to create articles of use and beauty.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

The Music Department is in the hand of Professor Isai Zviagin, a competent musician holding a Master's Degree from the Petrograd Conservatory of Music, who personally instructs the students in piano, violin, singing, and composition. A number of parents are pleased to use this opportunity to continue the musical education of their sons.

LECTURES

A number of lectures is now being arranged for the second term to take place at the Cadet Assembly. The speakers will be men of business of national and international repute, and will talk on interesting commercial subjects and current events.

RELIGIOUS LIFE

The Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy is non-sectarian. A protestant service is held each Sunday in the Academic Building, however, for the convenience of the cadets.

THE STUDENT EXECUTIVE

The Student Executive is Captain Ralph Naill, C.E., a United States Naval Academy graduate and a Reserve Officer in the United States Navy. Captain Naill has complete charge of the cadets at all times and is assisted by the Physical Director, Lester H. Nuland, A.B., a graduate of the University of California. The regular work in Physical Education is required of all cadets unless they are physically unable to do it. A thorough examination by the Physical Director and the Academy Physician is given to each cadet.

ATHLETICS

The value to growing boys of properly selected and directed physical exercises as a regular part of all their activities cannot be overestimated.

The cadets of the Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy receive the best type of training, having not only a full course of Calisthenics and Gymnastics, but also major sports, including American Football, Rugby, Soccer, Track, Baseball, Tennis, Handball, Wrestling, and Boxing, being coached by an expert, a graduate of the University of California who won his letter in Intercollegiate sports on the Pacific Coast.

In the summer season Seamanship and Navigation are seriously studied under the supervision of the Student Executive.

It is expected that the Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy will enter into competition in the Far Eastern Olympics.

SCHOOL DISCIPLINE

The aim of the Tsingtao University Preparatory Academy is to supervise wisely the daily life of the boys, training them to be self-reliant, truthful, and honorable. By setting up ideals and by helping each individual boy to realise them, the faculty strives not only to fit a boy for college, but also to fit him to take his place in a world of men.

There are rules in the Academy which must be observed in spirit as well as in letter. One of the disciplinary measures taken by the Academy is the Sunday Inspection to which visitors are invited. All the rooms and uniforms of the cadets must pass muster, and if a cadet fails to meet the semi-military requirements, his punishment is in the form of demerits.

Prizes are awarded to the cadets who excel in their studies, athletics, and conduct.

THE SCHOOL DAY

The School day is arranged in a systematic co-ordination of study, recreation, and rest:

Reveille	6:30	a.m.
Drill	7:30	„
Breakfast	8:00	„
Classwork	8:30 to 10:10	„

BOARD DELIVERED 1,180 SHIPS IN 1920

Benson's Report Attributes World Record To Our Workers' Expertness

HUGE TONNAGE BY 1922

Fleet Expected To Surpass All Countries Combined Except England

Washington, Dec. 12.—With completion of the Government shipbuilding program by 1922 the United States probably will have as much ocean-going tonnage as all the other countries combined, with the exception of Great Britain, according to Chairman Benson's annual general report, made public today. The financial report was given to the press last week.

At the end of the last fiscal year, the Chairman said, American merchant ships, Government and private owned, numbered 3,404, of 16,918,212 deadweight tons, not including more than 2,000,000 tons of shipping on the Great Lakes. The net program of Government-owned ships, Admiral Benson said, contemplated the construction of 2,315 vessels of 13,675,711 deadweight tons, and at the end of the last fiscal year 2,070 ships, aggregating 11,622,361 deadweight tons, had been completed.

In the course of the year 1,180 finished ships of 6,379,823 deadweight tons were delivered, exceeding all records. They were built without overtime or other aids to rapid production, Admiral Benson said.

"The shipyard worker of the United States has developed an expertness which has raised the efficiency of the various crafts to a high plane, and production has kept pace accordingly," Admiral Benson said. The industry had expanded its force of 50,000 skilled mechanics to one of 385,000 men, available to the private shipyards, he added.

"The credit for the accomplishment of the aims of the Emergency Fleet Corporation is therefore due to these men, who have surpassed all previous performances in the shipbuilding of the world," he said.

American vessels are now sailing in 229 separate services. They carried 44.6 percent of the nation's foreign commence last year as compared with 9.7 percent before the war, the report said.

The Government fleet in operation June 30 consisted of 1,294 steel vessels plying to all quarters of the globe, including 508 to Northern Europe and 126 to Southern Europe. In the trans-Pacific service there were 163 vessels, and in the South American 138.

Forty-one direct service lines have been established to South and Central America from nine ports on the Atlantic Coast, four on the Gulf and two on the Pacific Coast.

To cope with the formidable problems overseas, Admiral Benson said, the European organisation of the Shipping Board, with headquarters in London, was established in June, 1919. Prior to its creation board vessels in European ports had been attended entirely by the agents of the managing companies, the report said, who "either through inefficiency, indifference or dishonesty allowed American ships to be mishandled and subjected to delays and exorbitant charges."

The new organisation, through its control over movements, charter, cargoes, bunkers, supplies, repairs and similar matters, the report explained, had reduced the average turn around of board vessels from 25.4 days for Great Britain and 19 days from the Continent in September, 1919, to 19.2 days for Great Britain and 11.3 days for the Continent in May, 1920. Costs have also been materially reduced, according to the report.

The board sold during the year 426 ships for a total of $279,914,594, including 131 new steel cargo vessels, thirty-four new wooden ships and thirty-three former German cargo ships.

Discussing the wooden fleet, Chairman Benson said the maximum number in operation was 240 during April. In June there were 170 at work.

The demand for tanker tonnage increased during the year. The Chairman said the board's ships were in constant service, chiefly between Mexican and American gulf ports and North Atlantic ports and American oil stations at St. Thomas, Birgin Islands, Brest and Bizerta. On the Pacific the lines run between San Francisco and American foreign stations at Honolulu, Manila and Shanghai. Government tank steamers carried 3,641,362 tons of oil in the course of the year.

Nearly all seized German cargo craft have been sold or chartered with option to purchase, while all but eleven of the German passenger ships were disposed of in the course of the year. No disposition has been made, however, of the one Austrian vessel, the Martha Washington.

The Chairman urged that Congress provide machinery to adjudicate claims of other than enemy citizens against these seized vessels, in view of the delay in the peace treaties.

Describing the activities of the board's Department of Investigation, the Chairman reported that between April, 1918, and June, 1920, there had been 2,500 separate investigations conducted over the country. Operations had been coordinated, he added, with those of the Department of Justice, the Naval and Military Intelligence Services and other agencies of the Government in which there was joint interest.

Bazaar Next Week For Famine Relief By Ladies Society

The Ladies' Famine Relief Association will hold a bazaar at the Chinese Y.M.C.A., 120 Szechuen Road, on February 21, 22 and 23, between 2:00 p.m. and midnight each day. The bazaar will be unique in presenting Chinese art in forms not previously accessible to Occidental eyes. There will be Chinese music by the ladies, Chinese drama by schoolgirls, display of rare Oriental jewelry costing fabulous sums, and raffles for precious ornaments, donated by the ladies.

There will also be served dainty Chinese refreshments a la Tang Dynasty, and a variety of other attractions, which have kept the heart of China young during untold centuries.

Procurable also, at conservative prices, are old fashioned Chinese toys, some from the famine refugee districts. The whole bazaar was systematically planned by several notable artists, for months back. Altogether, housed though in modern surroundings, the bazaar will give an atmosphere of Chinese life and art at their pleasantest, save for the ubiquitous cinematograph show.

Tickets, to be had at one dollar may be obtained at the Y.M.C.A. Building, or at the headquarters of the Association, 110-a Bubbling Well Road.

Protect Your Records

Your Records Protect Your Business

Do You Realize What Your Records Mean to You?

If fire should destroy your records tonight, how would you continue business tomorrow?

Have you ever read that part of your insurance policy which says—

The insured "shall produce for examination all books of account, bills, invoices and other vouchers, or certified copies thereof, if the original be lost"?

Could you produce this vital proof of loss sustained, on the day after the fire? If you could not, what assurance have you that you would be able to make a satisfactory and adequate settlement with your insurance company?

They need your invoices, inventories and other records to determine the amount of your loss. Without these records, they have as much right to guess at the amount as you have.

Europe's Chronic Sickness Caused By German Quibbles

Great Britain's Position Delicate—Wishing To Make A Market Of Germany She Is Withheld By Promises To France

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS
(McClure Syndicate)

PERHAPS as a warning against too extreme optimism at this interesting moment, the world is confronted by still another German crisis. In reality there is little new in the crisis itself, it is only one more phase of the eternal German question which the Treaty of Versailles did not and could not settle. The actual point at issue at the present moment is the failure of Germany to comply with the disarmament conditions imposed upon her, both by the Paris agreement and by the later agreement at Spa.

Of the merits of the dispute only one opinion can be held. Germany agreed to disarm, she has not complied with her agreement, and the real difficulty lies in Bavaria, which defies the central Government and persists in maintaining a military organisation itself more numerous than the whole armed force allowed Germany under the Paris settlement. The reports of the Bavaria course do not disagree and there is no question raised as to the accuracy of the reports; the sole issue is one of allied acceptance or refusal to accept the Bavarian defiance and the impotence of the German central Government.

MORE GERMAN TERRITORY MAY BE OCCUPIED

But the situation is complicated by the fact that at Spa Britain as well as France agreed that there should be military action, the occupation of German territory, possibly of the Ruhr coal basin, if Germany failed to comply with the terms of the Spa agreement. This agreement, it will be recalled, followed the French occupation of Frankfort and other German cities after Germany had failed to observe the terms of the Treaty of Versailles and in defiance of this treaty had sent troops into the neutralised region on the east bank of the Rhine.

The French action aroused British protests and led to bitter recriminations on both sides of the Channel. Nevertheless at Spa the British recognised the French contention that deliberate refusal to comply with the treaty should be punished by the joint occupation of more German territory. This British acquiescence was mainly responsible for the fact that the Germans have since that time lived up to their agreements in the matter of coal deliveries to France.

On the other hand the Germans have not complied with the disarmament conditions and we have come to January 1, a date on which the French are entitled to call the Germans to account, and the allies of the French have received substantial proof of the fact that the Germans have not complied. Now the situation which results has an obvious external significance, but it is infinitely complicated by the domestic circumstances in the three countries most concerned, namely, France, Germany and Great Britain.

To look at the French side first: France has just passed through a political crisis growing out of the effort of a War Minister to defeat the effort of his fellow countrymen, supported by the Cabinet, to reduce the French army. Lefevre, the Minister, argued that such a reducation was impossible, because Germany had not complied with the disarmament clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, and that any reduction of the period of service of the conscripts with the colors from three to two years or to eighteen months would be perilious.

FOCH THINKS IT POSSIBLE TO REDUCE FRENCH ARMY

Lefevre's thesis was confuted by the Leygues Cabinet, which brought Foch and Petain to testify that the proposed reduction was possible. Both distinguished soldiers agreed that while Germany had by no means fully complied with the treaty terms she had so far disarmed that a reduction in the strength of the French army was possible. Lefevre contested this, was beaten and retired, but naturally his arguments found more than a passing hearing in France.

This hearing was the more ready because of the lesson which lies in all French minds as a consequence of the Napoleonic experience. After Jena and following the complete conquest of Prussia in 1806-7 Napoleon imposed upon his defeated foe the most rigorous military terms conceivable, terms which rigidly limited the strength of the Prussian army and aimed at preventing Prussia from regaining all military strength. Yet Prussia managed to evade those terms and eight years later to play a decisive part in the overthrow of Napoleon. France does not mean to be caught the same way again.

The Leygues Cabinet is very weak and may fall at any moment. It has weathered the storm over the reduction of the army, but it cannot hope to stand if it submits to the Bavarian violation of the Treaty of Versailles, a violation which strikes at the very root of all the French conceptions of the Treaty of Versailles as a guarantee against future German aggression. France can, therefore, with perfect justice insist upon the right, established at Spa, of occupation of German territory, and it can ask Britain for support, provided it can prove, and this is simple, that the Germans have violated their pledges.

GERMAN GOVERNMENT WEAK BY CONTENDING ELEMENTS

The German situation is not less complicated. The German Government is also very weak; it has lost ground steadily in past months. It is pushed on one side by the old Junker elements, which sympathise wholly with the Bavarian attitude; indeed many Prussians are now in Munich aiding and abetting in the Bavarian action. It is pushed in the other direction by the Socialists, who have no desire to enter into a new conflict with France, who resent the growth of monarchist and reactionary strength, who seek to eliminate not suffer to return the agents of the old order.

If Bavaria refuses to obey the German Government—and it does—not only will the Government lack the troops to enforce obedience but it cannot depend on such troops as it has, since the army remains in the hands of the old order. But the Socialists the labor elements, the republicans as contrasted with the monarchists, now propose to use the weapon of the strike against the Bavarians. Thus the Ruhr coal miners can compel the Government to refuse to ship coal to Bavaria under threat of refusing to produce coal at all. The result would be the prostration of Bavarian industry. But Bavaria, on her side, may meet this challenge by some separatist step which would destroy German unity.

ANTI-PRUSSIAN SPIRIT TENDS TO SEPARATION

One must recognise the fact, however exaggerated the conclusions sometimes drawn from it, that there is a marked anti-Prussian spirit in Bavaria, as well as an even stronger conservative sentiment, which is mostly hostile to the more radical ideas prevailing in portions of Prussia, notably in the highly industralised regions of the west. A Bavarian secession, followed by the recall of the Bavarian dynasty, even the effort to establish the Wittelsbach dynasty in place of the Hohenzollern, is not out of the possibilities. Moreover, all Germans know well that France would welcome any break between north and

WINSTON CHURCHILL VS. WELLS

Further Echoes Of The Controversy Over Russian Conditions Under Bolshevist Rule

Below are extracts from articles by the Right Hon. Winston. Churchill, M. P., and H. G. Wells, published in The Sunday Express of London after the appearance of Mr. Wells's series, "Russia in the Shadow."

CHURCHILL ANSWERS WELLS

When one has written a history of the world from nebula to the Third International and of the human race from protoplasm to Lord Birkenhead in about a twelvemonth, there ought to be no difficulty in becoming an expert on the internal conditions of Russia after a visit of fourteen days. When a writer of such singular power and imagination as H. G. Wells turns aside from those charming philosophical romances with which he has so often delighted us to give us definite and final guidance on the greatest political question in the world, we ought to examine his conclusions with attention.

These conclusions are set out with great solemnity in the final paragraphs of the articles which Mr. Wells has written upon his visit to Russia.

First—"Russian civilisation is in extremis. . . . Nothing like this Russian downfall has ever happened before. If it goes on for a year or so more the process of collapse will be complete. Nothing will be left of Russia but a country of peasants; the towns will be practically deserted and in ruins, the railways will be rusting in disuse. With the railways will go the last vestiges of any general government."

Second—"But this is not the fault of the Bolsheviki or of their communistic system; oh, dear, no. On the contrary, the Bolsheviki 'are the only possible Government that can stave off such a final collapse of Russia . . . if they can be assised by America and the Western powers."

Third—"The Bolshevist Government is inexperienced and incapable to an extreme degree" and it must be assisted "generously" to "establish a new social order" in Russia in accordance with the principles of communism, or possibly "a mitigated communism."

Fourth—In order to secure this generous help for the Bolsheviki there must be trade between them and the Western powers and the United States. But as the Bolsheviki regard private traders as "pirates" and all private property as plunder, "there is only one being in Russia with whom the Western world can deal, and that is the Bolshevist Government itself, and there is no way of dealing with that one being safely and effectually, except through some national or, better, some international trust." . . .

[Mr. Churchill gives a glimpse of advancing civilisation and the growth of a class, especially in the large centers of Europe, which laughed at patriotism and developed a cult preaching "better a world of equally hungry slaves than a world of unequally prosperous freemen."]

These beings, animated by the most ferocious hatreds that the human breast has ever contained, were unable, except in periods of catastrophe, when they immediately rose to the surface, seriously to impede the steady onward march of civilisation. From time to time they throw bombs or murdered prominent people as a proof of the faith that was in them. But they bided their time, and at last, when the loosely knit structure of the Russian Empire was shaken by the stress of the great war, their chance came. They represented the principle of death as the consequence of an all-pervading spirit of hate.

With a clang they closed the gates both to the paths which make life tolerable here below and to those which we hope lead on to serener forms of existence, and instead they attempted to thrust upon mankind universal slavery disguised as universal equality under the permanent dictatorship of their own sect.

The doctors tell us that the principle of cancer sleeps in the bodies of great numbers of healthy persons. They tell us that cancer is the revolt of a single cell which proclaims a malignant principle of life and gathers others to its standard and forces an intense effort from the surrounding tissues to wall in and limit the area of rebellion. While the central principle of a man's being is firmly seated on its throne, all the provinces of his body are held in proper subjection, but when that principle is weakened for any reason, then it is that these deadly growths start into activity and enter upon their violent, virulent and inevitably fatal career.

This is what has happened to Russia and is still happening to Russia. We see the Bolshevist cancer eating into the flesh of the wretched being; we see the monstrous growth swelling and thriving upon the emaciated body of its victim. And now Mr. Wells, that philosophical romancer, comes forward with the proposition that the cancer is the only thing that can pull the body around; that we must feed that and cultivate that. After all, it is another form of life. It is "a new social order." Why be so narrow-minded as to draw the line between health and disease, still less between right and wrong? Adopt an impartial attitude. Put your money on the disease if you think it is going to win.

Is this similitude exaggerated? Let us see. The vast majority of thinking men have always proclaimed that the principle of malignant communism, that is to say communism applied by ruthless force to any society, will result in the destruction and death of that society. The Bolsheviki have applied this system by ruthless force to such parts of Russia as they have been able to get a grip of; and those parts of Russia, and only those parts of Russia, are, according to Mr. Wells and to other authorities, some of whom have been there longer than a fortnight, dying, and dying fast. "Nothing will be left of Russia," he says, "but a country of peasants. The towns will be practically deserted and in ruins. The railways will be rusting in disuse." But it is these towns of Russia in which alone it has been found possible to put this system into operation. All attempts to enthrall the villages have failed, and none can now succeed in time.

There has never been any work more diabolical in the whole history of the world than that which the Bolsheviki ahve wrought in Russia. Consciously, deliberately, confidently, ruthlessly—honestly, if you will in the sense that their wickedness has been the true expression of their nature—they have enforced their theory upon the Russian towns and cities; and these are going to die.

"Ah," says Mr. Wells, "it was not communism that did this, but the blockade." Russia starved by blockade! How is this? Russia is one of the great granaries of the world. Before the war she poured her wheat out to Europe by every channel. During the first three years of the war she required no food from outside. . . .

To find the cause of the famine in Russia we have only to summarise the indisputable facts of the Bolshevist policy toward the peasants in the villages. . . .

They ceased to produce any more grain than that which they could use themselves or be sure of hiding. Hence the famine. It is not the Russian soil which has been ruined; that broad and fertile expanse still lies ready to produce, year by year, in the procession of the seasons, enough for all and to spare. But the motive power, the human effort, the careful direction have been destroyed, and so the cities are starving. Then we come to the final step to which the Bolsheviki are led by the inexorable command of fate—namely, to take over enormous tracts of country and work them by armies of slaves who once were soldiers, in order to wring for a few more months or years, by their efforts under the compulsion of an iron discipline the means of continuing the Bolshevist tyranny in power.

There is nothing in this which is surprising or which is new or which could not have been foreseen or which had not over and over again been predicted in such circumstances. Repeat these steps in any land and you will arrive at the same result. Once the disease is started, if it cannot be excised by a surgical operation, it is fatal.

Thank God, however, Russia is vast and her villages are counted by the tens of thousands. Great masses of the urban population have taken refuge in them or are scattered far and wide in foreign lands. Let them be patient till this tyranny be past. It must pass in time. It can only kill those parts of Russia subjected to its system, and when that system perishes or is abandoned life will flow back by a thousand rills, and then indeed will be the chance for all the world to help.

Mr. Wells may, turning this way and that in his evident intellectual pain, say to me, What is the immediate remedy? It is extremely simple. Let the Bolsheviki drop communism. Let them leave off enforcing this unnatural system which paralyzes human effort and dries up the springs of enterprise and wealth. Instantly the recovery will begin. But then they would cease to be Bolsheviki. They would cease to be communists. They would become only commonplace criminals who had pillaged an empire and installed themselves amid the ruins of its towns. . . .

We must, at any rate, take care that the people of Great Britain, of France, and of the United States are not left in doubt or ignorance as to the causes and the character of this frightful catastrophe.

WELLS HITS BACK AGAIN

The following excerpts from Mr. Wells's rejoinder to Mr. Churchill appeared in The Sunday Express under the heading "The Anti-Bolshevist Mind."

Mr. Churchill has not even noted that I do not ascribe the present condition of Russia to the blockade. Instead of a reply there were vehement assertions about Russia and about the world generally, exactly the assertions that Mr. Churchill, inattentive to any reality, unteachable by any experience, has been making for the last two years.

He believes quite naively that he belongs to a peculiarly gifted and privileged class of beings to whom, the lives and affairs of common men are given over—the raw material for brilliant careers. It seems to him an act of insolence that a common man like myself should form judgments upon matters of statescraft, should venture to dispute the horrible waste of human life and hope—our lives and hopes and the future of our children—that his frantic anti-Russian policy sustains. * * *

Although these Bolsheviki were men of obscure origin they at once set about killing people with a freedom that had hitherto been reserved for their betters. How many they killed is still very much in dispute. Mr. Churchill would fasten upon them the responsibility of a deathroll but little inferior to that of Gallipoli. They ruined Russia which Mr. Churchill would have us believe was a smiling land of order and plenty in 1917, and they began a sinister but insidious world propaganda which will inevitably destroy all the happy freedoms of the present time unless we devote our whole energies to their overthrow. * * *

While Mr. Churchill seems to be praising this great civilisation in which we live, he is really denying that it is a civilisation at all. For were it so it would surely have inherent in it a wider and finer future. It would involve developing forces of education and organisation, and a power of resistance against error and passion. It would be capable of sane adjustments against war and a proper economy of its resources and energy. It would have no more fear of a little body of impecunious foreign fanatics in insecure control of a bankrupt country than a young lion would have of a mouse. It is just because Mr. Churchill does not really believe in the civilising forces of the world, and because I do, that he is for stampeding us all into this anti-Bolshevist crusade, and I am for dealing with this very limited and human gang in control of Russia just as we deal with Mr. Churchill's gang and every other form of mischievous or incompetent public activity—patiently, with a steady pressure toward saner things.

I have tried to show the Bolsheviki as I saw them, creatures like ourselves, each one both good and bad, muddled, in a tangle of amazing difficulties. I have sought to draw them to scale, Mrs. Sheridan's frank and amusing diary confirms that story of entirely human beings up to the hilt. But Mr. Churchill will not have that truth. He exalts the Bolsheviki. He make much of them. He magnifies them to terrific proportions. What vain men there are among them will like Mr. Churchill's account of them much more than they will like mine. Mr. Churchill makes them the leading fact in the whole world, the negative rulers of us all, the "World Cancer." All our lives are to be dictated by what the Bolsheviki say and do. Everything else is to be subordinated to that one supreme antagonism. Bolshevism is to be treated as the male force in human affairs, and our civilisation, with no creative plans or powers of its own, is to behave like a nagging, irreconcilable wife. Not for us the manly, "We will." For us the squealing Churchillian "They shan't."

Why is Mr. Churchill making this tremendous fuss about Bolshevism?

It would be interesting to hear some competent psychoanalyst on Mr. Churchill and to trace the forces that have made him, as he undoubtedly is, the anti-Bolshevist leader in Europe. But even an amateur may make a few observations upon his mentality. * * *

Mr. Churchill is incapable of facing the facts of Bolshevism in cold blood; his heat is clear evidence to the discerning of his subconscious struggle; directly he approaches the topic he begins to orate and gesticulate and "work himself up." At any cost, the truth must be shouted aside. Bolshevism the "World Cancer," is a necessary thing to him. In a fantastic "struggle" against it lies his one hope of escape from the hard constructive work, the discipline and self-abnegation that lies before us all. If he can only keep a fight going with this imaginary Bolshevism, then there will be neither money nor energy for increased education, for improved public health, for any organisation of social order beyond the scrambling competition of the present time. The world will be kept unsafe for adventurers. And it does not enter into the Churchill philosophy to care in the least that it will be a sinking and disintegrating world.

But what a pitiful and dreary project this is—to be an Anti! To have no faith of your own, no plan of your own, to build nothing, to cultivate nothing, but to devote your life to ranting denunciation and to thwarting and overthrowing the efforts of other men! As a program! As a caseer! What a spectacle of utter bankruptcy, moral and intellectual, does not Mr. Churchill display! What a prospect he opens before us, of the more and more ragged levies of bankrupt Europe wasting themselves in the desolations of the East! War and war and more war, until the schools are ruined and empty, the factories idle, the towns half desert. But we shall still be saving one precious thing—Freedom, Mr. Churchill's freedom, that is to say—to try one more gamble.

It has been my lot to hear and read much anti-Bolshevism during the last few weeks, because the mere attempt to give even so unflattering a portrait of the Bolshevik as I have done, without the customary expressions of abuse, is enough to raise the typical followers of Mr. Churchill to a frenzy. * * *

One turns the heap over. You find in a little while, after a page or so or a column or so, that the black and horrible Bolshevik is dropping out of the discourse. And other things begin to appear. Denunciations of the education of common people, denunciations of public housing, denunciations of any public care for health. There is such a thing as a real hatred of human welfare. These people betray it. The idea of every one being decently cared for seems in many cases to wound a secret satisfaction. And their indignation sweeps around, almost unaware, upon those who would restrain the currency speculator, who would check gambling with common necessities, who would question a man's misuse of his wealth. "Freedom" they cry, but their "Freedom" has a raucous voice, and it clutches, much that does not belong to Freedom at all in its hands. You need but to listen attentively, and you will hear the voice of the money rigger, the forestaller, the knowing watcher of the tape, the sweater and filcher, the smug owner of unearned advantages, the self-indulgent prosperous, breaking through the deep anti-Bolshevisit roar. * * *

Not in a day, not without blood and toil and passion, as a new order brought into the world. But the growth of human sanity and understanding has been a strong and steadfast growth. The history of the past century and a half has been a history of broken and discarded egotists; one adventurer is swept to St. Helena, another to Camden, another to Amerongen. We are getting the spirit of adventure under control.

The dogmas of the Bolshevik and the screams of the anti-Bolshevik are alike incidental inconveniences. The class war is, after all, as "anti" a thing as any. Bolshevik and anti-Bolshevik are but left and right of the same thing, two divergent expressions of impatient, undisciplined, and unenlightened minds. There is no despair of this present world for those who take long views, but the impatient and egotistical mind makes its own hell. And, unhappily, opens it to others. Sane men can face the truth about present-day things gravely and with a good heart, and go about their work without haste and without delay. Much is being learned, much that is hopeful is increases.

south Germany for obvious reasons.

For the German government, then, the situation is extraordinarily difficult. It lacks the power to coerce Bavaria, and if it should obtain power, to use it would merely mean to provoke Bavarian secession. But if the Government fails to act then the labor elements, notably the miners of the Ruhr, may take the matter into their own hands and by strike seek to coerce Bavaria. The danger here is that such a strike might easily get out of hand and lead to a new revolution, to a real civil war between the reactionary and republican elements in the Reich.

RUHR COAL REGION CRUX FOR BAVARIA AND FRANCE

Finally, there is always France. If Bavaria stands armed, France has the right to call upon her allies to act, and that means in reality the occupation of more German territory by French troops. But exactly in the same way, if the Ruhr miners undertake by strike to coerce Bavaria, the French will not receive their allowance of coal assured them by the treaty of peace and they will again have a just cause for action, and action always means the occupation of German territory and presumably the occupation of the Ruhr coal basin, which would involve the whole of German industrial life and might mean its permanent paralysis.

As for the British their position is not easy. The majority of the British public seems to desire the resumption of trade relations with Germany. Owing to the lack of markets for British manufacturers England is suffering from a very dangerous epidemic of unemployment. More than a million men are out of work and the single chance of putting them back to work must lie in reopening the old Continental markets, where British products were sold before the war.

In reality the question of British recovery from the war seems to come down to the problem of reopening the Russian and German markets and particularly the German. But a new French occupation of German territory, a new German domestic disturbance, a civil war in Germany, any of these things would postpone to an unknown date the restoration of the German market and would thus prolong the evil situation in the British Isles.

Thus the Lloyd George Cabinet has been under pressure all the time to exert its influence to compel the French to permit the economic restoration of Germany and to oppose French policies in Russia and Germany both. The fact that Germany's course menaces French security does not much affect the average British laboring man, as contrasted with the statesman, he does not care about that. Nor does he recognise that Britain obtained security by the destruction of the German navy, but France has yet to obtain equal security. These are too involved considerations matters which weigh with statesmen but not with the general public and matters which it is exceedingly hard for statesmen to make clear to their constituencies.

NECESSITY OF INDUSTRIAL RECOVERY AND BRITAIN

As a consequence the George Ministry has all along been in the difficult position of striving to moderate French activities and at the same time to preserve Anglo-French solidarity in the presence of domestic protest prompted by an unsympathetic and selfish view of French conditions. The difficulty, so far from being abolished, remains patent at the present moment. In point of fact the British Government has not the smallest excuse for refusing to support the French if they choose to act because of German violations of the Spa agreement. But, on the other hand, such French action would certainly arouse British protest and would probably postpone British industrial recovery at home.

Such are the more obvious circumstances in the present situation. But one has now to reckon with the reactions of the opinions in the three nations upon each other. Thus the French are at the moment roused alike by the recent expedition of German Ministers into the occupied districts, which was marked by outrageous speeches on their part calculated to rouse the people of these regions against the French troops and promote dangerous resistances and by the belief that German failures to comply with the treaty of Versailles are due to the belief that Great Britain will compel France to agree to modifications of these terms. Both of these circumstances tend to make the French more insistent upon action than they might otherwise be.

The Germans on their side do frankly expect to obtain from the British assistance which will enable them to escape from the worst of the Versailles provisions. Quite stupidly, however, they fail to distinguish between economic and military terms or to recognise that in the last analysis the British must and will support the French on military issues, whatever stand they may take upon industrial questions. This is demonstrated by the present crisis, in which the British course has so far been so correct as to silence French criticism.

When all is said and done, however, the present crisis is most important when viewed in its relation to two great events which are to be expected in the present year, namely the fixing of the total amount of German reparations and the holding of the plebiscite to decide the permanent allocation of the Upper Silesian district, which is disputed by the Poles and the Germans. In both cases the Germans are obviously maneuvering with the hope that they can by using the military question obtain concessions in the economic field, for the Silesian question is economic quite as much as political and the loss of the district will totally change Germany's rank as an industrial nation.

But the question of reparations is even more vital. France stands squarely on the ground that the Treaty of Versailles was a contract, signed as such by all nations represented at Versailles and binding upon all nations which have ratified it. To France it represents the minimum of justice and the lowest possible estimate of conditions essential to the solvency and safety of France. In the last two years France has spent 25,000,000,000 francs in restoring the devastated regions and this vast expenditure has by no means completed or even half completed the work. So far she has received not a single franc from Germany, nor is there any immediate prospect of any such payment as is essential.

When it comes to fixing the sum of German reparations France means to insist upon the naming of a sum which will cover her reintegration, but this sum will mean a total larger than British and even American experts now believe Germany can pay—and France is entitled to no more than half of the total German payment. Thus while the British and American experts would be inclined to fix the German capacity to pay at $15,000,000,000, France cannot take less than this same sum without transfering to the backs of her own citizens burdens which properly belong on German shoulders. And no French Government could last an hour which acquiesced in such a transfer.

FRENCH MUST STAND SQUARELY ON TREATY

French insistence now upon the letter of the Treaty of Versailles and the text of the Spa agreement is as much to be traced to French policy in the matter of reparations as to French apprehension over Bavarian actions at the present hour. To consent to amendments to the treaty in the pending case and over the military terms, would establish precedent for modification of the economic terms. To avoid this France stands squarely upon the letter of the law in both instances. And this is what the French people demand that the Government shall do.

The strength of the French position, as even Mr. Keynes recognised, lies in the fact that the law is with France. Germany agreed in the treaty to do certain things and the allies of France agreed with her that Germany should, if necessary, be compelled to do these things. The weakness of the French position lies in the fact that certain writers, like Keynes, have obtained wide credence in English speaking countries for the idea that Germany cannot comply with the terms of the treaty, and that this argument appeals to the selfish interests, particularly in Great Britain, which are concerned, not with French problems but British.

The British, or a considerable fraction of the British public, believe that German recovery is prevented by French unreasonableness, by French political aspirations, by a combination of militarism and financial blunders. They also believe that British recovery is retarded by the protraction of chaos in Germany and they feel bitterly toward the French in consequence, and strive to compel their own Government to remove the French obstacle.

But French public opinion quite as frankly views British effort to restore Germany for economic reasons with disapproval and suspicion, and absolutely refuses to permit the Government to yield, either in military or economic conditions. What arrives is a sort of deadlock which is fatal to the desires and interests of both the British and the French, encourages the Germans to resist, but, in the end exposes them to the consequences of their resistance, as in the case of the occupation of Frankfort last summer.

No one can quite describe the situation in Germany today with convincing accuracy. The French believe that the Germans are striving to prepare a revanche, they see in German actions many indications, they are able to collect much evidence to prove that the old order, the old ideas, the old aspirations survive and will prevail. The Frenchman, in fact, sees in the present Germany precisely the things which were so dangerous for him in the Germany of 1914, or for that in matter in the Germany of 1870. And it is not possible to prove that the Frenchman may not be right. Moreover, it is for him a question of life and death, so his apprehensions are not surprising.

TO DIVIDE HER ENEMIES AS GERMANY'S POLICY

As for the Englishmen, he sees Germany crushed, her fleet gone, her power for resistance in contemporary time abolished. He believes that if she can get to work the dangers for the future will be small. But he also recognises for Britain the advantage if Germany does get to work, and his judgment, like the Frenchman's, is manifestly influenced by his own personal stake in the situation. He thinks that the Frenchman's failure to see the German situation as he sees it is due to French hatred of Germany and to what he regards as French Chauvinism. The Frenchman regards the Englishman's failure to see eye for eye with him as proof of the Englishman's betrayal of him for the profits to be realised in German trade.

As for the German, he reasons that this difference between the Frenchman and the Englishman will in the end lead to British intervention on behalf of Germany and thus enable Germany to escape payment and disarmament. To this cause must be attributed not a few German failures to comply with the peace terms. Yet this German conclusion is fundamentally inaccurate, because the Englishmen is bound to support the Frenchman in the end whenever the question of disarmament is raised, and the French can prove German bad faith, while in the economic field France always holds the power to crush Germany.

This latter circumstance is too little appreciated by the people on this side of the water, although recognised in Europe. Foch and Petain in the recent dispute over the shortening of the period of service in the French army pretty satisfactorily proved that France today can dispose of Germany with relative ease. Germany is not as completely disarmed as she should be under the Treaty of Versailles, but she could not now resist French military strength, particularly since the French hold the Rhine bridgeheads from Mayence to Switzerland.

Thus, if Germany refuses to comply with the terms of the Treaty of Versailles, if the failure is complete and unquestioned, even if the allies of France do not join her, France has the necessary power to coerce Germany. Not only that, but the whole public sentiment of France would support the Government in such a case, for all France feels with equal intensity that Germany must pay and disarm. And there is no power in the world which in the last analysis could interfere effectively. For France alone remains a great military Power. Most Germans perceive this, and that is why Germany has, in most instances, capitulated, once she has been sure France would act and that neither the British nor the Americans would interpose.

The Bavarian dispute, however, raised a new issue, for German unity is involved and the attempt of the German Government to exert force and to coerce Bavaria might lead to Bavarian secession. If that came France might be expected to support, rather than to attack Bavaria, since French policy would welcome the restoration of the old separation between north and south Germany. Thus to carry out the Treaty of Versailles and to compel Bavaria to conform to French demands might end by serving French purposes and shattering German unity.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE IN ACCORD ON PRINCIPAL ISSUES

In reality the present crisis does not seem as acute as that of last summer, because there is much more community of action on the part of the British and the French. The French are so far proceeding methodically, establishing their case, while the British are recognising the fact that they are bound by their own promises if France proves her case. Still there is an unmistakable feeling in Great Britain that the French are exaggerating the extent of the peril and there will doubtless be protest and angry criticism if France compels military action.

But there are at least hints that France is not much interested now in forcing action as in establishing in principle the inviolability of the Treaty of Versailles with a clear eye upon the reparations negotiations which are coming shortly. The French feel that the Germans are trying to wring economic concessions by advancing and then withdrawing the disarmament issue, and they are seeking to block this maneuver. They are also concerned with the fact that the Spa agreement as to coal deliveries has expired and the Germans have failed to accept a new agreement, much more advantageous to France.

In sum, the present German crisis represents a chronic rather than an acute trouble, but it contains all the elements which might, combined, lead to a new and very disturbing situation, in which another German revolution is only the worst of many evil possibilities. It emphasises, too, the fact that at the beginning of the third year of theoretical peace very little is really settled in the German question, while, of course, the same is to be said of both the Russian and Eastern questions.

BEAVER BOARD
FOR BETTER WALLS & CEILINGS

Solid Comfort, Hot or Cold

YOU can't expect Beaver Board results unless this trade-mark is on the back of the board you buy.

Within Beaver Board walls and ceilings there's solid comfort. The closely-meshed pure spruce fibre of this good lumber product resists heat, cold and sound better than lath and plaster or other wall building materials.

You don't have to depend on outside labor for building Beaver Board walls and ceilings. Beaver Board is quickly nailed to the studding of new buildings or partitions or directly over old cracked plaster and dingy wall paper.

Beaver Board has endless uses about the farm. It's just the thing to line your work shop and it's even better for the building of a beautiful new room in some waste space in the house.

In a new booklet, "Building More Comfort into the Farm Home," you'll find many suggestions. It's free, together with an actual piece of Beaver Board, if you ask us.

HUGE EXPENSES OF LEAGUE WORRY FRENCH WRITERS

Staggering Salaries Compared With Poor Ones Of War Heroes

DEEP CUTS DEMANDED

Germany's Ability To Pay Cannot Be Stretched Too Far, Is Warning

Paris, Dec. 16.—That the French press is beginning to realize the burden of the League of Nations, at least from the financial point of view, is shown in a recent article by M. Raymond Recouly in the Paris Figaro wherein he reviews in his customary brilliance of style the ease with which international diplomatists of the League of Nations waste the public's money. His views will undoubtedly coincide with the opinion of many Americans who have taken the time to study the league's organisation from the standpoint of its annual cost. M. Rocouly said:

"We have often protested against the waste of public money and the orgy of spending which is raging in the majority of ministries and administrations. These disastrous habits are a legacy of the war. But the war, were it not an excuse, might even be invoked as an extenuating circumstance were it not for the fact that the war has been finished for more than two years. Nevertheless the waste continues.

"A very remarkable report by M. Noblemaire regarding the expenditures of the League of Nations has given us a few figures which are specially impressive and which surely merit the closest attention of the public.

A COSTLY INSTITUTION

"One might say of the League of Nations as Æsop said of the tongue that it is capable of much good just as it is capable of much evil. Its gravest fault lies in the fact that it, for many questions, is too closely interwoven with the treaty of Versailles. The realisation of peace was one thing; the construction of a league of peoples was another. The first was born of the past and present; the second, above all concerns the future. Reason and common sense urge us not to confound the two. But that was the great idea, the whim of President Wilson; England, finding material advantages in it, sustained it with all her force and secured its adoption.

"Beneficent or otherwise, the League of Natons is going to be, in any case, a most costly institution. Judge for yourself! It has at its head a secretary-general, Sir Eric Drummond, who receives £10,000 a year, which under present exchange is not far from 600,000 francs. No ambassador, not even of the richest country in the world in the most expensive capital of the world attains anywhere near a salary so royal. Let us note, by the way, that one of the articles of the pact stipulates that the aforesaid secretary-general shall be elected periodically by the league. This article up to the present has been absolutely disregarded. It is to be hoped that it will be applied shortly. For if these high salaries are to be maintained—and we ardently hope to the contrary—it is better that a certain rotation should be established in order that such manna, in comparison with which that of Moses was indeed worthless does not fall forever on the same heads.

MANY FANCY SALARIES

"Then come two under secretaries-general, each receiving £4,000, or more than 200,000 francs; then another under secretary acting, on occasions, as secretary-general. This one, one of our compatriots, M. Jean Mounet, is paid £5,000, or nearly 300,000 francs. I have not the honor of M. Jean Mounet's acquaintance. I am convinced that he is a most distinguished gentleman, whose merits cannot be small, judging by the manner in which they are compensated. But neither his distinction nor his merits would be in the least diminished if his salary were reduced by half; if he agreed to earn but 150,000 francs a year, or as much, as the best paid of our ambassadors and two and a half times as much as our ministers.

"Following this we find six directors who are paid 100,000 to 150,000 francs; among these there are two of our compatriots, one of whom, before the war, was a journalist, the other a college professor.

"After the General Staff come forty-eight members of various commissions—political, administrative, judicial—with average salaries of from £1,000 to £1,500; then a host of more humble personages who receive from £500 to £1,000.

"We have in France three Marshals whose names and glory will dominate history, who by their military genius have saved our country and civilisation. Well, there is not the humblest scribe of the League of Nations whose salary is not as high as those of these illustrious soldiers.

"I have reserved for the climax the International Labor Bureau, which is a dependence of the league. At its head, and dominating by far all the rest, is its director, M. Albert Thomas, with a salary of £6,000—more than 300,000 francs. When M. Albert Thomas, the Socialists Deputy, works, you can see that it is not for nothing!

NEED OF SERIOUS REVISION

"All these salaries, the last more than the rest, are veritably scandalous. It is costing our budget (and France is only one of the twenty odd participating nations) the round sum of three billions a year. In addition they have advised us that this contribution will be insufficient and that it will have to be increased.

"Objection may be made that the bad condition of our exchange gives a momentary over-valuation to these emoluments. But our franc, alas, everything makes us fear, will require a long time to recover and even if the accounting is not made in pounds sterling the majority of these salaries demand a very serious revision.

"The same remark might be made concerning the Commission of Reparations. Each of these delegates, paid in gold marks, receives somewhat more than half a million per year, which is really something. The French representatives, it is only just to remember, have protested against the immensity of these figures. Their protest only served to reduce by 25 percent the indemnities of French functionaries, the others, English, Italians, Americans, all have kept to their accounting. Recently, I am informed, a reduction was consented to, nevertheless, and the delegates instead of 500,000 francs will only have 400,000 hereafter. Let us pity with all our heart these poor fellows! The above mentioned commission meanwhile refuses with a ferocious energy to communicate the slightest information regarding its budget to any one, and above all regarding its various expenses, which are said to be enormous. It operates and above all it receives its salary 'in the darkest secrecy.'

WHERE GERMANY WILL GAIN

The various commissions, civil and military, which assure the execution of the treaty by Germany also cost dearly, all too dearly. A mere Colonel is paid much more than any of our Ministers Plenipotentiary in a foreign capital. Yet it is evident that the expenses of the former can be in no manner comparable to those of the latter.

"What does it matter, you'll say since it is Germany who pays? On the contrary, it matters a great deal. The capacity of Germany to pay is not limitless. Far from it. That which she gives to us from one direction you may be sure she will not repay from elsewhere. Be careful lest, like in the fable by La Fontaine, the collectors, agents and administrators do not eat everything and, once their appetite satisfied, nothing remains—but the scales.

"The German Government, instead of finding the expenses of control excessive even urges us on to greater expenditures. When the commission of Reparations in the days immediately following the signing of the treaty asked her to pay over to the Bank of France some 25,000,000 marks gold for the operation of the various services of control, Germany, which usually makes an effort to shift responsibility, complied for once within twenty-four hours.

"It was merely because she had a very visible interest in letting this expense account inflate beyond measure. When it appears large enough she'll turn to us, to the Allies and the neutrals and will tell us:

"'There's the impressive total of the sums I have already paid to you. I regret very much, but my resources are entirely exhausted. We are "quits" because I have nothing more left' "

FRANCE TO EMPLOY ARMY OF THE IDLE

Thousands Will Be Put To Work Tearing Down Useless Fortifications

In an effort to solve the increasing problem of idleness in all parts of the country the French Government is studying a new program of public work which will give employment to at least 60 percent of the 150,000 persons who are said to be without work, especially in the industrial regions of north and central France.

Until the foreign markets have been opened to greater exportations nothing much can be done in the metal industries, which are probably the hardest hit, but it is understood that the State will offer to pay the expenses of those out of employment as far as Paris, where they will be assigned to the destruction of useless fortifications the work on which was discontinued last year.

In the textile industries different methods of relief have been devised. The French Government has millions of yards cloth suitable for women's garments on hand besides vast quantities of raw stuffs. The factories being over-stocked with materials required for ordinary consumption have shut down. But now the State will take a hand and assign the idle machines to the discharged employees for the making of garments from the heavier military cloths. These garments while useless to Parisians can be sold at cost to the natives of the French colonies as well as to the poor families in Central Europe and the Near East.

So far it is not intended to interfere with the employment of tens of thousands of foreigners who have remained in France since the armistice, but if the present program proves inadequate to meet the situation it is likely that the foreigners will be subjected to more rigid supervision, and perhaps will even be forced to face the alternative of working in definite areas at such projects as rebuilding the invaded regions or leaving the country until labor conditions become more settled.

POLAND FACING HARD WINTER; HAS NO FUEL

Warsaw, Jan. 30.—The prospect of the approaching Winter is a dark one for Poland on account of the shortage of fuel added to the lack of food, clothing and shoes.

In other years fuel provision for the Winter was usually made by mid-Summer, great quantities of wood being hauled into the cities from the country districts. This year the Bolshevik invasion stopped all such preparations for the Winter. Wood was neither cut nor hauled.

The advance of the Reds across the eastern half of Poland scattered the woodmen, along with all the other inhabitants of the invaded territories, and confiscated their horses and wagons. As a consequence, the country faces a fuel shortage that threatens disease and death to thousands through exposure.

The coal situation is even worse. Added to the falling off of production in the mines has been the almost total crippling of the Polish railway systems by the war. Even the limited amount of coal that has been mined cannot be transported because of the shortage of engines and rolling stock. This same crippling of transportation likewise greatly retards the bringing of relief to the starving people of Poland's crowded cities and devastated areas.

WAS 'HOLDING' $2,000 VIOLIN

Kansas City, Jan. 30.—While the diplomats of the Old World at Geneva are demonstrating to the world that kindness may be all right in its place—but that place isn't politics—William H. Evans has discovered, too, that kindness sometimes leads to grief.

Evans learned to his sorrow in court here that the punishment for stealing a violin valued at $2,000 included two years' imprisonment in the State penitentiary.

Evans, while confessing in court that he stole the violin, stated confidentially that he merely had held it for a passerby when he was accosted on the street by a stranger who asked him to "hold it a couple of minutes."

Evans was arrested for the alleged theft of a bulldog when he was found with the violin under his arm. He said that the bulldog had rushed at him and bit him and when he patted the dog on the head it took a fancy to him and followed him about town. Unable to give the dog as good a home as it had been used to Evans said he pawned the dog for $5.

U.S. OBJECTION HALTS RELEASE OF CUSTOM FUND

Legation Does Not Want Consent To Be Taken As Recognition Of South

(Staff Correspondence)

Peking, Feb. 18.—In regard to the request of the Canton government for the release of the southern portion of the Customs surplus now withheld from payment, and which had already accrued to the sum of two million six-hundred thousand Taels by January 1, the diplomatic corps is reported to have given favorable consideration to the suggestion for release upon the condition that the money be used for "constructive" purposes only. This attitude on the part of the Diplomatic Corps was communicated by the American Minister to his State Department, but an immediate reply was received to the effect that, as the State Department considers the release of these funds to the Canton leaders as constituting recognition of the new Canton government, the United States feels compelled to withhold its consent to the proposed release of the funds.

The Southern government, through Mr. Quo Tai-chi, who has returned to Peking, is submitting a second memorial to the Legations which is calculated to reply to the objections raised by the American State Department. This memorial points out the inconsistency of withholding from the same leaders the funds granted to them previous to the interim when the Kwangsi militarists held control over Canton, and maintains that the release of such funds at the present time would no more constitute recognition than previously, when none of the powers recognised the autonomy or suzerainty of the southern government. Since the southern provinces assist in the contribution of these funds, they should rightfully enjoy the use of a proportionate share thereof, state the memorandum.

The squabble over the jurisdiction of customs houses in the territory claimed by the Canton government has been satisfactorily concluded, states Mr. Quo, by the notification issued by Sir Francis Aglen, Director-General of Customs, to all customs houses, to the effect that they are to submit to the jurisdiction of the local authorities of the district wherein they are located. This gives the Canton government the undisputed privilege of running up its flag over the customs stations in the south, but, of course, allows it no liberty to tamper with the revenues of the stations, which must pass to the Director-General in Peking in the ordinary way.

The Canton leaders feel that the question of sharing in future customs surpluses is not of great financial importance, since the fall in silver threatens to eat up surpluses altogether. They are, however, anxious to secure the Tls. 2,660,000 which has already accrued to the account of the south

Chang Tsung-chang Reaches Capital

(Reuter Pacific Service)

Peking, Feb. 17.—Chang Tsung-chang arrived in Peking on Tuesday. Chen Kuang-yuan, the Tuchun of Kiangsi, had previously telegraphed, asking for Chang's punishment for robbing the people of that Province.

Southern Troops Severely Beaten, Leaders Arrested

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, Feb. 18, 1921.—Complete victory over southern attackers from the Western Hupeh front has been reported from Tuchun Wang Chuan-yuan's troops that were despatched to recapture the lost districts. The southern leaders and commanders have either escaped to western Hunan or been arrested by provincial troops, and many of the southerners have surrendered themselves to Tuchun Wang's army.

Altogether seven districts have been recaptured from the hands of southerners — Shuenen, Laifeng, Hsienfung, Licheun, Wufung, Ensze and Kienshih. Magistrates for these recovered districts have been appointed by the governors to control them.

A great and most difficult part of the work, however, has to be attributed to the people's volunteers composed of farmers and common people of these districts. The recapturing of three of the above seven hsien was brought about not by provincial government forces, but by the steady volunteer fighters.

General Wang Chuan-yuan is much pleased with the splendid work done by the volunteers, and has sent words of appreciation. Again he has ordered his troops to preserve the volunteer organisation, which, he stated, should prove valuable help to government in maintaining local order there.

Big Auction Of War Art To Aid Orphans

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Jan. 16 (by mail).—A great collection of material relating to the World War, said to be the most remarkable ever brought together, will be exhibited in the American art galleries beginning on Washington's birthday and afterward will be sold at auction, the entire proceeds to be given to the fatherless children of France, an organisation of which Marshal Joffre is president.

The value of the collection is placed at many thousands of dollars.

Statesmen of world-wide fame, whose names are familiar to almost every person in the United States, have contributed to this assembly their autographs or signed photographs, as have also practically all the political, military and naval executives of the Allied nations in the war.

Moscow Suggests Trade Pact Change

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 17.—In answer to a question in the House of Commons today, Mr. Lloyd George said that Moscow replied on February 5, proposing certain amendments to the British proposal for an economic agreement. The Government were considering these amendments.

He added that M. Krassin was expected in London shortly.

CIVIC LEAGUE MEETING

A public meeting, under the auspices of the Shanghai Civic League, will be held on Friday, February 25, at 5:30 p.m. in Grace Church, North Szechuen Road (opposite the North Szechuen Road Police Station).

Addresses will be delivered by Mr. I. Mason, Dr. Darroch, D.D., and others, on the subject "The Extension of the Franchise to Ratepayers living outside Settlement limits."

Mr. A. J. Hughes will be in the chair.

POPPY GROWERS STRIKE A SNAG

Official Orders Plants Uprooted—And Didn't Have His Fingers Crossed

(Staff Correspondence)

Hinghwa, Fukien, Feb. 12.—The officials of Putien County, Fukien, have decided to take a positive attitude towards poppy planting. The big harvest of last year is not to be repeated this year. An energetic Major by the name of Li has recently been stationed at Hinghwa. He sent out proclamations that all poppy must be uprooted immediately. The poppy growers merely took this as an announcement that the poppy tax would be demanded at no distant date so kept on cultivating their fields of poppy. To their great surprise the proclamation was followed by the appearance of troops.

They took up their station in "Eastern Mountain" village, the very heart of the poppy growing region. This village has for several years refused to be governed by the local officials. However when several companies of soldiers camped in their midst they began to suspicion that they had a new problem facing them.

PLANTS UPROOTED

Some of the villagers, realising that the soldiers were not to be bought off with the usual tax this time proceeded to dig up their poppy. One large clan refused. The soldiers surrounded the clan house. The men fired upon the soldiers who promptly returned it. After half an hour firing the villagers surrendered having lost six or seven of their number. All the poppy was destroyed. For the one village of "Eastern Mountain" alone the crop amounted to several thousand mow. At this date there is no poppy left in Putien County.

However, Sienyu County, adjoining, is different. Although Cheng Chiu-ming agreed to turn it over to Governor Li upon the eve of his expedition against Canton yet the Northern soldiers have not been able as yet to take it over. The difficulty is that it is over-run by thousands of bandits who style themselves Southerns. The question of placating them or buying them off has not yet been solved by Governor Li. To attempt to do it by force of arms is a job that the military does not relish. The County is one of mountain retreats suitable for the operations of bandits.

CROP IS ENORMOUS

The poppy crop in Sienyu County is an enormous one. It has reached the stage where it is about ready for tapping. The officials of Sienyu county levy a regular tax upon poppy. The crude opium from this region is taken by "underground roadway" to Foochow. It is carried through the mountains to certain points where Foochow dealers meet the carriers and take possession of the opium. Although opium is cheap compared with former years yet at this cheap price it is worth more than twice its weight in silver. A coolie carrying forty pounds of opium is met by the dealer and carries back more than eighty pounds of silver dollars Such a traffic has been carried on between Sienyu and Foochow for several years now and from all indications will be continued through another year.

Farther west in Yungchun County the climate is not so favorable to poppy growing yet the civil magistrate has used many means to force to farmers to plant. The farmers do not want to plant as it is not a paying crop in that region.

NATION BACK OF FAMINE DRIVE

Organisation Completed For Intensive Campaign For Funds

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Feb. 18.—Simultaneous with the completion yesterday of details for direction of the National Famine Relief Drive funds in Peking, dispatches received by the special drive committee that all China is uniting under the campaign standard. Provincial boundary lines are disappearing for the moment and the provinces are falling into line.

Tan Ho-ming, military governor, and Li Ching-cheng, civil governor of Kwangsi have telegraphed that the drive is uppermost in the minds of the provincial leaders, that $10,000 has already been raised but that this amount is merely a leaven which is counted on to bring in a large fund.

R. R. Galley who has been in Tsinanfu and Nanking as representative of the Peking special committee wrote that the Tsinanfu committee is enthusiastic and that many who have given heavily to various relief funds are going to make the final effort their strongest. Chinese leaders throughout the district are taking the lead in the campaign.

The Nanking committee is whipping its plan into shape and solicitation is already under way.

The system adopted for collection of funds has been made as simple as is consistent with efficient handling of the funds. The donations are to be made payable to "National Famine Relief Drive." Receipts will be issued in triplicate. One will be retained by the donor, one by the bank receiving the gift and one by the special treasury committee.

The following banks have agreed to become official repositories and will accept all donations: Bank of Communications; Bank of China; Exchange Bank of China; Sino-Italian Bank; Chinese American Bank of Commerce; Hongkong and Shanghai Bank; Bank Industrielle de Chine; International Banking Corporation; Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China; Russo-Asiatic Bank; Banque Belge pour l'Etranger; Asia Banking Corporation and the Yokohama Specie Bank.

The funds when finally collected are to be expended under the direction of the United International Famine Relief Committee.

AMERICANS FRET UNDER JAP RULE

Refuse To Concede Mikado's Soldiers Have Right To Govern Vladivostok

Tokio, Feb. 14.—Refusal of Americans in Vladivostok to recognise the right of Japanese Army troops to police that city is fast developing into a serious situation, says the Asahi.

According to the Asahi, the attitude of the Americans is based on the fact that last April the United States did not accept "the proposal of the Diplomatic Corps to entrust the Japanese Army with police authority for the protection of American residents in Vladivostok. During last April and soon after the change of Government in the Russian city," continues the Tokio journal, "the foreign Consuls, including the Japanese, British, Italian, French, Chinese and American, frequently met in conference to discuss ways of meeting the impending dangerous situation in the city, when it was decided that the Japanese Army should take charge of the police authority of Vladivostok.

"At that time, Mr. John Kenneth Caldwell, then American Consul in Vladivostok but now stationed in Kobe, although attending most of the meetings, was absent from the final session when the decision was reached without the assent or signature of the American Consul."

The Asahi then upholds the right of Japanese troops to challenge any person in the city to safeguard its peace and order, since they were so "entrusted by the Diplomatic Corps with the exception of the American representative."

"It is very difficult," concludes the Asahi, "for the Japanese soldiers to distinguish even in the daytime between Americans and Englishmen or other Europeans."

According to the Kokumin, which also discusses the case, a strong protest against Japanese police authority in Vladivostok is to be presented to the Government in Tokio. "The case is regarded here as serious," adds the Kokumin, "as it is anticipated that it will grow into an international problem."

How to Tell if you have Kidney Trouble

Does it make you think—when you wake up with a headache and a nasty taste in your mouth?

When you start the day as tired as when you finish?

When you get those stabbing pains in the back?

When your arms and legs ache?

When you feel irritable and depressed?

All these mean kidney troubles, and kidney troubles demand a kidney remedy; not one which affects the bowels, but one that goes straight to the kidneys and bladder.

For all these painful symptoms—and for the most stubborn cases of rheumatism, gout, sciatica, lumbago, gravel, bladder inflammation, and Bright's Disease—there is one sure and safe remedy—De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. Read what others say about them. Mr. Albert Carpenter, of 17, Lambeth-walk, Westminster, S.W., says:—

"My kidneys and bladder were weak from childhood, and time after time I was ill, and often in hospital with rheumatism. In March, 1912, I was in a very critical condition with rheumatic fever, when a small box of De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills was given to my mother. I started taking them, and in two days I could move about again. I continued the treatment, and after six weeks I returned to work, and have continued ever since. I can lift and handle half a hundredweight of metal with ease, and without any traces of my old pains." This letter was written in 1912. Seven years later Mr. Carpenter wrote confirming his previous testimonial. He says: "I have recommended De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills to many people—some of them very bad cases—and I have never known them fail."

If the kidneys are weak or diseased, the waste substances of the body which they should filter from the blood are retained in the system, causing auto-intoxication, or self-poisoning. These poisons, in the form of tiny jagged crystals of uric acid, accumulate in all parts of the body, causing those agonising, tearing, stabbing pains in the back and limbs.

You can only free the body of this poison by promoting the healthy vigorous action of the kidneys and bladder.

This must be done by means of a remedy which will purge them as other remedies purge the bowels, so that they will be able to continue properly their work of passing off the uric acid from the system.

Mr. A. CARPENTER. (from Photo.)

De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills cure all complaints of the kidneys and bladder by removing the cause—the poisonous uric acid—right out of the blood through the bladder. When you see a blue tinge in the urine you know that the healing properties are at work.

De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are a remedy which has stood the test of thousands of chronic cases of kidney trouble. Dissolving in the stomach, their healing ingredients pass right through the kidneys and bladder, exercising a pain-killing, healing, and anti-septic effect.

Remember, if you neglect symptoms of kidney trouble you are running a serious risk. Do you know that Bright's Disease causes thousands of deaths every year?

De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills go straight to the kidneys and bladder. Instead of merely regulating the bowels as most so-called "Kidney pills" do. This is the secret of their marvellous efficacy.

In a recent test out of a hundred bad cases of kidney and bladder trouble, ninety-seven of them were positively cured by De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills. Of the other three, two got so much benefit as to be almost sure of a cure, and in the remaining case the disease had gone too far Perfectly safe, they are an ideal remedy for old and young alike. "A wonderful little pill—worth its weight in gold!" writes a grateful patient.

If your kidneys are healthy, you make a fair bid for general good health and spirits. Many people's lives are made a burden by those tiring, weakening, backache pains, those rheumatic twinges in the limbs, those burning bladder pains, and discomfort, and the irritability and depression that is always a sure sign of kidney and bladder weakness. These symptoms are the forerunners of rheumatism, gout, lumbago, and bladder inflammation, that make life an incessant torture, or the terrible Bright's Disease that causes so many deaths every year. A proper kidney remedy, properly administered, will remove from the system the poisons which cause all this pain and disease, and promote normal good health and outlook.

De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are a remedy which has stood the test

KIDNEY & BLADDER

De Witt's Pills

When you buy the pills, be sure they are De Witt's in the red boxes printed in red and gold, with the red wax seal on the bottle. Give them a fair trial, and prove for yourself what relief they bring. If you would like any further information on this case send a post-card to the makers:—E. C. De Witt and Co. Ltd., Laboratories, E. Croydon, England, mentioning this paper. De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills are sold by Chemists and Storekeepers everywhere in every part of the civilised world. If you have any difficulty in obtaining genuine De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills with the red seal on the cork, write to The Shanghai Dispensary, Foochow Road, Shanghai.

How much Peanut Oil is exported from China and is re-imported as Olive or Salad Oil?

We should hate to tell you, and that's why saddened housewives have to apologise for their salads "not being nice."

GOOD NEWS

Stocks of Ehmann Olive Oil from Oroville, California have now arrived in Shanghai—you know this is the kind that is used at home when a good oil is necessary. It's more expensive, naturally, than the kind which is merely labelled Olive Oil, but that is because Ehmann Olive Oil is Pure Olive Oil.

(and Ehmann backs this with a bond of $1,000 to any Analyst who will prove otherwise.)

Now then, if you are ready with that recipe for the salad you were going to make when you could get a good oil—why the oil is here and waiting for you.

It will come to you in 20-oz sealed bottles, just as it left the orchards, and is that lovely dark green color that's only put there by nature.

BOLSHEVIKI NEAR WARWITHGEORGIA

Lenin May Not Be Able To Prevent Open Hostilities, Washington Advices Say

RED ARMY IS MASSING

Holding Off For The Sake Of Anglo-Soviet Trade Negotiations

Washington, Jan. 24.—Diplomatic dispatches received in Washington today by cable stated that relations between Soviet Russia and Georgia had not only reached an impasse, but the breaking point, and that hostilities between the two States were imminent.'

The situation as described in the cablegrams received today has been growing worse since the first two weeks of December, when the police and constabulary of Georgia rounded up all males who lacked documentary identification or were without visible means of support. The dragnet caught a large number of individauls whose papers indicated that they were Bolshevist agents. The prisoners were taken out into the forests, where they were forced to cut wood for the relief of the fuel famine sufferers.

The Bolshevist regime, in retaliation, arrested Georgian representatives in Baku and Erivan and cut off shipments of oil and other fuel into Georgia. The Bolsheviki demanded further the immediate surrender of three of the ships formerly belonging to Genreal Wrangel's Government in the Crimea, that had sought refuge inside the jurisdiction of Georgian waters. The Bolsheviki also demanded guarantees of the non-molestation by allied destroyers of Russian ships entering Georgian ports. In reply to the semi-ultimatum of the Bolsheviki the Georgian Government refused to release the Bolshevist prisoners on the ground that it had discovered a plot to overthrow the Government, and Bolshevist demands in general were refused.

According to the news received today the situation is the most critical that has so far arisen in the relations between Moscow and Georgia. Previously Nickolai Lenin, who has been able to dominate affairs in the Caucasus from Moscow, has been following a policy of conciliation with Georgia and opposed the invasion of Georgia from Azerbaijan by Bolshevist forces. But the information received today stated that the Eleventh Bolshevist Army was massing on the Azerbaijan frontiers of Georgia and that the Bolshevist military leaders were planning a coup d'etat with local Bolsheviki in Georgia. It had been planned that the Georgian Government should be overthrown early in December, but the project miscarried probably because Lenin himself was understood to be opposed to it through fear of its effect on the Anglo-Soviet negotiations.

Indications now are that Moscow may lose control over the situation and not be able to prevent the invasion of Georgia. Armenan interests in Georgia were turned over to the Soviet Russian Minister on Dec. 14. The Bolsheviki have cut all communications between Georgia and Alexandropol and Kara. The Turkish Nationalists, however, are reported to have guaranteed protection to all Americans in the territories affected and such as are under Kemalist control.

Air Portfolio Not Yet Filled

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 17.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Lloyd George, replying to a question, said no decision had been reached as regards the appointment of a separate Air Minister. Meanwhile, Mr. Churchill would discharge the duties of that office.

Mixed Court Jottings

An unregistered Dane who was refused recognition in the Danish Consular Court, was fined $3 in the Mixed Court before Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Loh Friday for gambling at 607 Woochang Road on the night of February 7. He was arrested, together with two Japanese, a British Indian and 33 Chinese, in a police raid.

S. G. Pinighin, described as assistant manager of the Chinese Eastern Railway and of Russian nationality, was fined $5 by Assessor Hutchison and Magistrate Loh for being drunk and disorderly on the Nanzing Road at 1:45 a.m. Friday. Sub-Inspector McKenzie gave evidence to the effect that the accused had gone to a Japanese restaurant and had created a disturbance because it was too late for him to be served, taking off his coat and showing a disposition to fight everyone in the vicinity when a policeman arrived to eject him. The accused denied assaulting anyone and declared that he was assaulted by the Chinese.

A Mrs. Fanny Grimple, a Russian citizen, who was charged with assault by a Mrs. George, was discharged in the Mixed Court by Assessor Ivanoff and Magistrate Loh when it was shown that the case had been settled in the Russian Court last September. Mr. Lemiere, appearing for the prosecution, said that certain conditions in the agreement to settle the case—including the transmission of a written apology—had not been complied with. Major C. P. Holcomb, appearing for the defendant, produced a certificate of the previous settlement issued by Mr. Ch. Metzler, Russian vice-consul.

A chauffeur was fined $20 for having driven past three cars travelling in the same direction as his own on the Nanking Road.

A Chinese clerk was sentenced to three months' imprisonment for embezzling $692 in collections from the China Vehicle Company.

Yankel Souritz, the Russian arrested in connection with a charge of theft of $400 in notes from Chinese at 92 Tientsin Road on the forenoon of February 7, appeared before Assessor Ivanoff and was required to give bond of $300 to keep the peace for one year. Souritz was arrested on the instance of the Chinese, who sent a man to follow three foreigners alleged to have taken the money. He was taken at 1 Yuhang Road.

Negro Burned At Stake In Georgia

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Feb. 17.—A lynching affair is reported from Athens, in Georgia. A crowd, numbering some 5,000 people, stormed the prison and removed a negro who was being detained on a charge of murdering a white woman. They then burned him at the stake. Some of the crowd gained entrance to the building by climbing on the roof and burning a way to the prisoners cell by the use of blow-torches on the door-locks.

Boats Collide At Sungkiang, Aged Man Is Drowned

(China Press Correspondence)

Sunkiang, Ku., Feb. 18.—A sad affair occurred today on the Whangpoo not far from Sungkiang. Four men were on their way from Soongiung to Sungkiang in a small boat when a Ningpo boat collided with it. The smaller vessel overturned throwing the four men into the water. In an attempt to help the older man of the party, somebody struck him with a pole and before he could be rescued he was dead.

The Ningpo boat did not stop, but keeping up sail and having a favorable wind, it proceeded on its way. At just this time the steam launch running from Shanghai to Pingwoo passed and gave chase. The Ningpo boat had proceeded about 9 li before being overtaken. The boat men were taken in custody and are now held by the police.

The four men were going to Sungkiang to purchase things in preparation for a wedding. The young man who was to get married was also badly hurt on the head. He didn't know how he got hurt.

The man who was killed was about fifty years old, and quite influential in Soongiung. The body was brought home in the evening. It is said that the men of the Ningpo boat will be severely prosecuted.

Christian Colleges Hold Fifth Alumni Banquet

The Fifth Annual Alumni Banquet of the Christian Colleges of China, Friday night at the Great Eastern, set a still higher standard of genuine enjoyment than even last year. It is doubtful if any other city in the world can duplicate such a gathering. There is certainly no other occasion in the Shanghai calendar that can compare with it for spontaneity, good will and genuine fun. Merely for the sake of good fellowship, to renew old friendships and ideals, and to hear a ringing message from one of their own number, 269 graduates and former students of nine different colleges got together for the banquet.

The splendid contribution which McTyeire and St. Mary's Schools have already made and are annually making to the new homes of China was suggested by the song and group repartee which in the girls more than held their own. For the second year, McTyeire and St. Mary's were represented, each by upwards of 30, and this added to an erstwhile stag banquet the necessary delightful touches of feminitity which co-education has furnished for a generation in the West but which China has never had at the banquet table. Incidentally, the occasion gave evidence that 60 future home builders will expect full recognition of equal rights from their husbands.

From 7 o'clock until 8:30 Toastmaster T. H. Li, President of Futan University, was not needed in the program, simply because there was no single moment when song and repartee failed. The only lonesome man in the entire group was Mr. David Z. T. Yui, who was the speaker of the evening, and was separated from his fellow-alumni of St. John's. Other distinguished alumni present included Mr. C. F. Chu, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, Shanghai, (Nanking University), Mr. T. L. Chen, Former Commissioner of Finance and member of Provincial Assembly of Fukien Province, and Dr. Hsu Shih-fang, Captain in the Chinese Navy, both of whom graduated from the Anglo-Chinese College in Foochow.

Mr. David Yui, stirred his hearers deeply by his opening question: "What will the China of 20 or 30 years hence be like?" and suggesting that the answer lay within the power of such as those present. He referred then to the necessity for vocational guidance in the schools, so as to prevent waste of time and opportunity and suggested that the Alumni Association should raise a fund to provide teachers of this kind.

Another pressing need was for a high grade employment bureau, he said, so that those qualified for certain positions could be found for the employers, who now sought in vain for those who were qualified but had not found the right opportunities. If the alumni would give the largest help to the future China, they must keep up their studies, with the same spirit as undergraduate days. But greater than these, or experience or money, is character if the country is to be saved.

"For a generation we have been experimenting with education, abilities, money and other methods," he said, "to what have we attained? China is in sad need of high moral character. Character is simply good habits, and the individual who would help China must be helped himself first. Only by following the leadership of Christ can men surely realise this high ambition."

The musical times of the program were much enjoyed. They were a piano solo by Miss N. M. Pan and a vocal solo by Miss S. T. Mo, both of McTyeire; an instrumental trio by Miss E. L. Tong and Miss Z. Y. Wong of McTyeire and Miss Lydia Ling of St. Mary's, and a chorus by St. Mary's.

NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

Last Pigeon Sent Back With Message Believed To Have Perished

Montreal, Quebec, Jan. 7.—More news of the hardships and the rescue of the three United States Army balloonists who descended on the shores of James Bay after an 800-mile trip from Long Island, was brought here today by S. A. Bradbury, who arrived from the Hudson Bay Company's post at Moose Factory.

Mr. Bradbury said he left the post at Moose Factory, where he is a clerk of the company, the day after the arrival of the three balloonists, Dec. 28, and that being accustomed to travel in virgin territory he was able to make good speed to Mattice, on the Transcontinental, and from there on to this city, where he is remaining for a short sojourn with relatives and friends.

Mr. Bradbury was positive that there is no chance of the three army officers reaching their destination at Rockaway Beach, Long Island, until next Thursday, Jan. 13, at the earliest. The three balloonists, he says, are suffering from their exhausting experiences—physical fatigue, hunger, loss of sleep and general bewilderment. Since reaching Moose Factory they have been in charge of officials of the company, who are giving them a much-needed rest.

Mr. Bradbury said he met the three balloonists shortly after their arrival within the territory of the post.

"They had come upon one of our Indian trappers, Thomas Mark, a Cree, in the woods," said Mr. Bradbury, "and after overcoming his fright—for the three balloonists in their strange and tattered garments appeared like wild and strange men to this Northern Indian—they managed to convince him that they were perfectly friendly and required aid. They had tried first of all to converse with him in English, then in French and finally Lieutenant L. A. Kloor, who was the spokesman of the party and who had managed to outrun the Indian, conveyed to his mind that it was food, rest and sleep that they wanted and a return to something approaching civilisation.

INDIAN GAVE FIRST AID

"The Indian, when convinced of the friendly intentions of the strange men, decided that the only thing to do was to bring them to the Hudson Bay post at Moose Factory. He brought them first of all, however, to his own home on the outskirts of the post domain, where their wild appearance almost sent the squaw into a panic. She was dispatched by her partner to the post manager, J. Gaudet, to acquaint him with the Indian's queer find. While she was off on this embassy the Cree invited the three worn-out balloonists to rest themselves in his hut while he made them tea and furnished them with what refreshment he could provide. These were gratefully eaten by the officers.

"Without the loss of a moment's time," said Mr. Bradbury, "Mr. Gaudet, accompanied by the district manager, W. C. Rakham, and Messrs. Watson, Neil, Beveridge and Findlay, all in the Hudson Bay Company's employment, came to meet the officers and conveyed them to the Central Building, where they were rested, re-clothed, and provided with comfortable sleeping accommodations.

"When the three lieutenants neared our quarters I saw them for the first time," Mr. Bradbury continued. "I was not on duty at the time, having obtained leave for my vacation in Montreal, but upon their arrival I decided to romain a day or so to hear of their adventures. In appearance they were about as forlorn as one could imagine. Their uniforms were all tattered and gaping with holes. Only one of them, Lieutenant Farrell, still retained his fur overcoat, and they showed all the signs of physical exhaustion. They told us that they had been roaming blindly over wild territory for four days, having no idea of their whereabouts and having practically nothing to eat apart from what caribou moss they could gather. Loss of sleep had troubled them even more than insufficient food and they were, in short, done in. They had almost despaired of their lives until coming upon the Indian. To him they expressed the utmost gratitude and also to the officers and clerks of the company for all they had done for them."

"There is no question," Mr. Bradbury affirmed, "that one more day such as the three had gone through would have ended their lives. Caribou moss is not by any means highly nutritive, especially when one is battling for life and worn out with fatigue. It is particularly lucky for the balloonists that they happened to become stranded out there at a time when the weather was unusually mild for that period of the year. The ground was only slightly covered with snow, so the moss could be found easily.

"When the three adventurers had been brought inside to the warmth and rested they expressed concern as to their relatives and friends who, they said, might have given them up for lost, considering that they had left the earth at Rockaway Beach on the 13th of last month and that they had had no means of getting into touch with either the military authorties or with their relatives. They had brought three homing pigeons with them, for the purpose of posting those below the border as to their movements, but it had become necessary to sacrifice two of these birds to stave off starvation. The third pigeon would also have had to be killed and eaten, but for the chance meeting with the Indian trapper.

"This last surviving pigeon," said Mr. Bradbury, "was found nestling in the coat of Lieutenant Kloor, who was overjoyed at having saved it from an unmerited fate. He decided there and then to write out a 100-word message to be conveyed by the bird to the O. C. at Rockaway Beach and I myself had the message attached and sent the bird on its flight. I haven't yet heard whether or when it reached its destination; but confess that I feel a personal interest in its welfare and success, not only on account of its employers, so to speak, but on its own."

"While the balloonists were being rested," continued Mr. Bradbury, "the upper floor of Central Building, where I and the other clerks sleep, was being arranged for their accommodation, and they were resting quite comfortably there when I left for Mattice and Montreal."

FACE THE DAY JOURNEY

Speaking of their return journey to military headquarters below the border Mr. Bradbury pointed out that the journey from Moose Factory to Mattice would occupy about sixteen or seventeen days. He thought that Lieutenant Farrell, who seems to have suffered most throughout the trying experiences, might have to ride most of the way, but that the other two would be able to accompany the sleighs on foot and thereby keep warm.

"There will likely be three dog sleighs," he said, "one of them bearing a cariole in which man food, dog food and other provisions will be kept for the sixteen days' journey. Another will be used for the sleeping tent, camping stove and other paraphernalia of the journey. The traveling will be done from daylight to dark, after which the tent will be set up with the stove in the center and beds of new cut brush wood prepared. There will also be a sufficiency of blankets. When Mattice is reached the travelers will find a train awaiting them for their journey south. Throughout they will be looked after by officials of the Hudson Bay Company, so that no fresh hardships should be encountered."

Upon being asked whether the balloonists would be traveling via Montreal or Toronto, Mr. Bradbury replied that at the time he left them they had not mapped out their plans. The Toronto Aero Club, he knew, had invited them to a dinner in that city, but whether this invitation would be accepted he could not say. He knew definitely, however, that should they decide to journey via this city they would not be able to reach it at least until the middle of next week.

IN DESPERATE PLIGHT

New York, Jan. 8.—Descriptions of the desperate plight of the three American naval balloonists after they had landed in the Hudson Bay country Dec. 14 and started working their painful way back to habitation at Moose Factory was received here yesterday in a letter from S. R. Thorpe, manager of Revillon Freres trading post at Moose, Ontario, it was announced by The Assoliated Press.

The letter was directed to the chief inspector of the company for the James Bay district, at Montreal, and forwarded to John M. Revillon here.

The balloonists were in a pitiable condition when found, and two of them had to taken to the Hudson Bay post at Moose Factory on a sled, the letter said. Their clothing was torn to pieces, and one of the men was found in his underwear, having ripped up his breeches to bind his feet with.

Under date of Dec. 19 the letter said:

"Thomas Mark picked up three strange fellows down about Middleboro some place, who turned out to be three American naval service men who went up in a balloon on Monday afternoon, the 13th, over New York, making observations for the United States Government.

"They got carried away in a gale, finally landing about 2 p.m. on Tuesday, the 14th, some fifteen or twenty miles back in the bush of Nicholson's Creekway. They had not seen any signs of anything at all in that distance, but eventually heard some dogs bark as they passed over here and, commencing to descend as fast as possible, landed back here in the bush.

"Using the balloon's compass they steered a course back due southeast and came out at the mouth of Nicholson's Creek. Seeing Tom Mark on the ice about Middleboro the youngest of them ran across to him, and he took him to his tent and then went up to the Hudson Bay Company, and they sent a team down to get the other two.

"One of them was all in, not having had anything to eat but two carrier pigeons which they happened to have with them in the balloon. Their clothing was all torn to pieces, one of them arriving in his underwear, having torn his pants up to wrap on their feet. They say one was in his bare feet."

OFFICIAL REBUKE OF ANTI-SEMITIC GERMAN YOUTHS

Prussian Minister Of Education Cites Names Of Jews In Nation's Temple Of Fame

'DON'T ALIENATE RACE'

'For Thousands Of Them Sacrified Their Lives For Fatherland

BY ADOLF KONTI

Editor of The European Press, Berlin

Berlin, December 10.—Anti-Semitism has made such headway among all classes of Germans and more especially among university and high school students that the Government has been forced to take notice. While this anti-Semitism has been confined in the main to scurrilous verbal attacks, yet the sentiment has grown with such alarming speed that the Government has become worried by the manifestations of ill-will against the Jews. Consequently, Konrad Haenisch, Prussian Minister of Education, was deputed to address university students on the subject.

His speech, which has created more or less of a sensation, covers the entire subject so thoroughly that it is best to quote it in full:

"Never was anti-Semitism so powerful in Germany, never so widespread, especially among students. It is no use only to lament, but an attempt must be made to discover the causes for this dispassionately and calmly. For where there is so much smoke there must naturally also be a fire. The great increase in anti-Semite tendencies in our colleges cannot be explained without delving for reasons. Similar to the method practised during many decades in explaining Socialism as the 'incitement' of the working classes by a handful of 'conscienceless agitators,' academic anti-Semitism cannot be lightly done away with by using the slogan, 'agitation.' Unscrupulous and common demagogism undoubtedly plays a role, yet it alone cannot explain the extent of the anti-Semite movement among our generation of students.

THE ECONOMIC SIDE OF IT

"Economic forces are of determining value here. The young German student sees himself surrounded by a large number of Jewish fellow students, whose native countries are usually situated in Eastern Europe. These young Jews, generally driven to Germany by lack of educational possibilities and racial persecution at home—I refer principally to Hungary, Rumania and Poland—are usually distinguished by excessive frugality where the nicetie s of life are concerned and are just as excessively industrious. We are furthermore aware that many of them are equipped with other less pleasing traits, especially a certain—to put it mildly—want of tact and reticence. In many colleges and seminaries and in numerous departments of the technical high schools it is understandable that this calls forth a certain amount of annoyance among the other students. This is recognised as a logical consequence of conditions in different professions. For instance among the medical men and lawyers of larger cities such as Berlin, and in journalism and theatrical matters, the Jews predominate in a manner wholly disproportionate to their proportionate share in the entire population. It is therefore the fear—partly conscious, partly subconscious—of dangerous Jewish economic competition that forms the fertile soil wherein anti-Semitism flourishes at the universities and high schools.

LEGITIMATE COMPLAINTS

"When the complaints of German students regarding these matters were legitimate the Ministry of Education did not hesitate to rectify them. Immediately after the revolution precautions were taken to give precedence under all conditions to German students who had participated in the war, and who, besides their health, had sacrificed six or eight terms of their most valuable years to their Fatherland, in contradistinction to those who had not been at the front at all, and to foreigners in especial. The overcrowding of all German seats of learning by foreigners, mainly from the East of Europe, which commenced immediately the war was over led to the establishment of a certain fixed contingent so far as the admission of these foreigners was concerned. The Ministry also decreed that the primary education of foreigners enrolled was to be carefully examined. No foreigner is able to matriculate at a German university whose preliminary education does not at least equal the demands on German students. Foreigners will have to undergo an examination of their knowledge of the German language as well.

CAN'T AFFORD TO BAR THEM

"But to go still further and, as was several times proposed, to entirely prohibit the matriculation of foreigners, and in especial of foreigners of Jewish extraction at our university, the Prussian educational authorities acting in union with the boards of other German countries, have had to decline. The educational authorities were unable to overlook, even for a moment, the extensive degree to which these foreign students, and primarily the Jews among them, have in the past participated in strengthening the influence of German culture and of German science throughout the world. Furthermore, foreign students at our technical colleges have also frequently become the best pioneers of German economics and German commercial industriousness. And viewed from a national stand point it would bt more than original, it would be arrant folly, if today when we have to recommence laboriously to build up again from the very foundations, we should risk possibilities of regained economic and cultural influence on the outside world by brutally closing our seats of learning toward foreigners.

"It must also be added that the demanded exclusion of the Jews from our colleges, be it only those of foreign nationality, be it, as is urged by some, of our German Jews as well, would certainly be used in the western countries, and, above all, in the United States of America, for new and embittered onslaughts on Germany. And we have no little sympathy to lose in the world nowadays that we must not risk the little really left us by such senseless procedure.

ENRICHED LITERATURE AND SCIENCE

"German students in especial should not forget in what immensurable measure German literature and German science owes enrichment to men of Jewish blood. I am well aware of all the failings and weaknesses of a man like Heinrich Heine, and have never overlooked the drawback of his life and work. But nevertheless German literature can call few men mastering the German language in an equal degree to Heinrich Heine its own. His 'Buch der Lieder' (book of songs) is an imperishable national possession of the German people for times immemorial. And point out to be a German capable of such deep penetration into the being of Germany's greatest poet, Goethe, as the Jew Gundolf?

"Where men of science come into question I only wish to mention one name, that of Albert Einstein, who has done more for the grandeur and glory of the German world than thousands of itinerant anti-Semitic preachers could accomplish all taken together. Nor do I need to recall to medical and chemical students what Jews like Ehrlich, Haber and Zuntz mean to German science and economics, nor Fritz Mauthner, the linquistic historian, or to point out to special economists all that Karl Marx, with his fundamental theories, and Walter Rathenau, the organiser of the German raw material supplies in war time, represent for us. It is not necessary to be an uncriticising admirer of Jewry, a pronounced philo-Semite, to recognise all this; one only needs to be honest and fair in one's judgments.

'UNWORTHY OF A GERMAN STUDENT'

"There are two things besides all other considerations that should make every German student disgusted enough to withdraw from the anti-Semite street agitation, their abominable coarseness and their barrenness from an objective point of view. I need hardly comment on the first point. Every person acquainted with anti-Semite pamphletetring, every visiter of anti-Semite meetings will know what I mean. It is absolutely unworthy of a German student to plunge and swim along merrily in these murky and sullied waters.

"For, remember, thousands of German citizens of Jewish race have sacrificed their lives for our common fatherland in the world war; about 18,000 Jews were awarded the Iron Cross of the second, many of them also of the first class. The first man who fell on the German side in the war was a Jew; the first German member of the Reichstag (Imperial Diet) who at the outbreak of hostilities immediately volunteered for service, and so far as is known was the only member who paid for his love of his country with his life was the Jew, Ludwig Frank, from the Social Democratic Party.

"Academic youths whose very existence is based on scrutiny and criticism should be the very last to fall prey to a propaganda of empty slogans and phrases."

Changchow Women's Mutual Benefit Club First Organisation Of Its Kind In Interior

Miss Ella B. Leveritt of the Southern Methodist Mission and the charter members of the Changchow Women's Mutual Benefit Club.

The Changchow Women's Mutual Benefit Club, a recently formed organisation directed by Miss Ella B. Leveritt of the Southern Methodist Church Mission, is leading the city of Changchow in its work for famine relief.

The progressive members of the club have collected material from factories and stores in the city which they have made into garments. More than 500 padded garments have been sent to the famine district and a letter of appreciation for the contribution has been received from Mr. A. D. Heininger, Techow, Shantung Province. The women have started making another 500 garments.

The club is organised primarily for social service work in Changchow and is doing splendid work along lines heretofore unattempted by the Chinese women of this interior city. City problems are discussed at the meetings and opening a home for abandoned babies is being considered.

WON'T NAME NEW N.Y.K. HEAD NOW

Reports As To Baron Kondo's Successor Contain Names Of Baron Go And Mr. Ito.

The much-lamented death of Baron Kondo, President of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, which occurred in Tokio, February 9, has brought to the fore the question as to who should be his successor, reports the Japan Advertiser. It is expected that there will be heated competition, if it has not already started, among the would-be candidates.

Even before the demise of the shipping magnate, an agitation among some large shareholders of the company occurred time and again to reorganise its management, which was decried as too bureaucratic, the latest agitation being that conducted just before and after Baron Kondo returned from Paris where he represented Japanese shipping interests at the Peace Conference. At that time the name of Baron Seninosuke Go, a noted Tokio business man, was prominently mentioned as the probable successor of Baron Kondo, but nothing came of the agitation, and the President of the company was re-elected to his post. Since that time there has been no such agitation, and the company and the parties concerned are as unprepared for the selection of the successor of Baron Kondo as his death was sudden.

In the circumstances there is at the present moment no indication of who will be elected new President of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, but in the opinion of some shareholders the likeliest possibility is Mr. Yonejiro Ito, the present Vice-President of the company. In their opinion he should be promoted to the Presidency, and his place can be filled also by promotion from among the present officials of the company. Even these shareholders, however, admit that Mr. Ito, being comparatively young, is somewhat lacking in dignity to be president of Japan's largest shipping company. For this reason some may try to secure Baron Seinosuke Go, or Mr. Masayashi Kato, formerly Vice-President of the company, or Mr. Nakashoji, the well-known statesman and member of the House of Peers. The supporters of Mr. Ito, however, say that there are certain circumstances which make it difficult for the shareholders to recommend either Baron Go or Mr. Kato or both, while Mr. Nakashoji, whose sphere is in national politics, is not likely to become a company president. Unless a more influential candidate is forthcoming, they say, the promotion of Mr. Ito to the Presidency should be regarded as proper and natural.

However, there is no need to hold an extraordinary meeting of shareholders immediately to elect the new President of the company, and it is expected that this post will be left vacant for the time being.

Some people are still persuaded, that AERATED WATERS are simply thirst quenchers, good for summer time. This is only a half-truth. They have a distinctive food value, and as such are worth many times their cost. Just think of the nutritive value of the sugar they contain, and the essences, which are all either tonic or stimulative in their action. But these ingredients must be pure, and of the very best quality. You are sure of getting these by using "Watson's High-grade AERATED WATERS."

MUNICIPAL ELECTRICITY DEPARTMENT'S SHOWROOM: 26, NANKING ROAD

Woman's Club Literary Department Views Collection

The Art-treasures of Dr. Stafford M. Cox, which have been secluded for five years, were shown to a group from the Literary Department, Thursday, Feb. 17. This collection, well known to old residents of Shanghai, is comprehensive to a high degree, and includes bronzes, jades, coins, pottery, porcelains, snuff bottles and paintings from every epoch from which the various objects are available.

The interest of the antiquarian is as great in the collection as that of the artist. Bronzes are here, from tombs of the Chou and Han dynasties; coins from the era when mere current as money, replicas of spades and other agricultural implements—a pair of Han vases so light in weight as to suggest use of aluminum in the clay; pottery figures from the tombs—a cart drawn by an ox vigorously moulded, and another cart drawn by a spirited horse, all mellowed by time to tints like old ivory. A tall Kwannon holds a place of honor, modelled in a white pottery, the glaze of which is nearly decomposed. The figure is large-footed, masculine and masterful in pose, surmounted by a large head-dress, worn halo-fashion. The costume is of an early period.

A sumptuous group of snuff-bottles are assembled—bottles of Chien Lung enamel, of red cut glass, of carved lacquer; bottles of amber, jade and agate, cameo-carved with intelligent utilisation of every spot and color in the individual stones. Jade in many forms, is seen. The masterpiece of these is a large spreading bowl of pale-green stone. Beneath the base is carved in law relief a conventionalised flower, with dentate petals, while at the edge of the base is a narrow row of the same dentate petals. Around the edge of the bowl a light border of iris-buds, widely separated, completes the chaste design. The marvel of the piece is that the jade is cut so thin that print may be read through it. "There are no workmen like the Chinese" was the convincing comment, made upon this jade.

The largest single collection is that of porcelain, which comprises nearly every variety known. The emphasis in numbers, is that of the Blue-and-White, and the Famille Verte and Famille Rose. The former, alone would constitute a notable collection. The intensity and purity of the Kang Hi blue is incomparable, being full of power, depth and sparkle. A lost art is this blue, almost incredible; the unique quality impresses itself upon the beholder. This is true of the masterpiece of the group; a large vase, decorated with a free landscape, of river and pine trees, deer and birds. The gradations of blue shade almost to black, and seem to pulsate with animation, so that even a jewel cannot be used in comparison, lacking, as it does, the consummato range and depth—dimension of Kang Hi color. To one susceptible to color this blue arouses the emotion inspired by other forms of art—a haunting melody by a violmcells, or a quatrain of exquisite poetry.

Another piece, notable for its depth of tone, is a large New Year's jar, with the favorite prunus and cracked ice design. The design is relieved by narrow reserves of white, which enclose mythical animals. A third perfect example is a tiny ink-pot, with landscape in fine pencilling, but with the full vigor of the Kang Hi blue. Plates of Powder blue, with medallions of white, framing floral designs, are charming. Powder blue is so often disguised by gold ornamentation, that the background is unnoticed, and the beautiful gradations from intense specks of blue, as the powder is blown on, melting into the glaze, fail to be seen.

Kang Hi blue combined with other colors, appeals subtly to the artistic sense. One graceful bowl, with a design of rocks and branches of the blue, is rendered more pleasing by foliage in enamel green over the glaze, and bursting plum-blossoms in white and palest green. Another attractive bowl, with a design of rocks and branches of the blue, is rendered more pleasing by foliage in enamel green over the glaze, and bursting plum-blossoms in white and palest green. Another attractive bowl, is octagonal, and has the blue, accentuated and harmonised by rose and green.

Outstanding specimens of other porcelains, are a five color Yung Ching placque, with enamel black background, ornamented with spiral patterns of green, which surround peomes of richest famille rose. A brush pot of black surface, has a landscape pattern laid on in lines of mother-of-pearl. An oddity in decoration is upon a bowl painted to represent wood, the grain and burl done with such fastidious care, that the illusion is complete. A Kang Hi incense pot of coral color has a depth and richness, scarcely imaginable. A small Ming vase of interesting glaze and crackle, is an example of the rare "apple green." While many other varieties are represented, the climax is reached, perhaps, in that ardently sought rara-avis—the peach bloom. It is not difficult to comprehend why this is prized, as one views the soft translucent old rose color of the glaze as it blends and harmonises with the indispensable, pale olive-green. Two specimens were shown: water-pots for the scholar's desk.

Tea was served, Mrs. O'Driscoll presiding over the pleasant task.

Then, when pleasure was thought to be replete, the collector casually remarked, that his prized collection was of old Chinese paintings. Of what transpired, more will be heard when the paper on Tang paintings is given to the Department. A few pictures only, were shown, but time was given to absorb each into memory—time to sit in awed silence in presence of an art, read about, but heretofore unwitnessed by the visitors. Unlike later Chinese painting the viewpoint of these early artists is not from an eminence, but from the level.

A village street, of true perspective, was one, with tethered animals begging to be fed. Another depicts thick foliaged trees in golden twilight. Last and best, was a river bank, piled high with snow—superimposed, wet snow. In the distance, beyond groves and ravines, towers a mountain peak, veiled by falling snow, portrayed with an art so serene and vast, that a sense of sublimity rests upon the soul of the gazer, and lingers in the memory.

University Of Nanking News Notes

Dr. A. Bowen, President of the University, has received a third class Chia Ho Decoration conferred by H. E. President Hsu Shu-chang, according to the mandate issued in the Feb. 12th issue of the China Times. Dr. Bowen has been president in the university ever since Feb., 1910 and has been rendering a remarkable service to the University. He is one of the first among the Christian College presidents who have received so high an honor. The students are planning to have a celebration Friday in honor of the occasion. The leading program will be:

1. Opening speech, Mr. Liu Chung-fu.
2. Chinese speech, Yung Chia-yuen.
3. English speech, Hsuing Chang-hsu.
4. Representative of Alumni—Prof. Liu Ching-fu.
5. Representative of faculty—Prof. E. Marx.
6. Music and songs by college students and the Language School
7. Fire works.

The University Alumni Record started some three years ago is expected to appear next month. The record contains pictures of the various departments and was edited by Mr. Ch'en Hsiang-fan now studying in the United States, and Mr. Chen Shui-i, the executive secretary of the Alumni Association. The appearance of the new publication will certainly mark a new era in the history of the University. Every Nanking alumnus will be entitled to a copy without charge. Others may buy copies.

During last week the University was very much edified by the coming of Bishop Louis J. Birney, of Shanghai, to conduct evangelistic meetings in the University. The Bishop helped the students a great deal in answering difficult problems of their religious life.

* * *

Dr. T. D. Sloan, superintendent of the University Hospital gave a very instructive illustrated lecture on hookworm last Saturday. He dwelt at length on the dangers and treatment of the disease and his lecture was attentatively heard.

* * *

Under the auspices of the University Christian Association, a celebration on the Chinese New Year eve was held in the Social Hall. Music and songs were contributed by outside friends from the foreign community and the students remaining on the campus during the vacation.

* * *

The Agriculture — Forestry Literary Society will have a very interesting debate next Friday evening on "Resolved that it is better for the Agriculture and Forestry students after their graduation from the University to spend at least two or three years in agriculture and forestry work in their own country before going to another country for further study." Every member in the society will be requested to take part.

Hints about Baby

EACH meal for Baby should be freshly prepared and given at a temperature of about 100°F. Use a feeder that can be easily and efficiently cleansed. Never give Baby a "Comforter" which infects the mouth with germs, and spoils its shape.

The Food must be conveyed into Baby's mouth without fear of germ contamination and at a proper rate of flow.

The Allenburys Foods

are easy to prepare, free from germs, and provide complete nourishment; the 'Allenburys' Feeder the simplest and best.

THE growing port of Seattle is taking an active interest in foreign trade, especially the trade of China and Japan. Reports of the United States Customs show a constant increase in Seattle's foreign trade and ocean shipping. In the development of this foreign trade the National Bank of Commerce has taken a prominent part, consistent with its position as one of the largest and most progressive banks on the Pacific Coast.

This is one of the nine great American banks which are stockholders in the Asia Banking Corporation.

Sailors Leave Foreign Ships To Get U. S. Pay

Christiania, Jan. 1.—The clause in the American Seamen's act making it impossible in American ports to arrest sailors deserting their vessels has been taken advantage of by Norwegian sailors.

Ship owners say the sailors desert from Norwegian vessels at American ports and sign on other Norwegian boats at American wages, thus netting them a good profit at the present rate of exchange.

Share Market

Messrs. J. P. Bisset and Company write as follows in their share report for week ending Feb. 18:

On account of the Chinese New Year holidays the Stock Exchange was closed from February 8 to 12 inclusive. The Chinese New Year Settlement has apparently released a fair amount of ready money, enabling the native investor to again take a greater interest in the Share market and a fair volume of business has resulted, and there has been much more inquiry, especially for those Shares in which business is recorded. Prices generally have improved. Interest has chiefly centered in New Engineering shares which, on account of the dividend and bonuses recommended at the meeting of the Board of Directors held on February 16, immediately improved to Tls. 32.50 cash, but have since declined to Tls. 31.00 cash. Docks have also improved and are in demand at Tls. 132 cash. Cottons remain firm at the prices quoted. Rubbers continue to be neglected.

Financial And Business Conditions In The U.S.

At the opening of the new year most resumes and forecasts of business conditions are sounding an optimistic note. It may be observed that practical men of affairs who are acquainted with an understanding of the underlying conditions in this and other countries, are confident that a turn for the better will soon disclose itself.

Reduced to its simplest terms, the situation is that most other countries, and particularly those of Europe, need the things which America produces, but are unable to pay for them at the present time, an inability which increases as prices rise, and which cannot be overcome entirely until they fall. So long as prices remain at high levels, therefore, both the foreign and domestic demand for American goods will be curtailed. When these prices return to a level that reflects the relation of the demand for goods to the supply of goods, and only that relation, we shall have normal buying and selling again and, considering the losses of the war years and the long time it will take other countries to re-establish their productive and distributive processes, there can be little doubt that the results will be advantageous to this country.

WAR FINANCE CORPORATION

Congress has passed and the Senate has overridden the President's veto of a joint resolution directing the Treasury Department and the War Finance Corporation to revive the activities of the latter organisation. The object of such revival is to enable the farmers of the country to hold their products for higher than prevailing prices, and the effects of this legislation in behalf of a particular interest upon the readjustment processes to which all other interests are submitting will be watched very closely.

THE PRESIDENT'S OPINION

In vetoing the resolution and in support of his contention that the established financial agencies of the country, and those in process of formation by private interests, are sufficient to accomplish what this legislation purports to do, stimulate foreign trade, President Wilson said:

"It is highly probable that the most immediate and conspicuous effect of the resumption of the corporation's activities would be an effort on the part of exporters to shift the financing of their operations from ordinary commercial channels to the Government. This would be unfortunate. It would continue the Government as an active factor in ordinary business operations. If activities of any considerable magnitude resulted they would necessitate the imposition of additional taxes or further borrowing, either through the War Finance Corporation or by the Treasury. In either case new burdens would be laid upon all the people. Further borrowing would in all likelihood tap the very sources which might otherwise be available for private operations or which the Treasury is now compelled to reach to meet current obligations of the Government."

GOVERNMENT ECONOMY

In appearing again before the Senate Committee on Finance, Secretary of the Treasury Houston urged the utmost economy, opposing the revival of the War Finance Corporation, the enactment of a soldier bonus law, and the extension of a $1,000,000,000 credit to Germany. He declared that "unless every unnecessary expenditure, such as the proposed appropriation for the payment of soldiers' bonus, be avoided; unless every official or other estimate or request for appropriations be reduced to a minimum, no sound plan of tax revision can be carried out, and the successful financial conduct of the Government during the next three years will be seriously imperiled." In discussing his recommendation that the revenue from taxation be maintained after this fiscal year and until the close of the fiscal year 1923 on a level of at least $4,000,000,000, the Secretary urged the reduction of the extreme income surtaxes, "not to exempt the rich, but to tax the rich"; the replacing of the excess profits tax, primarily because it is losing its productivity and "promises in the near future to become a statute of exemptions rather than an affective tax"; and the retention of a simple system of specific sales or consumption taxes. With respect to replacing the excess profits tax, Secretary Houston said:

"I recommend that it be replaced—not merely repealed—with a simpler and more certain tax upon corporation income or profits. I suggest in this connection for the consideration of the Congress either a flat additional tax on corporation profits, such as has recently been adopted in the United Kingdom, or a tax upon the undistributed profits of corporations under which, if adopted, corporations should be expressly authorised to pay taxes through their stockholders, as partnerships are now taxed through their members. By either of these proposals the income tax on corporations could be made a fair equivalent for the income tax as now applied in effect to individuals, partnerships and personal service corporations."

TRADE WITH RUSSIA

The Secretary of the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board announced on December 20 that, "with the approval of the Department of State and in order to give force and effect to the action of that Department in removing restrictions in the way of trade and communication with Soviet Russia, as announced by that Department on July 7, 1920, all rules and regulations restricting the exportation of coin, bullion and currency to that part of Russia now under the control of the so-called Bolshevik Government, and restricting transfers of credit or exchange transactions with that part of Russia now under the control the so-called Bolshevik Government, have been suspended, effective December 18, 1920, until further notice." The fact that Russian gold shipped to this country is under suspicion of having been stolen from the Imperial Government by the Bolshevists, and therefore likely to be claimed by Governments to which the Czar was indebted, has interfered somewhat with the freedom of operations implied in this announcement. Persons seeking to dispose of such gold, even in bullion form, are experiencing all sorts of difficulties, due to the fact that the Government authorities are exercising every precaution against anything that could be interpreted as a denial of the claims of France and other Powers to the Russian gold.

NOVEMBER TRADE

Exports of merchandist from the United States during the month of November last were valued at $676,706,011, or about $63,300,000 less than in November, 1919. For the eleven months ended with November exports were valued at $7,508,424,433 or about $270,000,000 greater than for the corresponding period ended with November, 1919. The value of imports to this country dropped from $424,810,272 in November, 1919, to $321,181,080 for November of this year. For the eleven months' period ended with November of this year, however, imports were valued at $5,013,299,012, as compared with $3,523,654,609 in the corresponding period of 1919, an increase of nearly $1,490,000,000. The report of the Department of Commerce shows that for the eleven months' period ended with November, as compared with the corresponding period of last year, the value of our exports decreased markedly except in the case of all European countries except Germany and Spain and increased to all other countries except Chile, in the case of which the decline was slight. Exports to Germany more than tripled in value.

RAILROAD RECORDS

Thomas De Witt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives, declares in a review of the nine months since the Government turned back the railroads to their owners that the roads have justified the support given during the last year. His summary of railroad accomplishment may be epitomised as follows: (1) Average movement per freight car per day increased from 22.3 to 23.6 miles. (2) average car load increased from 28.3 to 30 tons. (3) number of unserviceable locomotives reduced, (4) reduced the accumulation of loaded but unmoved freight cars from 103,237 on March 1 to 21,991 on December 3. (5) relocated approximately 180,000 box cars for movement of farm produce, (6) relocated approximately 180,000 open top cars to keep up the production of coal, (7) moved country's third highest coal production, (8) spent $500,000,000 extra on improving maintenance, (9) contracted to spend about $250,000,000, largely out of earnings, for additions and betterments to promote the movement of cars, (10) made arrangements to purchase 50,000 new freight cars, 1,500 new locomotives, and 1,000 new passenger cars, (11) begun the reconstruction of thousands of old cars, (12) moved—with a deteriorated plant, under disturbed labor and business conditions—the largest volume of traffic ever known in a single year, with the highest efficiency yet achieved, and with a minimum addition to the value of the property on which the public has to pay a return through rates.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Price recessions and curtailment of industrial output marks the turn of the year. The immediate effect of the close of the holidays is, of course, greater economy than usual on the part of the buying public. This influence upon business and prices this year is augmented by the growing amount of unemployment. Conditions in the labor market have made it possible to reduce wages in many instances, but, as evidence of the new spirit which marks the relations of employer and employe in our time it is reported that reductions are being made slowly and in conformity with the dictates of the business situation. In a number of cases the reductions have occasioned offers by employes to run plants and these offers have been accepted, with a growing appreciation of the difficulties of profit making resulting. The larger industrial and financial leaders are confident that no prolonged period of depression need be feared.

THE MONEY MARKET

A call money rate of 7 percent during the closing fortnight of the year and time funds offered at from 7¼ to 7½ percent seems to indicate that the banks are in excellent condition to meet any sudden turn in the business situation which the next few months may bring about. An outline of the condition of the Federal Reserve banks during the last year shows how war paper has been disposed of and earning assets increased, reserves being constantly strengthened. This seems to be the history of the member banks also. They have apparently worked carefully toward a strong position and now feel able to lend at reasonable rates for such purposes as come within the range of their policy to bring about deflation while at the same time encouraging legitimate industry.

Iron: Pig iron prices continue to follow a lowering trend and pipe makers say that pig iron is still too high, predicting that the general market will come down to a $30 base before noticeable activity is resumed. Quotations on January 3 were: Gray Forge Pittsburg, $35.96; No. 2X Philadelphia, $34.79.

Coffee: The coffee futures market had a fairly firm opening the first of the new year, but prices slumped almost immediately on selling orders. Prices went off 21 to 25 points from the call figures. The spot market remained dull with prices nominal. Quotations on January 3 were: Santos 4s, 9-9½ cents; Rio 7s, 6¾ cents.

Sugar: The market for refined sugar, however, remains quiet, with refiners quoting on the same basis as in recent weeks. Spot sugar quotations January 3 were: Cuban, 96 degrees centrifugal, duty paid, $5.39; Refined. Federal fine granulated, 7.90.

Cocoa: The dullness which has long been the most conspicuous feature of the cocoa market deepens. Buyers are showing even less interest for forward or immediate delivery than has been the case any time in the recent past. January 3 quotations were: Bahias, 6½-8½; Accras F. F., 6½-7½; Arriba, 10-14½; Sanchez, 7-7½.

Rubber: More buying interest has been manifested than was in evidence for the past two weeks, although the volume of resulting business was not very large. The activity was confined to the plantation grades, Paras remaining dull with prices nominally unchanged. January 3 Para Upriver, fine, was quoted at 19 cents.

Hides: Inquiries for hides have been more active and the condition of the Boston market is also said to be improving. Local feeling is optimistic, although dry hides are irregular as a result of the sale of 1,000 Orinocos and 500 Guatemalas at the 15 cent level. Holders are still asking 16 cents for Mountain Bogotas.

Cotton: The passage of the War Finance Corporation Act over the President's veto had a most stimulating effect, as it is believed to presage larger exports. Mills are starting up. Spot markets advanced sharply. Middling Uplands sold January 3 at 16 cents, a rise of 125 points.

Lead: There appears to be but a slight interest in the trade here and local prices have sagged slightly to 4⅝ cents a pound New York and East St. Louis 4½ cents. Producers quote 4¾ cents unchanged for both.

Spelter: Though the tone is easier, owing to lack of business, spelter prices remained unchang-

Mme. Delysia Is Attacked And Felled By Police Dog

Scared By Burglars, Star Of 'Afgar' Sought Home Guard And Was Attacked At Kennel

New York, Dec. 17.—Mme. Alice Delysia, star of "Afgar" at the Central Theater, was knocked down and painfully bitten at the Palisade Kennels, Rosedale, L. I., yesterday by a police dog she was about to purchase to guard her home at 53 East Fifty-first Street, against burglars. Mme. Delysia was under the care of her physician, Dr. Henry C. Fleming of 535 Park Avenue, at her home last night and there was no performance of "Afgar." Dr. Fleming said his patient would probably be up and about today.

Accompanied by F. Ray Comstock, Mme. Delysia motored to Rosedale yesterday and was petting the year and a half old dog when it sprang and sank its teeth in her left side. Mr. Comstock thought last night that the dog's teeth had not penetrated Mme. Delysia's undercoat, but Dr. Fleming said the actress had suffered a painful though superficial wound. He did not consider it serious, and said that Mme. Delysia probably would be able to appear in tonight's performance.

Miss Dawn O'Neil, the actress's secretary, said Mme. Delysia had been told by many friends that her home was situated in a neighborhood in which many depredations had been committed by burglars recently, and that either a watchman or a police dog was needed to guard the house. A few days ago Mme. Delysia bought a three-month-old puppy at an animal shop in West Forty-sixth Street, but became alarmed at the increasing number of burglaries she had read about and could not wait for the tiny "afgar" to grow. So yesterday she set out with Mr. Comstock to select a larger dog.

"Mme. Delysia was especially taken with one of the police dogs and was petting it when she was bitten," Miss O'Neill said, after she had informed visitors that Mme. Delysia had suffered a severe shock and that none of her friends could see her.

"In some way her fur coat fell from her shoulders—the dog had not liked this coat anyway—and when the proprietor of the kennels stopped to pick it up and return it to Mme. Delysia the dog sprang and knocked Madame down."

Mr. Comstock said last night: "Mme. Delysia did not appear very seriously injured as a result on the dog's attack. He sprang with considerable force—fairly flew at her—when he thought the proprietor of the kennels was in danger, and then became very docile when he saw what he had done. Mme. Delysia did not scream. On the way home she ordered her chauffeur, who was hurrying back to her home, to stop at what we thought was a kennel to see whether there were any Pekingese dogs in stock. She had given up the idea of buying a police dog."

Dr. Fleming said that since the dog was not mad no complications should result.

Financial And Business Conditions In The U.S.

ed. New York prices are around 6 cents a pound, while there has been no substantial movement to test the market. East St. Louis deliveries are quoted at 5.60.

Antimony: The market is off, owing to lack of interest, and the price has eased to the low level of 5¼ or slightly less. London is unchanged at 45.

Tungsten: The market is still idle and only a few small lots have changed hands. About $3.50 is a fair indication of tungsten ore of ordinary quality.

Quicksilver: The market was upset on Monday by a cabled reduction in London prices of £2 a flask to £12, following a cut here last week of $5 to $45 a flask. It is felt that this could easily be shaded $3 to $5 more and trading is very dull.

Copper: The copper situation remained unchanged at the opening of the new year, the market continuing dull. Prices are lowest in five years and it is generally understood that 13 cents a pound represents a loss to most of the operators. January 3, 12½ to 12¾ cents were quoted in the open trade with producers out. Sellers on the metal exchange quoted 13 cents for spot and first quarter without bids, the settling price being 12.75 cents.

Tin: The market January 3 continued around 35 cents for spot and nearby and 36 cents future shipments, the latter appearing in better undertone.

Silver: The New York domestic price for silver was 99½ cents January 3. Silver of foreign origin was quoted at 65¾.

KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth
In order to keep the teeth in good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dentis periostitis esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dentist instruments specially devised for that purpose.
Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per Head to be paid in advance.
The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—
(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly
(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

BLANCHE SWEET in "HELP WANTED-MALE"

"You're Supposed to Attract the Men, Doggie, Not Eat 'Em Up!"

Many are the ways and means to trap the strong sex.

Leona rolled her rougish eyes. She baited her bank roll with honey. She sported her gorgeous, risque Gowns. She flashed her Parisian hosiery and her trim ankles. She put her trusty bulldog on the trail. And she used the mails to lure the males.

Can you imagine what happened?

Science And Your Furs

Remarkable Studies of the Hairs of Animals Which Show How to Tell What Any Kind of Fur Really Is and Thus Prevent Your Being Cheated with Clever Imitations of Sable, Ermine and Other Expensive Skins

Furriers Stretching Skins, Preparatory to Cutting Them Into the Desired Shapes and Sizes.

A Wrap Like This of Genuine Russian Sable Is Worth from $35,000 to $50,000. Fitch, Hare, Woodchuck, Mink and Other Cheaper Furs Are Often Altered in Various Ways, So That They Look Like Sable and Can Be Sold As Such. To Protect the Public Against These Fraudulent Substitutions Is One of the Main Objects of the Study Science Is Now Making of the Hairs of Fur-Bearing Animals.

ONE of the most interesting recent developments of science, and one that promises to prove of the greatest practical value to everybody who wears or buys furs, is the study now being made of the hairs which compose the fur of animals. These little threads of animal matter—so slender that to the naked eye they all look very much alike—are being studied with the most painstaking care, and what is being discovered about them will make it far easier to select the most durable furs and to avoid being cheated with clever imitations of ermine, sable and other rare and costly skins.

The hairs of seals, sables, otters, wolves, minks, squirrels and other fur-bearing animals, including even the humble skunk and woodchuck, are being examined under the most powerful microscopes—dissected, measured, weighed, photographed and subjected to all sorts of delicate laboratory tests. The strength of each kind of hair is being tested in order to see how well it will wear when made up into articles of clothing. And the minute but numerous differences of structure which make the hair of one species of animal quite different from that of every other species are being carefully noted in order to fix an absolute standard for identifying the various kinds of fur and thus detecting fraudulent imitations and substitutions of the cheaper for the more expensive varieties.

Already this work has progressed so far that experts like Leon Augustus Hausman of the Cornell University Zoological Laboratory at Ithaca, N. Y., are able to tell what animal any given piece of fur came from by studying a single one of its hairs under their microscopes. The day may not be far distant when prudent buyers will insist on a dealer's supporting his claims as to a fur's genuineness with a laboratory analysis of one of its hairs. And the next step will be to have laws requiring each skin to be marked with scientific evidence of what it is, just as is now done in the case of foods and medicines.

As everybody who has bought or sold furs knows, few articles of commerce are the subject of more dishonest practices. The scarcity of sable, seal and other skins which command enormous prices has led to the flooding of the market with countless imitations fashioned in the most ingenious way from the inferior skins of rabbits, muskrats, woodchucks and other animals which are found in great abundance. Many of these imitations are so clever that even dealers of long experience are deceived by them, and the average man or woman is entirely helpless to tell which is the real article and which the bogus. The manufacture of these imitation furs has become an enormous industry, one rivalling in magnitude that of the genuine, simon-pure thing.

This is why the scientific study of the structures and identification characteristics of animal hairs is something of more than zoological significance. It is a matter of practical dollars-and-cents interest to every wearer of furs who wants to get the most for his or her money.

"It is now possible," says Professor Hausman in the American Journal of Natural History, "to clip, dye, pull and otherwise alter furs of certain types so that their original appearance is entirely lost and they may be sold under names not their own.

"Inferior furs, remodeled, may be sold under the names of furs much superior in wearing quality or in warmth, or in both; as, for example, when remodeled, rabbit (a fur notably poor in wearing quality) is sold as ermine, or remodeled muskrat as seal! Such remodeled furs may often be sold at ten times their legitimate value, warmth and durability considered.

"The pelts of animals from warmer latitudes, such as the opossum, woodchuck (marmot), raccoon and certain species of monkeys, are worked up by skilful fur dressers into products very different from their originals. The names which are given to such remodeled furs are the names of animals of colder latitudes, such as otter, seal, sable, etc.—animals which possess furs superior to those of the creatures of warmer zones in respect to denseness and softness of the under or fur hair, and to fullness and length of the over or protective hair. Furthermore, the dyeing and processing to which the warmer latitude furs are subjected render the hair less durable because more brittle.

"It is clear that there exists a need for some definite criterion by means of which furs, no matter how altered by the dyer and remodeler, can be indubitably identified as to species source. This need the microscopic study of the hair shafts of mammals will help to meet."

It used to be thought that an animal's hair was nothing more than a solid, horny cylinder, transparent, or at least translucent, through its length, and with no definite internal structure. But study under powerful microscopes shows that this is far from being the case. The hair of each animal is an exceedingly complex structure and made up of well-defined elements.

The hair begins its growth as a localized increase in the number of cells of the outermost skin. The dense aggregations of cells elongate downward into the true skin or dermis underneath. Directly beneath these downward elongating depressions of the cells of the outer skin there is formed a dense mass composed of the cells of the inner skin, which ultimately become the papilla of the hair.

In general, the hairs of mammals are circular or elliptical when viewed in cross-section. Those which are circular are straight or but slightly curved, while those of elliptical cross-section are curly or kinky, the amount of curl depending upon the flatness of the ellipse.

An animal's hair shaft is built up of four well-defined structural units—the medulla or pith, composed of many shrunken and variously disposed cells; the cortex, surrounding the medulla and composed of spindle-shaped cells coalesced into a horny, transparent mass; the pigment granules, to which the color of the hair is primarily due; the cuticle or outer covering, composed of thin, transparent, colorless scales which sometimes overlap like the scales of a fish.

By studying these units under the microscope the animal to which any given hair belonged can be determined with great accuracy. You can in this way prove absolutely whether the fur a dealer is selling you for ermine is really ermine or only a white rabbit's skin skilfully treated to resemble the far more expensive article. How necessary such a method as this is can be readily seen by glancing at some of the deceptions which are frequently practiced in the fur trade.

American sable is altered and sold as Russian sable; goat, as leopard or bear of various kinds; hare, as sable or fox; kid, as lamb; woodchuck, as mink, sable or skunk; mink, as sable; muskrat, as mink, sable or seal; fitch, as sable; nutria (the Coypu rat), as seal, beaver or otter; opossum, as beaver; otter, as seal of various kinds; rabbit, as ermine, seal, musquash or chinchilla; kangaroo, as marten; white hare, as fox.

Most mammals have at least two kinds of hair—a short, thick, fine coat next the skin, which is called the fur or under hair, and a longer, coarser, usually stiffer hair which overlies the first and which is called the protective or over hair. It is the fur hair which usually forms the greater part of the body covering. The fur hair and the protective hair from the same animal exhibit certain differences in their medullas and cuticular scales which enable them to be readily distinguished.

A few animals possess a great many different modifications of these two kinds of hair. The duckbill, a curious creature found in Australia that is partly aquatic, partly subaerial and partly subterranean, probably holds the record for having the largest number of different varieties of hair. It has fine long hair on the chin; still finer hair about the ears; short, stiff, rather flattened hair back of the ears; long, stiff, flattened hair on the under portion of the body; very stiff, almost bristle-like hair on the wrists; and two distinct types of hair on the back—long, soft, dark-brown hair on the outside, and fur hair underneath.

The differences in the cuticular scales covering the hair shafts furnish science with the best means of distinguishing the hair of one animal from that of another. These scales fall into two great groups—those that lie singly, overlapping about the hair shaft; and those that encircle the shaft as a continuous band, looking something like a coronet. The former type is called imbricate and the latter coronal.

The simplest form of the imbricate scale is found in the yellow-haired porcupine. Other interesting examples of this type are to be seen in the white-tailed deer, the pocket gopher, the mole, the shrew, the armadillo and certain varieties of monkeys. The coronal scales are found in the bat, the chinchilla, the scale-tailed squirrel, the mink and the otter. The scales of the hair of bats show remarkable beauties that never fail to excite the admiration of the scientists who study them under powerful microscopes.

Both the imbricate and the coronal types of scales show numerous wide variations, and it is on these, together with the marked differences in the medullas or piths of the hair shafts, that science relies in fixing positively the kind of animal from which any given fur came.

To prepare an animal's hair for the laboratory examination that will settle its identity is not a difficult task. The hair shafts are first soaked in certain chemical solutions which make the cuticular scales more easily visible. The hair is then covered with glass, and after being thoroughly dried in a current of warm air is ready to go under the microscope. The kind of solution used depends on the nature of the hair, how large and prominent its structural elements are. Later still other chemicals have to be applied in order to give the medulla or pith of the hair shaft still greater visibility.

For the measurement of the diameter of the hair shaft the ocular micrometer is used. This is a task of the greatest delicacy, as will be seen when it is said that the average shaft of fur hair has a diameter measuring only 1-254,000th part of an inch. Considerable variation is found in the diameters of the shafts in any given tuft of hairs, and the average of a large number of measurements has to be taken to ensure accuracy.

As to the durability of the different kinds of fur, science has by its study of the individual hair shafts established some very useful facts. The table showing the relative durability of twenty-eight of the more commonly worn furs, which Professor Hausman presents in the Scientific Monthly, is one which should be kept carefully in mind by anybody buying a fur coat, cap, muff, stole or boa.

One of the most durable of all furs, according to Professor Hausman, is that of the sea otter. Considering the durability of otter to be represented by 100, the relative durability of some of the other furs, when used with the fur outside (not for linings), is as follows:

Beaver, 100; bear (black or brown), 34; chinchilla, 15; ermine, 25; fox (natural), 40; fox (dyed), 20-25; goat, 15; hare, 5; kolinsky, 25; leopard, 75; lynx, 25; marten (skunk), 70; mink (natural), 70; mink (dyed), 35; mole, 7; muskrat, 45; nutria (Coypu rat—plucked), 25; opossum, 37; rabbit, 5; raccoon (natural), 65; raccoon (dyed), 50; sable, 60; seal (hair), 80; seal (fur), 80; gray squirrel, 20-25; wolf, 50; wolverene, 100.

As will be seen from this, wolverene is the only fur equalling the otter in durability. Rabbit and hare are the least desirable of all furs, and mole ranks almost as low in the scale.

The hair not only of fur-bearing animals but of those like sheep and goats, whose coats supply the raw material for various kinds of textiles, is being studied in the laboratories. The results are expected to make it easier for people to get their money's worth whenever they buy a dress or a suit of clothes or a pair of blankets for their bed.

Newest Ball Gowns and Wraps

by Lady Duff Gordon

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, and foremost creator of fashions in the world, writes each week the fashion article for this newspaper, presenting all that is newest and best in styles for well-dressed women. Lady Duff-Gordon's Paris establishment brings her into close touch with that centre of fashion.

A Luxurious Velvet Wrap That Is Reminiscent of Little Red Riding Hood's Cloak.

A Charming Combination of Gold Lace, Taffeta and Bands of Kolinsky

Dancing Gown of Shadow Lace, Silver Cloth, Maline and Organdie Flowers.

By Lady Duff-Gordon ("Lucile")

PARIS, December 24.

MIDWINTER novelties are concentrated largely in evening gowns and wraps. The ingenuity of designers is focusing upon making milady as lovely as they can by lamplight, because the daylight in which to display her loveliness is so brief.

The large left-hand figure is introduced on this page to afford you the best view, short of the original itself, of an evening wrap that is the last word in ultra smartness. Somewhat reminiscent of little Red Riding Hood's cloak, isn't it? The ingenious designer often goes to nursery rhymes for her inspirations, for nursery rhymes are popular, and every designer of beautiful gowns wishes them to become popular, prate of exclusiveness as she may. This wrap is of velvet. The wrap is rich in long, heavy folds. The cloak is lined with silk and the silk lining is veiled in chiffon. There are no sleeves as such. The arms are thrust through openings defined by gathered velvet. A large, comfortable hood, lined with silver cloth, contributes added warmth besides elegance. The hood is heavily lined with squirrel.

The middle figure discloses the possibilities of a combination of gold lace with bands of kolinsky. The gold lace is utilized as the foundation robe and the bodice displays fully the sumptuous material that is at once the foundation and the trimming. Taffeta is employed for the skirt drapery, which is arranged with considerable fullness. Double bands of kolinsky pass around the drapery below the hipline.

Shadow lace, silver cloth, maline and organdie flowers combine in the fashioning of the third garment which I show you on this page. This is a dancing gown. Its bodice is of silver cloth, slightly draped, as is the panel in front. The skirt is voluminously draped with maline edged with a narrow banding of silver. Hand-made flowers of organdie appear at the front of the corsage, near the edge of the skirt and on the panniers.

FASHIONS HOUSE GOWNS

(New York Times)

The fashion creation de luxe of the Winter season is the gown intime, or the robe d'interieur. The gown intime is that robe which a woman wears about her own home for the afternoon tete-a-tete, at the supper for friends only, or at any occasion when her own home is the setting. Everything is in her favor. Always supposing that her rooms show her own personality, then it is only a short step to the place where her gown shall become but a part of the whole scheme—a salient and harmonious part, to be sure. If she allows herself to be out of the picture, or a jarring note in it, she is in error, and to avoid this failure many more women are giving attention to them than ever before. In the robe d'interieur, a woman finds free latitude for the display of her very own tastes without laying herself open to undue notice. With almost any other of the articles of her outer wardrobe this is not entirely the case, for she has to appear before the general public on most of the other occasions, and there are certain standards and restrictions to be taken into account. The designers are throwing themselves into the creation of these newly evolved garments with great interest. And the reason for their zeal is that they, too, appreciate the wide lines of latitude allowed them in this direction. They turn to the costumes of all nations and all eras for the purpose of gaining ideas for their modern adaptations, and the results show graceful, flowing lines and colorful fabrics and embroideries combined in totally unconventional ways.

Then, for these house gowns are used all the new soft and beautifully woven fabrics; there is a material to express every varying mood. The colors, too, are pure and beautiful; the range of their tones seems to be unlimited.

The batik makers are at their best when it comes to these house gowns, for in the flowing folds of robes of this sort one finds plenty of broad spaces where design and color arrangements may have a possibility of showing to their best advantage. Then, in the Batik gowns it is possible to obtain soft blues and greens and yellows that shine, but do not shriek. Yem batik is surely at its best right here for the house gowns, and many are the women who have taken advantage of the chance to possess gowns piece of this art of dyeing. Some of the designers prefer to use batik on chiffons, putting the dyed material over miscellaneous layers of other hues and tones of the same material. Then there are others who like best to use the soft silks and to make their designs rather more clear cut and brightly colored than it is possible for them to be on the thinner and more transparent fabric.

A clever batik maker dyed a robe that had for the solid part of its color just masses of dull black. Then there was a border of shades of green from the most vivid of tones down to ones that were almost gray in effect. The border running all around the robe was about twelve inches in width, and the manner of of its dyeing was so well done that there showed not a trace of one color pressing its way upon the precincts of any other. The work was perfectly done, and, needless to say, its price entirely kept pace with the beauty of the gown itself.

Some of the designers have had great success with the laying of batik designs on velvet, and in this medium wonderful things have been accomplished in robes d'interieur. The most beautiful of them show bordered designs of one color or two colors set on contrasting colors in the fabric. One of these was made in a straight piece of the velvet (dull red with dyed patterns i nsoft tones of green ad yellow), and the back length of the material was longer by fifteen inches than the piece that made the front. The back, of course, trailed for a space upon the floor. There were no sleeves—just long, graceful slits with heavy gold tassels where they ended under the arm—and the neckline was cut in one of those straight lines from shoulder to shoulder that are so delightfully becoming to the sort of head and throat that can set them off.

There are other batik velvet gowns in all the colors that this material comes in, and the designs that are their only trimming are, in most cases, really captivating in the artistic expression that they carry with them.

Embroidery is another embellishment of the day that finds its best place in combination with the gown intime, for it is here that the hand work can be laid on in broad, straight stripe with no ulterior interruption to spoil the brilliance of its effect. There is a late importation that shows at the waistline a wide strip of Hungarian embroidery in the colors which the peasants of that nation love—yellow and red and white. From below this brilliant color note hangs a straight skirt of accordion pleated tissue in a sort of dull creamy white, and over it, for a suggestion of a bdice, there flows a shimmering piece of silk gauze in the palest of yellow. The strips of material that make the sleeves are finished on their corners (two corners each) with long, silky black tassels. That makes a gown that is worn by a brunette, and there could be nothing more lovely imaginable.

A house gown of velvet, in a pale green shade, is embroidered with motifs scattered with careless discrimination over its entire surface. These are hand embroidered in threads of gold and silver, and the gown itself is lined with a soft piece of silver gauze. It is a gown to make a fairy envious and yet so simple of construction and so inconspicuously accomplished that it fits into its place with the most delightful ease.

The printed chiffons which this country has produced in such beauty have been used with the utmost success for the house gown. Those with all-over patterns are particularly attractive when they are accordion pleated and made up into gowns of ample and flowing folds. They need no trimming—just enough to edge them, and this of something that is quite inconspicuous. One of these was a print done in tones of blue and red and yellow and green, in an all-over pattern which, when the pleating had been accomplished left just a faint suggestion of a mass of bright colors beautifully blended. The gown was made on straight lines of the slip-over variety of dress. It had faint little sleeves, hardly worthy of the name, and a belt of gold cord. There were edgings at the neck and sleeves of a very narrow gold braid. This was particularly lovely, as it was worn in a room decorated in all neutral tones of gray, with touches of gold and one or two bright colors about it. The dress was the center of interest, and a remarkably arresting one at that.

The one-piece, slip-over dress, in fact, has done extra service this season in the way of gowns to be worn only in the privacy of one's home. There is the straight frock made of black velvet, with the chiffon scarf of some bright and glowing color tied about a low or a high waist line and its ends allowed to droop to the bottom of the gown's hem and below it. This frock has been successful on many occasions, but especially on those intimate ones that take place among friends. The metal brocade frocks, too, made over the same entirely simple lines are beautiful for home wear. They are, perhaps, better when only the material that makes them is allowed to shine as any part of the frock. Even the belt should be made of a narrow strip of the gown's own material. But some of them have been beautifully done with chiffon sashes made in the same color as the foundation tone of the brocade.

An embroidered one-piece house frock was made with an all-over embroidered pattern applied in shades of pastel greens, mauves and pinks on a purple crepe foundation. Then the thing was edged at the front where it opened to the hem and around the edges of the three-quarter sleeves with a band of fringey monkey fur. The rather ornate effect was entirely beautiful because of the extreme care with which the colors and materials had been chosen and combined.

Accordion pleating forms the foundation for so many of the more newly created robes d'interieur. Sometimes the skirts and sometimes the whole foundation dress is of soft silk or chiffon laid in the close and graceful pleats. Then the idea is to pose over this slip a cape or a series of capes or sometimes only flowing sleeves, or sometimes a little suggestion of a floating bodice of some other and contrasting material. In chiffons these things are particularly lovely, for this fabric lends itself so gracefully to the combination of tones that create an artistic allusion.

One of the best of these newer and most becoming garments was made of a foundation of mauve pleated chiffon. Then there was a flowing cape covering the back and forming the long wing sleeves made of pale green chiffon and edged all around its edges with a triple row of the narrowest of black, bright green and cerise ribbons laid one against the other. The belt drawn across the waistline of the under slip was made of these three narrow ribbons twisted together.

Another chiffon robe of much this same character was done in tones of cerise and purple, with edgings of kolinsky fur, which gave a rather stunning effect.

The Oriental inspiration has been used for any number of the more beautiful and popular of the house gowns; it is in the Oriental colors and designs used that one finds the greatest possibility for gorgeous personal decorations. The house gown has the fancy dress beaten when it comes to the using of beads and spangles and Oriental embroideries. And for the woman whose type permits there is nothing lovlier than one of these house gowns carried out on Orienta lines.

Anecdotes Of The Famous

In the days of his youth, Gladstone was perched on the box seat of a coach behind an old driver of bibulous appearance. The fare was young enough to be proud of a fine repeater which he carried in his fob.

By way of interesting the driver, he showed it to him and explained its complicated mechanism. The driver took a more or less intelligent interest in the works.

"What I want to know is," he asked at last, "how do you wind that watch when you're drunk?"

Among the curious characters met by Mr. E. F. Benson, the author of "Dodo" and other brilliant works, was the eccentric Mr. J. E. Nixon, Dean of King's College, Cambridge.

Nixon was an odd man, a little over five feet tall, with an artificial right hand. In spite of this he played tennis, nestling the ball in the crook of his arm, and then, by a dexterous jerk of his body, flinging it into the air and serving it.

He would argue about the most casual topic.

"If you said, 'It's a fine day,'" says Mr. Benson in his reminiscences, "Our Family Affairs," he cleared his throat raspingly, and said, 'It all depends on what you mean by fine. If you mean sun and a blue sky, granted; but why shouldn't you call it fine if there are buckets of rain falling? A fish, now'——

"'I meant an ordinary fine day,' interrupted his bewildered guest.

"'Very well; but I say "fish." I'm a fish and you're a fish. To a fish, probably, the wetter it is the finer it is, and there you are.'"

The wit of Sir Francis Burnand was as spontaneous as it was inexhaustible.

On one occasion, at a reception, a beribboned guest came up and greeted him warmly. With a puzzled look he did not reciprocate the recognition.

"Ah," said the stranger, "I see you don't know me from Adam."

"My dear fellow," was the reply, "I didn't know Adam."

Getting Rid of Feminine Moustaches.

"Practical Suggestions."

To women who are annoyed by disfiguring downy hair growths a method of permanently eradicating the same will come as a piece of good news. For this purpose pure powdered pheminol may be used. Almost any chemist should be able to supply an ounce of this drug. The recommended treatment is designed not only to remove the disfiguring growth instantly, leaving no trace, but also to actually kill the hair roots without irritating the skin.

How to have Thick and Pretty Hair.

"Home Talents."

Soaps and artificial shampoos ruin many beautiful heads of hair. Few people know that a teaspoonful of good stallax dissolved in a cup of hot water has a natural affinity for the hair and makes the most delightful shampoo imaginable. It leaves the hair brilliant, soft and wavy, cleanses the scalp completely and greatly stimulates the hair growth. The only draw-back is that stallax seems rather expensive. It comes to the chemist only in sealed ¼ lb. packages, which retail at half-a-crown. However, as this is sufficient for twenty-five or thirty shampoos, it really works out very cheaply in the end.

Blackheads, Oily Pores, etc.

A unique new method instantly removes and corrects them.

The new sparkling face-bath treatment rids the skin of blackheads, oiliness and enlarged pores almost instantly. It is perfectly harmless, pleasant and immediately effective. All you have to do is to drop a stymol tablet, obtained from the chemists, in a glass of hot water, and after the resulting effervescence has subsided dab the affected portions of the face freely with the liquid. When you dry the face you will find that the blackheads come right off on the towel, the large pores contract and efface themselves and the greasiness is all gone, leaving the skin smooth, soft, and cool. This treatment should be repeated a few times at intervals of several days in order to make sure that the result shall be permanent.

Grey Hair Unnecessary.

A simple, old-fashioned home-made lotion that will restore the colour of youth.

One need not resort to the very questionable expedient of hair dye in order not to have grey hair. The grey hair can easily be changed back to a natural colour in a few days time merely by the application of a simple, old-fashioned and perfectly harmless home-made lotion. Procure from your chemist two ounces of tamalite concentrate and mix it with three ounces of bay rum. Apply this to the hair a few times with a small sponge and you will soon have the pleasure of seeing your grey hair gradually darkening to the desired shade. The lotion is pleasant, not sticky or greasy, and does not injure the hair in any way.

Famine Builds Roads For Automobile Trucks In Shantung Province

Lung-Kow And Chefoo To Be Connected; Latter City Will Get Preference Over Tsingtao As Result Of Highway

(China Press Correspondence)

Laichowfu, Shantung, Feb. 18—One of the most encouraging things seen in this part of China for many years is the motor road that is being built from Weihsien to Chefoo. For years our hope, and that of others at Chefoo and elsewhere, has been for a railroad covering the territory now to be traversed by this motor road.

"It is an ill wind that blows no one good," so from the famine China is obtaining a road, in spite of opposition which heretofore has prevented its construction. Though this road has been referred to in the newspapers as a railroad, we are told that it is to be only a motor road. The roadbed is being constructed, however, in such a way as to allow the placing of rails for a railroad later. Some of the bridges will be of wood, but many of them will be built of reinforced concrete.

BUILT IN SECTIONS

The road-bed is being built in sections. These have been connected up as far as Sawhou, the big strawbraid market eighty English miles east of Weihsien. Work is proceeding in sections as far as Ping-li-tien, fifteen miles northeast of Laichowfu city. Although this winter was unusually mild, there was sufficient cold to freeze the ground two feet deep. On this account digging of the earth has been difficult and slow. At the present rate it will take until this time next year to complete the road, but, we are assured, the work will proceed much faster when the ground softens and the days are longer.

Some three thousand men are at work on the road, others may be added later. As is generally known, the workmen are from the famine areas of Shantung and Chihli. The road is being built by the Board of Communications. Money is obtained by special tax. The entire work is being directed by Chinese. It is gratifying to see the systematic way in which the work is being carried forward. All labor is by hand. Thirty-one men constitute a group. One of the number, selected by the group, acts as head. He purchases supplies and directs the work, of his group. The men are supplied with picks, shovels, and small baskets attached to the ends of a pole. One half of the men dig and shovel while the others carry the dirt up on to the roadbed.

MEN ARE CARED FOR

Each group is furnished a certain amount of millet and fuel to begin with. Clothes and a little bedding is provided also when necessary. A stipulated amount is paid to the destitute families back at home; but the men must work to cover this. The men are not paid as day laborers but by piecework, so much for every one hundred square feet. No group will allow any one member to leave; each man must do his part. The groups live in matsheds built below the surface of the ground and shielded as much as possible from the north winds. Each group selects its own cook. As a rule the men seem contented and peaceful. They appear unusually grateful and are doing good work. Our observation of work by Chinese labor in China and with the coolies in France during the war is that one always gets better results in work of this nature when it is done as piece work or contract.

We say the general appearance of the work so far is gratifying because the road-bed is built some four or five feet above the ground in level country, is well drained and considerable attention is given to grading. The dirt is taken from alongside the road. This serves a deep ditch on each side which serves as a drain. Along these ditches trees are to be planted. The cart roads are avoided. Some of these will be bridged where they are far below the level of the fields, as is often the case. A reasonable amount will be paid for land covered in the right of way. A couple dollars is given extra for each grave that has to be moved. The moving is done by owners of the land. Graveyards, are, however, avoided where possible.

LUNGKOW TO CHEFOO

The original plan was to run the road by Hwanghsien, one of the largest cities in eastern Shantung, but the present plan is to touch only at Lung-kow, the principal seaport west of Chefoo on the north coast of Shantung. From Lungkow the road will go to Tengchowfu and thence to Chefoo. A branch line may be built from Lungkow to Hwanghsien.

This road will promote the export and import of goods by way of Lungkow and Chefoo instead of by Tsingtao. China is doing well to give attention to this, for Chefoo is the only port of consequence she has left in North China that is not frozen up part of the year. The straw-braid industry will be greatly helped. There are locally softstone mines, marble quarries, salt and perhaps minerals that may be exported in large quantities if cheap transportation is provided. There is much travel to and from Manchuria along the present highway. This is one of the most densely populated sections of the world, so we may expect the building of factories and introduction of other industries that will give labor to many who are idle much of the year, and better their living conditions.

The road is to be well rolled and gravelled, it is claimed. No carts or animals are to be allowed on it, only motor cars and trucks being used.

Lamp Wick Reduces Rattles Of Truck

The motor truck is, of course, peculiarly liable to rattles, and anything that helps reduce this will be valuable. A strip of round lamp wick or rawhide fastened along the edge of the radiator upon which the front end of the bonnet rests will prevent some of the noise. The ledge can be prepared for the wick or hide by drilling holes, through which the material is threaded, or by drilling smaller holes and securing the wick in place by pieces of fine wire.

SAFETY DRIVE IN NEWARK

Believing that pedestrians are 50 percent to blame for automobile catastrophes, the Police Department of Newark, N. J., inaugurated on January 1 an educational campaign for those who travel by foot. The campaign, by which it is hoped to reach nearly every resident in the city, is to be conducted through the co-operation of large department stores, factories and other business houses. Director William J. Brennan of the Department of Public Safety and Traffic Captain McRell are responsible for the innovation.

During the noon hour some official of the Police Department will visit one or another of the stores and factories and lecture for a brief period on the pedestrian's responsibility and how, by a little more caution on the part of those who walk, the number of street casualties may be appreciably lessened.

Carelessness on the part of pedestrians who walk across streets as oblivious of danger as a poet in a garden is the chief reason for the large number of accidents, is the belief of Captain McRell. Another practice which must be rectified before the streets are made safe for pedestrians is that of crossing wherever the fancy wills. The jay walker must go, at least in the crowded sections of the city, says McRell, and if it is found that lectures on the subject do not eliminate the evil, it is probable that the Newark City Commission may enact some ordinance making it unlawful to cross other than at a designated street crossing.

RESILIENCY

It is old stuff to say that sprung vehicles pull easier than unsprung ones, but it seems to be generally forgotten, nevertheless. Add to good springs, rubber tires, roller wheel bearings and good steering gear, especially the the wheel tracking kind, and the difference is 30 to 40 percent.

SWEET, EH?

On account of the high cost of gasoline in South Africa, which rate is $1.12 an imperial gallon (1 1-15 American gallon), automobiles use a compounds of refuse from the sugar cane mills.

A motor lorry drawing a Troy Trailer can travel around any of the difficult turns that can be made by the lorry itself. The trailer can be backed by the lorry around any corner or into any dead-end lane.

The use of a Troy Trailer in connection with a motor lorry reduces the ton-mile overhead expense by reason of the fact that the trailer needs no attendant.

The extra petrol required to transport the double load carried by a lorry and a trailer does not exceed fifteen per cent of the petrol required by the lorry when travelling with its own load.

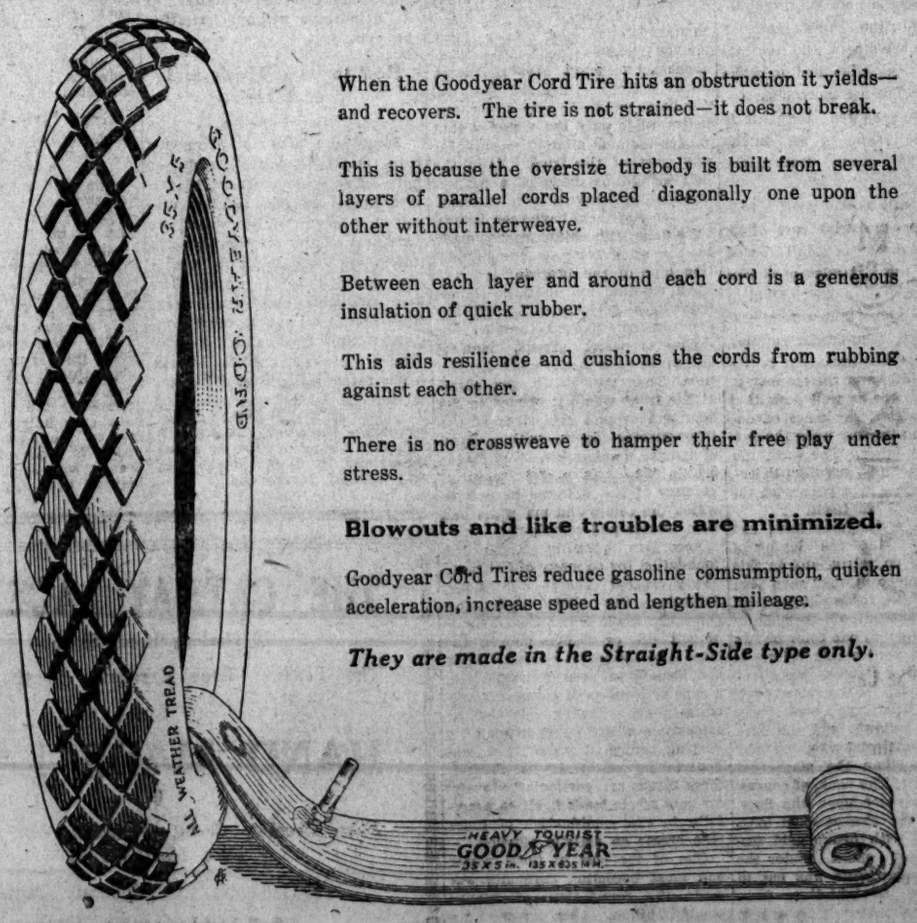
Fewer Tire Troubles With Goodyear Cords



When the Goodyear Cord Tire hits an obstruction it yields—and recovers. The tire is not strained—it does not break.

This is because the oversize tirebody is built from several layers of parallel cords placed diagonally one upon the other without interweave.

Between each layer and around each cord is a generous insulation of quick rubber.

This aids resilience and cushions the cords from rubbing against each other.

There is no crossweave to hamper their free play under stress.

Blowouts and like troubles are minimized.

Goodyear Cord Tires reduce gasoline comsumption, quicken acceleration, increase speed and lengthen mileage.

They are made in the Straight-Side type only.

WHAT IS TORQUE? AH! 'TIS SIMPLE!

It's 'Kick' As Explained By Garage Expert—Gosh, Who'd A Thunk It?

What is torque?

Despite the fact that this word is one of the most frequently used in the entire automobile vocabulary, its meaning is probably least understood. And the more the word is explained technically and scientifically, the more confused does its meaning become in the mind of the average automobile owner.

Thus, when it is explained that torque means the foot pounds of energy developed by an engine at any given speed, the average motor fan may assume an air of intelligence, but the chances are that his mind is registering a blank.

Likewise, when he is told that torque means the turning effort exerted by an engine, as distinct from its power, which is turning effort multiplied by speed, he is as a rule just as much enlightened as he was before.

American slang, lucid and expressive, is due a vote of thanks from the motoring public for finally interpreting the meaning of torque so that the layman can understand.

The definition given to torque by the garage mechanic is vigorous and illuminating.

The torque of an engine, says the garage expert, is its "kick." That's all there is to it.

A six-cylinder, high-efficiency engine, will have more "kick" than an engine of some other type, giving it a faster pick-up and more power at various engine speeds.

Simple, isn't it, when you think of it that way, instead of befogging the idea with a lot of technical terms?

Slang is a great thing sometimes.

EXPORT AUTO SHOW

During the national show week an entirely new motor exhibition will be in progress. It is known as the Export Automobile Exhibition, and will be open every day during the coming week on the main floor of the Hotel Majestic, Central Park West and Seventy-second Street. Its object is the development of foreign business, and it is held under the auspices of the American Motors, Inc., of New York. Invitations have been extended to foreign visitors, Consuls and representatives of purchasers of automotive products abroad.

Many of the models displayed, although well known throughout the South and West, have never been shown in New York prior to this exhibition. They include cars built exclusively for export and a chassis for which the buyer can build his own body and give it his own trade name. So as to show how automobiles are made ready for foreign shipment, there is placed on view a standard five-passenger touring car, dissembled and properly crated for export.

Clean Car Sign Of Careful Owner And Prevents Repairs

Soon will come the days when keeping a motor car looking neat is a hard, hard task. No sooner will one get the windshield nicely polished and the surface of the car free from mud and along will come another rainstorm to make the painstaking motorist do the work all over again.

"Frequent washing and cleaning becomes a necessity from now on," declares F. W. Schlobohm of the Central Garage Service Station.

"There are more ways than one to clean a car, however, and careless cleaning has more than once ruined the appearance of a fine automobile. Even if the appearance is not at once spoiled, the paint finish may be weakened by improper cleaning to such an extent that it will only last a few months instead of at least several years.

"When washing your car, don't turn the hose directly on the wheels or body unless the water pressure is very low. Pressure usually built up by the nozzle is sufficient to mar the paint or dislodge it where the water is foolishly dashed against the surface.

"The best way is to use a pail of water and a sponge. This will mean much gentler treatment of the paint, and the surface will last much longer. Be sure the sponge is clean and that no grits are lodged in it; otherwise scratches might result that would mar the surface of your car.

"In cleaning the windshield and any other glass on your car, remember that warm water and vinegar cut the dirt from glass very easily, and that ordinary clean newspaper makes practically as good a dryer as chamois or waste.

"By all means, keep your car in good shape during the winter months. If you let mud cling to its surface any length of time, you will find it exceedingly hard to get the stains off. This does not mean that it is necessary in polish the car up after every sprinkle, but take enough pride in the appearance of your automobile to keep it looking well as much of the time as possible. And remember that, after all, elbow grease is the most effective brand of cleaner yet invented."

52 Tires In 8 Hours Record Established By California Youth

Speaking of champions.

Making tires is an art requiring the closest of application, for specifications are exacting and inspections are rigid. A record of forty tires a day is considered a good performance for a tire-builder, but that Westerners quickly acquire proficiency in trades heretofore considered distinctly Eastern is indicated in a new tire-building mark just set up in the Los Angeles factory of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of California.

M. L. Dankers, formerly of Garden Grove, Orange county, California, in the new Goodyear champion, having established a record of building fifty two tires in eight hours. Setting up the new mark required the handling of eighteen rolls of the fabric.

Goodyear men declare him a natural tire-builder, and state that after only nine days' experience as a helper he was given a regular station as a tire-builder.

MOTOR BUS CARRIES 90 PER

What is said to be the largest passenger-carrying motor vehicle ever built was designed by D. W. Templing, an automobile engineer in Ohio. The motor street car or bus carries ninety passengers, has upholstered seats, electric lights and adjustable windows. It runs on six wheels and the engine is a six-cylinder rated at seventy-five horsepower.

RADIATOR REPAIRS

In making repairs on the inside of a cellular radiator with the ordinary type of soldering iron an inexpert workman, such as the ordinary car owner is likely to be, is very likely to start more joints leaking, so that the radiator is worse after he gets through than it was in the first place. This is a job for an expert.

CLEANING THE MUFFLER

In cleaning the muffler, after the part has been disassembled and the part cleaned with kerosene, it is well to go over all the holes designed to break up the gas with a sharp punch or fine taper reamer to make sure that these holes have not been reduced in size by accumulations or burned oil or carbon.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS IN NORTHERN MEXICO

Lower California, known chiefly to westerners for its miniature Monte Carlos at Tia Juana and Mexicali, and especially popular as an oasis offering relief to thirsty Americans, bids fair to become as well known for its good roads as for its lack of interest in enacting prohibitory liquor legislation.

The latest highway improvement in the land which for several centuries served as a headquarters for the colonisation of the western coast, is an excellent surfaced road between Mexicali, the capital city of Lower California, in the Imperial Valley, and Ensenda, the chief Pacific port of the peninsula.

This highway winds through the deserts and mountains for a distance of 100 miles and is extremely important as a means of transportation of merchandise to the coast, and as a military road. It was over this road that the present Mexican administration proposed, several months ago, to send an army against former governor Estuban Cantu, to enforce his withdrawal from public office.

The Mexican government has just purchased two motor trucks equipped with Goodyear tires, to operate over this highway between Mexicali and Ensenda, carrying government supplies.

Enjoyable motoring is an accomplished fact with a Triumph as your mount. Years ago this "big single" proved its superiority—to-day it is still the leader of its class.

Good Vulcanizing Pays!

Dear Motorist:

Webster says that a specialist is one whose knowledge, ability and efforts are centered around some particular line.

Therefore, we are particularly able to make a lasting repair for you because all our efforts are centered in tire repairing. We are specialists and our methods are the most up-to-date.

Every repair we make for you will be thoroughly workmanlike and sure to pay for itself in service from the tire.

We are especially fitted to repair cord tires and will give you the same expert repair service upon cord tires as upon fabric tires.

If you are about to discard a worn casing, let us see it. If the body is sound we can save the tire for long, economical service at relatively small cost.

Better bring the old casing in soon. With our experience and special skill, let us help you get full mileage from your tires.

TRAVEL EVOLUTION IS TO BE FILMED

Even Mechanism Of Motor Cars To Be Shown In Unique Pictures

For the first time the evolution of travel is to be picturised and the public is to have an opportunity to see just what has led up to modern modes and methods of travel and of what struggles and efforts and conquests these methods are the result.

The story of travel evolution, from the earliest days when primitive man had only his two legs to carry him, through the ages to the coming of the "horseless carriage" is to be shown in the motion pictures.

This picture is a result of a belief on the part of officials of the Cole Motor Car Company of Indianapolis that a product has a greater appeal to the to the general public if associated in the minds of the public with a definite background, either of history or manufacturing process. The Harry Levey Service Corporation of New York is directing the making of the production, which, it is said, is to be an elaborate one, and which will require many months for completion.

TO SHOW ALL PHASES

Every phase in the story of travel evolution is being picturised, and camera men are being sent to all corners of the globe to secure authentic scenes. Museums throughout the world are being secured for models of means of ancient travel and permits are being secured for camera men to photograph them.

One important feature in the making of this production will be the making of such models as are not in existence today either in museums or elsewhere. In the course of the evolution of travel vehicles of queer kinds have been made some of them so queer that they did not survive to be placed into actual general usage, and perhaps one or two vehicles were the total output of some of these. Although they did not survive or enter general use, however the influence of same of these modes of travel was felt later in vehicles of travel, which embodied characteristics first appearing in these rare specimens—such was the case with the steam carriage, propelled by legs striking against the ground Very few of these were ever made, and none of them are in existence today, yet their influence is felt in later-day travel.

For this reason, in a special historical department, such vehicles are being carefully studied through the medium of old books, charts and drawings, and a special staff of technical builders is manufacturing models in accordance with plans and specifications laid out as a result of the information contained in these volumes. These will then be filmed as part of the story of travel evolution.

WILL SHOW MECHANISMS

Animal travel, beasts of burden in all parts of the world—the ostrich, the dog, the llama, the camel, the dogs of the frozen North—and all other animals that have played or do play a part in the travel of the world, are being photographed.

Another big feature of this picture will be showing for the first time through the medium of the screen, the mechanism of many of the modes of travel—and especially of the modern motor car., It has been discovered that the percentage of motor car owners who really know what is going on in their cars, why the machinery acts certain ways and why it refuses to act in other ways, is remarkably small.

By means of a new contrivance known as the mechanigraph, it is possible to show on the screen exactly show the wheels go round. A replica of the mechanism is built of a specially prepared fiber board, and animated by hand under a specially focused camera for this purpose.

The picture, which is to be called "The Porcelain Lamp," is to be shown internationally, it is stated.

BEWARE OF FRAUD IN NAME OF TIRE

The vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the world has sent a warning out to newspapers to beware of deceptive practices on the part of the "Kelly-Greenfield Rubber Company," a concern which is making a reconstructed tire. The firm name is so similar to "Kelly-Springfield" that owners who might read the advertising of the first named outfit would be led to think that they were one and the same as the well-established and reputable Kelly-Springfield organisation.

ABOUT COTTER PINS

After having slipped the cotter pin into place, do not bend the ends over flat against the bolt or rod. It isn't necessary to do this, because the cotter will lock just as securely if the ends are spread just enough to prevent slipping out. When the ends are bent considerably, it is harder to straighten them sufficiently for later removal of the pin, and, further, the ends are very apt to break off when the part is in service, with the very probable result that the ill-treated cotter will slip out. Thus, instead of necessive end bending being an effective locking means, it is in reality no lock at all.

ACID PROOF WOOD

When the storage battery is carried in a wooden box there is always trouble from the acid slopping over and eating the wooden box. Wood may be made proof against acid by painting with a mixture of six parts wood tar and twelve parts rosin. These ingredients are melted together in an iron kettle, after which eight parts of finely powdered brick dust are stirred in. The surfaces are first thoroughly cleaned and then painted with this mixture warm.

33,000-YEAR TRIP TO WEAR OUT TIRES

Figures bring out some interesting facts concerning automobile tires. The mileage required to wear out the tires in the Goodyear factories alone, almost staggers comprehension. Goodyear's production of tires for the fiscal year just past was approximately 7,300,000. Taking eight thousand miles, which is conservative, as an average mileage for each tire, the total mileage necessary to wear out the year's output, would be more than fifty-eight billions.

A car would have to cover 14,600,000,000 miles to wear them all out—would have to travel 580,000 times around the world, or 78 round trips between the earth and the sun.

Or to put the figures another way, an automobile going at a speed of fifty miles an hour, would have to travel day and night for a period of 33,000 years to wear out the 1920 Goodyear output.

Travel To Europe Is Below Average

Motor tourist travel to Europe last year fell far below the average despite preparations by the European countries, which expected an overwhelming influx of motorists from the U.S.A., according to reports received by George S. Grant, manager of the touring bureau of the California State Automobile Association.

Sale of gasoline at 75 gold cents to $1 a gallon, increased hotel charges, poor road conditions and increased transportation charges were responsible for the failure of the 1920 touring season.

HE SOLVED IT

Finding local elevators filled to capacity and unable to obtain cars in which to ship wheat, D. C. Hibbard, a Potter (Neb.) farmer, hauled 110 bushels of wheat on his two-ton truck to Omaha, 480 miles away. The trip required three days. The total expense was $22.09, or 21 cents a bushel.

IN INDIA NEXT MONTH

In India an automobile show will be held in Delhi in February under the auspices of the local motor trade association.

FRIENDLY

Navy	5	S. F. C. 3rd.	5

By "Whistle"

Yesterday was a busy day for football, and turned out to be an ideal day from the players' point of view.

A dry ground, no sun and practically no wind, all combined to produce fast and accurate football. The Navy were going very strong, the annexed four points in the second League at the expense of the Club and the Engineers.

It was an example of the uncertainty which the Navy has introduced into the League; with the Hawkins and the Curlew in port, they were able to put some strength out. The team which met the Club was the Navy first eleven excepting the two backs who had a Rugger engagement, it was a good team and it so happened that the Club "got it in the neck," as they were scheduled to meet the Navy in the League on Saturday, and as a result their unbeaten record was broken.

With this team figuring against the army, Tuesday's game should be worth watching The Navy, forwards on Saturday's showing, will give the local defence all they want and something over, they are fast and both combine shoot, and being in good training can keep it up full time.

S.F.C. vs. POLICE

This League fixture was played yesterday and resulted in a somewhat unexpected win for the Police by two love.

It was not the Club's day out and their display was one of the poorest they have given this year.

The Police took charge from the opening and began pressing vigorously.

They had one or two tries and then Hotchkiss got the ball well up near goal and made no mistake. It was a good goal and McLean had no chance. The Club tried hard to equalise, but nothing eventuated, the defence was too much on the jump for the forwards to find the goal, Knight was very busy at this stage and what he passed Quayle picked up.

The pressure was soon relieved and the Police went down again.

WATSON NETS THE SECOND

The second goal was the result of some good work. Hotchkiss and Ling went down, the latter put a fine pass across and Watson (still on his honeymoon) headed it in, in first class style. Nothing much further occurred for some time, but just before half time Coulcher looked like scoring for the Club, when he was fouled close in, a good deal of discussion from the police defence ensued, but the Referee gave a free kick, which Forshaw placed to the wing, it was safely cleared, however, and the Whistle went, leaving the Police two in hand.

In the second half the Club woke up but the Police had the game up their sleeves and try as they would the Club forwards could not pass Cameron. Coulcher and Robertson went as near scoring as possible, but several chances were lost owing offside and wide shooting. Leslie got crossed during the first half and could do nothing much during the second. Weeks and Robertson also got shaken up and altogether things were not bright for the Club.

For the winners Camerson in goal, and Ling and Watson in the forward line were the best though the whole team played well and deserved their Victory.

RECS vs. XAVIERS

This game was played on the Recs' ground on Saturday and was won by them 3—1. They started with 9 men, and the Xaviers took advantage by pressing hard, Guttierez took the first drive, a fine shot just glancing over the bar. A Sofoulis appeared and the Recs soon began to attack. J. Wade testing Garry with a stinger, and repeated the dose, but Garry took his medicine in

REWARD!

Who Killed Miss Rivers?

Tomorrow night Mr. Edgar Warwick will present at the Lyceum Theater, N. and J. Thorpe-Maynes mystery play entitled "The last Act." Quite a deal of excitement has already been engendered locally by this play, and the booking has therefore been heavy. There will only be the one performance and the audience will be asked to give its idea as to the finale. But to explain matters I cannot do better than give herewith the notes sent along to me by Edgar himself:

"The play presents an extremely baffling problem, and members of the audience will be afforded the opportunity of recording their solutions in the form of a competition.

Slips will be enclosed in each program that is issued upon which will appear the question: "Who killed Miss Rivers?" At any time up to the conclusion of Act 2 they can be deposited in a box provided for the purpose in the theater, and immediately upon the rise of the curtain on Act 3 the box will be removed to the theater office and opened. The first correct answer that is drawn from it will be adjudged the winning one and will be awarded the prize.

"The solution is not easy. At some time or other during the play every character comes under suspicion. At the end of Act 2 you will find yourself guessing hard.

WHO KILLED MISS RIVERS?

PASS ME THE LYRE:

Tomorrow Warwick will present
A play with lots of shivers,
It has more thrills than you can get
From riding in Ford flivvers;
Thorpe-Mayne has got in his "Last Act"
The stuff for sluggish livers,
I'll let you guess—
But I confess
I didn't kill Miss Rivers.

MORE "BROWN SUGAR" PLEAS

"I have had so many requests for 'Brown Sugar' that I have decided to put it on next Tuesday in place of 'Doormats.' We leave on Thursday —at least so the shipping company says. I know them of old, however, and shall not be surprised if we don't get away until later. "I am expecting good things from 'Arms and the Man.' (Bernard Shaw). The rehearsals are going very well, and it is, as you know, a picturesque play with plenty of laughs in it."

So writes Edgar Warwick in a letter I received yesterday. He has done well here and thoroughly deserves his success. He has brought a number of fine plays and even finer players. His program for the last three nights is:

Monday. "The Last Act."
Tuesday. "Brown Sugar." (By general request.)
Wednesday. "Arms and the Man."

PETER DAWSON

Miss Eileen Dawn, the manager of the Edgar Warwick Company, left the port a few days ago for Bombay to pick up Peter Dawson, probably the best of England's baritones. She is bringing him through the East for Edgar Warwick but he will only be able to play a short tour as he is booked up for next winter's London season. It is not certain if the well-known vocalist will have time to reac. Shanghai but it is to be hoped that he will. Mr. Peter Dawson has with him some excellent supporting artistes. Amongst them is Mr. Selwyn Driver. Those who remember the late Barclay Gammon will welcome in Mr. Selwyn Driver his legitimate successor.

THE ARMY AND NAVY

What promises to be a grand game of football takes place next Tuesday on the Race Course between team representing the Army and Navy. The Army team will be composed of players, who have by this time have gone into permanent mufti, but the Navy team will have an eleven that is still very much on the active list.

The game will start late in the afternoon so as to give office men and all daily tollers a chance of arriving in time to see the kick-off. By the way bring a dollar or two—a hundred or two if you can—as there will be a collection on the ground, and all the proceeds will be given to St. Dunstan's Hostel for the Blind.

WELL DONE S. P. S.

Football reminds me! The Public School teams have all been going great guns during the last season. Last week midgets, juniors, and seniors, all met and defeated their old rivals, the lads from St. Xaviers after fine tussles. The senior team has had a wonderful record, and has gone through the season without a defeat. The boys who represent the Public School in the League have also done well. Mr. G. M. Billings and his staff can feel mightily pleased with the results of their efforts to turn out fine sportsmen.

'FATTY' ARBUCKLE

"Fatty" Arbuckle, who came out here some seven or eight years ago with the Ferris Hartman Comedy Company, and who, many of us will remember, did his best to make us laugh and grow fat, has since gone into the pictures and picture fans can tell with what success. He has been writing up the true story of his life for one of our London weeklies (Tit Bits) and the reading of his adventures is every bit as funny as seeing him carry around his eighteen and a half stone of avoirdupois.

He starts away with "Now the fats in the fire!" One of the best of his stories let me give herewith:

What I thrived on most was porridge. This is due to my Scotch descent, of which I am "verra proud" (with apologies to Sir Harry Lauder). I like the Scotch, especially when it's labelled.

SNAKES!

Which reminds me that you've got a durned sight more prohibition on this side than we have in New York. There's more good Scotch in that little city than there is in the whole of England. The only thing that "Pussyfoot's" done in America is to enlarge our hip-pockets. Where the flask goes, you know! All you have to do is to go to a chemist and get a prescription. But you've got to be diplomatic. Don't make the same mistake as the stranger in a small American town which had gone dry.

He wanted a drink, and was told that he could get one at the local chemist's. The chemist inquired what was the matter with him. Was he ill?

"Yes," replied the man. "What is wrong with you" asked the chemist. "Nothing in particular. I am just ill." "Well," said the chemist, "I can't let you have a drink just because you are ill. You must have something specific the matter with you." "What do you suggest?" inquired the man. The chemist said, "You might have been bitten by a snake, for example," "I have," said the man. "But that won't do," said the chemist. "You must really have been bitten by a snake. The cobbler down the street has got a snake, and he might lend him to you."

The thirsty man called on the cobbler, who admitted that he possessed a snake, but said it was booked up for three years—day and night!

Foreigners Again Win From Chinese In Basketball Game

Heavier Team Romps Away With Y.M.C.A. Quintet By Score Of 44-19

All the dope was upset—if the score sheet sent to this office in miserable shape is figured out right—for it looks as if the foreigners defeated the Chinese Y. M. C. A. basketball team by a score of 44-19. The game evidently showed the score to be 16-9 at the end of the first half and opposite Giauque's name is written "ten goals."

The foreigners were expected to win, but not by such a wide margin. Irle played a good game. McCloy, Gray, Haskell and Jackson were the others in the Foreign lineup while the Chinese showed Feng, Woo, Liu, Wong and Zee.

COBB LETS CRUMPLER GO

Pitcher Crumpler, a left-hander, has been obtained from the Detroit Americans for the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League.

Crumpler, according to Manager Ty Cobb of the Tigers, has the reputation of being "a second Babe Ruth whenit comes to hitting."

DAVIS CUP MEN WILL NOT COME; HARDY IS HERE

Tilden And Johnson Are Now On Their Way To America From Australia

WASHBURN IN PEKING

Sam Hardy, U. S. Clay Court Champion, In Shanghai For Short Stay

Sam Hardy, American clay court tennis champion, who accompanied William M. Johnson and William Tilden to Australia where they won the Davis Cup, arrived in Shanghai yesterday.

Local tennis hounds, who were hoping to see an exhibition game staged at the French Club by the champions of the world are doomed to disappointment for Mr. Hardy brings word that Johnson and Tilden are now enroute to America from Australia and that Watson Washburn, the fourth member of the party, is in Peking and that he will go from there to Kobe. He will not visit Shanghai.

Incidently Mr. Hardy has a bum shoulder which he is hoping will be in good condition by the time he reaches the States in April.

CALLED TO AMERICA

"I am very sorry," said Mr. Hardy at the Astor House yesterday, "that Shanghai cannot see Johnson and Tilden play. They have won the tennis championship of the world for America and I believe that they can defend the cup against a team of any nation.

"Business called them back to America. They are life insurance men in New York and tennis has taken them away from their business since May when we sailed to England to play the preliminary games.

"Mrs. Hardy and I wanted to see China so we have taken the time to come and I am very glad this was possible. We will have been away from New York about a year when we reach there and I will be glad to get back—especially as we are bringing home the bacon. I have traveled 36,000 miles on this trip. We are sailing February 23 for Japan where we will meet Mr. Washburn and are booked home from Yokohama."

The contest for the Davis Cup will be held in America next year and teams from many countries will meet on the Atlantic coast courts. Japan, Belgium, Spain, Holland and India will be represented this year. The Cup was won by Australia in 1914 and held during the war. The recent match in which the American team won the honors was the first played in four years.

IS FORMER CHAMP

Mr. Hardy was the Pacific Coast champion 1892 to 1900 and held the clay court championship from 1917 to 1920 when he took the Davis team to England. He is very modest about his own claims to fame and prefers to tell of the wonderful playing done by Tilden and Johnson.

Mrs. Hardy is enthusiastic about tennis. She declares that she is having a splendid time and now that the Cup is won she wants to see China. She is interested in things Chinese, having learned to love the East and the people of China in San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy will visit Soochow before sailing.

ROSE CLIPS TIME IN HARRIERS' RUN

Young Cross-Country Man Covers Championship Course In Fine Form

The Shanghai Harriers yesterday romped over the course which will be used for this year's Club championship run, and enjoyed a fine chase of something over seven miles.

Two packs were in the field for the run yesterday, fast and slow. At the head of the slow pack Tom McKenna set the pace during the early stages, after which Goodhind took the lead. The latter was caught in the last half-mile by young Rose, who ran a remarkable race with the fast aggregation, covering the course in 50 minutes 18 seconds, which chips 2 minutes 42 seconds off the previous best time for the run.

The first three men to finish were G. Rose, W. J. G. Goodhind and H. F. L. Wilson. On his present form Rose will be a hard man to beat over a distance course. The renowned Reneman may show better form later, while Wilson, who has come up wonderfully is improving steadily.

The Club championship is to be run off a week from next Saturday. Next Saturday's run will be over a 3-mile cross-country course.

Ballad Of The Hunt Handicap, 1921

By Bolting Rabbit

(With Apologies To Longfellow)

SHOULD you ask me who was Potter?
Ask me of the great man Potter,
I should answer your enquiries,
Straightway in such words as follow.
Roundabout the Shanghai country,
Flat and ugly Shanghai country,
Dwelt the Master, Mr. Potter,
Of the Shanghai Paper Hunt Club.
Listen to this tale of Potter—
He, the able members' Master.
After we had held some eight hunts,
Hunts that tested every rider,
Said the Master, "Now I'll lay them
Such a course as beats the faint ones;
E'en a course to test the stout hearts."

SUCH a course straightway he laid them.
Some four dozen members started,
Full of hope and jumping powder;
Other notables were leaping
O'er the sticks at Kiangwan Races.
Highland Grips was where they started;
Nothing there to fright the weakest;
Then to Warren Line he led them,
Over which they galloped freely.
Came Big Schultz, beflagged but yawning,
Twelve foot six of honest jumping,
Big Schultz waiting for its victims.
Honest jumpers flew the chasm;
Others did not share their fortune,
Fortune great as proved thereafter.
Spence and Fash bought Big Schultz nobly
Other riders also bought it;
Do not want to know it further.

THEN they hared away to Suez,
Suez big but very easy,
Jumped by all except the stumers,
Handicaps see but few stumers;
So to Marah, far from bitter,
There is nothing wrong with Marah.
Meanwhile Gibby of the gumshoes,
Whom this paper pink does love so,
Led the van of hearty thrusters,
Twelve stone seven of thrusting Gibbings,
None could pass him. Oh, you Gibby!
Up to Dallas led them flying,
Dallas' Grave, though he's alive still,
For I saw him at the Finish.
After Dallas' nothing special
Till they reached the Master's cumsha,
Cumsha made of gaping water,
Nine foot six of gaping water,
Gaping for the tired and weary.
Sparky bought it e'en on Wild Cat,
Jumped upon a weaker brother,
Who had fallen right across it.
Far from clear was old Clear Water;
At four twenty one pip emma,
Wild Cat lay with feet extended;
Winded somewhat Sparke and Wild Cat;
Winners they will be one day soon.
Benbow jumped it over Wild Cat,
Benbow of the many hunts won,
And sped on with Doctor Davis,
Little Davis whom we all love.

GIBBINGS still was going great guns
Over jump and over furrow,
So was Bantry Bay 'neath Gibbings;
Gibby—if you die tomorrow,
You'll be square with Paperhunting!
Billinghurst, the kindly doctor,
Followed them as if his patients,
Quite recovered, would not need him.
Benbow bought it, on sped Davis,
With electric Knight behind him,
Till they reached the famous Bathtub;
Davis fell within the Bathtub,
Not so clean as mine of porcelain,
Porcelain which the Club provides me.
Knight ran wide and so he lost it——
Lost the chance he had of winning,
Many places last year had he.
In this region fell poor Kenny;
Peerless hants and seat has Kenny
But he bought it as did others;
On his nose fell Jockey Kenny,
But he'll win before some others.

SO to Barrier, gentle Barrier,
Sped the leader and his followers,
Hind and Lindsay followed Gibby,
Though a long way after Bantry.
Down the Barrier Line they hurtled,
Over Bee Line, big but pleasant,
Bantry cantered through the red flags,
Flags that mean so much to hunters,
And the others followed somehow— — —
Bonar, Stromwall, Schoch and Herlof,
David, Knight and other thrusters,
Just in time to cheer the winner.
Twenty-seven minutes only,
Heavenly minutes to the swift ones,
But a lifetime to the slothful,
We must never more be slothful!
By the flags stood Master Potter,
Smiling gently, full of pleasure,
That he'd laid the course so truly
That the riders all said "good show,"
"Good Show" was the word in Flanders,
When our leaders kept their end up.

Bush And Porter Playing For Local Title Wednesday; George Gray Meets Winner

Final In Amateur Billiard Championship Tournament To Be At Town Hall; World's Record Holder Meeting 1921 Shanghai Champ

Shanghai billiard enthusiasts will have the opportunity of seeing some first-class billiards during the coming week, as the Shanghai Billiard Association is staging two important matches.

Since the organisation of the Shanghai Amateur Billiard Association some six or seven years ago, the Association has pulled off some very successful billiard matches and the matches this year promises to be still more attractive than anything heretofore staged.

SHANGHAI CHAMPIONSHIP

The Shanghai Championship final will be played on Wednesday and the game will be 1,500 points, played according to the rules of the Billiard Control Association.

Mr. C. W. Porter has won the billiard championship four times and if he succeeds in winning this year the trophy will become his permanent property. Mr. Porter is playing very steadily and there is little doubt but that he will put up a very good fight for the championship. Mr. E. D. Bush has come to the fore very rapidly during this last few years and he plays a very consistent game, and no doubt will be able to make a very interesting game with Mr. Porter.

It is very fortunate that Mr. George Gray, the holder of the world's record break of 2,196 (unfinished), is now in Shanghai. He has arrived at a very opportune time, when there is great interest being taken in billiards—and furthermore Mr. Gray has very kindly come forward and expressed his willingness to play a match of 1,500 points with the 1921 champion of Shanghai. This match will be played on Thursday, and the game will be divided into two halves, one half of which will be played before dinner and the other after dinner. The game being 1,500 points will give Mr. Gray a much better opportunity of settling down and making a large break and it is believed that he will be able to excel himself in this event.

Mr. George Gray's record as a billiard player is such that would be a big attraction in itself and as he is playing the best of the local talent, in a place so suitable as the Town Hall, the match should be one of the most attractive ever been staged in Shanghai.

BOOSTING BILLIARDS

The Shanghai Amateur Billiard Association has endeavored, during the last few years, to assist in the improvement of amateur billiards in Shanghai, and so far they have been very successful in being able to gather the different representatives from Shanghai Clubs together into one association.

The object of the Billiard Association, beyond creating an interest in billiards, has been to hold matches and donate the proceeds to some worthy cause.

This year the Committee of the Billiard Association have decided that they would hold the championship in the Town Hall, so as to raise more money for charity, and further they have decided that the money so collected this year will be donated to the Famine Relief Fund.

The Town Hall is large and the most suitable place for a billiard match as it gives ample room for staging and will hold as many people as care to see the match. The Committee of the Association have extended invitations to Chinese gentlemen wishing to see the matches and a great many Chinese are responding to the invitations and are buying tickets, and it is hoped that many more who are interested in billiards will take this opportunity of seeing really first-class billiards.

TICKETS AT CLUBS

Admission tickets are being sold at $5.00 for reserve seats for each match and $3.00 for ordinary seats. Admission tickets will also be sold for $2.00. There will be 100 reserve seats for both matches, and plenty of seating accommodation with the ordinary seats. Tickets are on sale by the Secretaries of the various Clubs in Shanghai, or direct from Mr. H. E. Gibson, care of Foster-McClellan Company and Mr. R. P. Phillips, of Gande, Price and Co.

Mr. H. E. Gibson, who will referee the two matches, has requested us to ask the public who attend the match to kindly observe the rules of billiards and to refrain from applause while the players are at the table, and not to

MANILA SENDING CRACK BALL CLUB TO OLYMPIC MEET

Former Leaguers, College And School Stars Coming Here For May Games

The Philippines will have a great baseball team for the Far Eastern championships which are to be staged here beginning May 30 and the Filipinos should win from both China and Japan without difficulty.

Dr. Regino Ylanan, former Cebu High School and University of the Philippines catcher, who is now Director of Physical Education at the Manila University, will accompany the team as coach. Dr. Ylanan is a graduate of Springfield Y.M.C.A. College.

The team will include Lorenzo, outfielder, and Calixto, shortstop, of the 4th Philippine Infantry. Both played here two years ago. Former Manila leaguers include Charlie Platon and Ciriaco, catchers; Mike Platon and Bernales, infielders, and Garcia, Pablo and Jaropillo, outfielders. Jaropillo is also a hurler and one of the best known pitchers in the Philippines. He hails from Iloilo.

Other pitchers will be Big Joe Birulpo, who will travel with the track team; Belmonte, former Normal School star; Santos, the Trade School, and Liboon. Casimiro of the Philippines University, is the third catcher. Contreras and Mariano will make the trip as first sackers and Hugo, who played shortstop on the last four Olympic teams, is moved to second base. Tiangco and Fernando will come as outfielders. The latter is from Nueva Ecija and a student at the University. He is one of the best outfielders ever developed in the Philippines.

CARDINALS SELECT TEXAS

Orange, Tex., Feb. 5.—Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, completed arrangements here to train his team at Orange. He left late today for Lake Charles, La., to meet Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics. A series between the Athletics and Cardinals probably will be arranged.

GALVESTON GETS PITCHER

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 5.—Announcement of the sale of Pitcher Harry Harper to the Galveston club was made today by the Akron club of the International League. Harper was farmed to London in the Michigan-Ontario League last season.

TODAY BIG DAY, TOO

Light Horse Point To Point And Paper Hunt For The Ladies Carded

By Dismal Jimmy

The past week, being almost the end of the paperhunting season, has been marked by a veritable orgy of cross-country events for the hunting confraternity. There was the paper hunt handicap on the Saturday previous, won by Gumlop Gibby on Bantry Bay, with that consumate ease which distinguishes the perfect horseman; then came the Wednesday Hunt, and yesterday the Consolation Hunt, while today is the Light Horse Point to Point in the forenoon and the ladies' paperhunt in the afternoon. The Wednesday hunt was a bit of a novelty, but was attended by larger numbers and better ponies than was anticipated. This was won by the Indomitable Sparke, on Wild Cat, author of the famous saying which will go down to posterity "Work is the curse of the riding classes" and certainly, at the Wednesday hunt, as Heavyweight Lester remarked "Few permitted business to interfere with their pleasure." Indeed that Wednesday hunt was the biggest fraud ever perpetrated.

There had been grousing in plenty at the very idea of the taipans hunting on Wednesday when other men had to work and the idea of a cheap hunt had so spread that everybody who wanted to get the goods, practically sold himself to the devil to get away, with the result that the number of starters very near equalled a Chinese hunt both in quality and quantity.

And the course was no morning stroll either. The Master gave out at the start that there was going to be a "Dry Cut" that was fairly large, so when the Dry Cut came at One Wide River, most of the huntsmen said "Well that's over" and heaved a sign of relief, for it was not so bad.

For others, the "Dry Cut" meant the "Big Schultz" and that they digested after their own fashion. In fact some got digested by it in such wise, that the management had to hoist the notice "Standing Room Only."

AND BENBOW'S FINISH

But the supreme perpetration of the day was the holy horror known as Benbow's Finish, which needless to say, is no longer the stimulating little jump it was when Ye Scribbler first laid it.

It has been dug out, enlarged, deepened and filled with water till it is almost the limit for a China pony, if he has such a thing. Certainly Dayid Brand, and Teddy McMichael, who led the bunch on Wednesday, thought it for too large an obstacle to be tackled without mature deliberation and while they were considering the situation, the whole hunt had come to a standstill:

"And from that ghastly chasm
"Where those bold riders stood
"All shrank like boys, that unaware,
"Ranging the woods to start a hare,
"Come to the mouth of a dark lair,
"Where, growling low, a fierce old bear,
"Lies amid bones and blood!"

Considerable discussion now took place, mostly of an objurgatory nature, as more and more riders, crowing one upon the other, and unable, with the best intentions in the world, to get at the jump, enquired in fearful accents why the kippered bloater the hunt didn't get a move on. Indeed, as ex-welter-weight Patters observed, the place reminded him of the feast of Pentecost, in that there were more sorts of language present, than he had ever heard before. Another valiant rider, not long out from home, was so profoundly affected by the richness and variety of the language, that he repeated the remark of one of our talented amateur singers at the Mischa Elman concert, when she excitedly confided to a friend that "her soul was being torn." Anyhow, all's well that ends well, and since the Indomitable Sparke won the hunt, that settles it!

START FROM WUHU

And now for Saturday's spasm, and a very enjoyable spasm it was, though some might have enjoyed it better if they'd had hippopotami instead of mere ponies, as the latter are only designed for travel on dry land.

Ben of the tribe of Beith had thoughtfully mounted some of the Ewo staff on water buffaloes, but there was such a plentitude of good mudholes to wallow in, that most of these didn't finish at all and nobody knows where the riders got to.

The start was at 3:30 p.m., as far away from Shanghai "or as near thereto as she may safely get" as the bills of lading say, so no one will be surprised to hear that the suburbs of Soochow were a strong attraction, when it came to a belated choice as to whether to go home or not. Anyway at the start at the Old Crow Creek there was a huge field awaiting the word of the Master. Nobody could count them, there were so many, but Harry Morriss, being appealed to, said he'd have a try and made it two lakhs. All the well known hunters were there, and many not so well known, and all the backwoodsmen, and the back numbers and some old aged crocks who used to hunt, but haven't been seen for years. Each tottering veteran was greeted with cheers—it was a fine sight—like a meet of the Devon and Somerset staghounds on a fine autumn day.

OVER THE BRIDGE

The Master made his little speech—he hadn't much to say, but he said it quick, as there were far too many hunters to keep in close control, and then they were off, five abreast it seemed, over the four stone bridge, and those who hadn't room were under the necessity of finding it at some personal risk. The hunt doubled round the Yellow Josshouse Creek and came to Gaunt Tree Village, wherein was a wade, good, but earnest of things to come, then came a run over some new cut jumps to Spiky Tree Village, where H. M. Spence had laid the bridge in his never-to-be-forgotten hunt but instead of the bridge, Ben had laid paper through the horrid mudhole that Springfield first laid long years ago.

The mud was black, and it stunk, so did some of the ponies but wallow and flop they all got through, and had a good run beyond till they got to another mudhole, this time not so bad, if it had not been for a half-witted Chinese with a couple of bamboos who seemed to think he would lose his legal rights if he didn't go on sitting.

AND THERE HE SAT

So he sat, while three hundred horsemen went to the right or the left, or over or under, but marvelous to relate, not a pony kicked the silly old blighter, or betrayed, by so much as a neigh, their cognisance of his presence.

This little farce duly enacted, there was another short run over a few nice little jumps, and then came another mudhole and after a few more jumps, there was another mudhole, then a few more excellent jumps, and then came another mudhole, and then there was another very nice run, terminating in an excellent mudhole.

It was at one of these that the gallant Harper, charging at full speed on a pony that might have known better, laid himself out at full length in a creek. Then came another mudhole, whence Dalgarno was reserved bitterly lamenting that whereas he had been leading, now he was the last.

A STORMY NIGHT

About this time also, Mr. E. Schoch on Antonio was flapping out the S.O.S. signal but he recovered control before various members of the salvage corps who flew to his relief, had reached him. Mr. P. O. M. Massey meantime was in heavy weather, but with heavy reefed trysails, managed to make part without jettisoning cargo. Not so however with Edmund Toeg, who sank, a total wreck with all hands, likewise several native owned vessels. The gallant Drakeford, having lost much that he desired to keep, was seen battling against fearful odds in yet another mudhole, but he managed to get home all the same and might have won if he had had the good fortune to overtake those in front of him.

Meantime Vaughan Craddock, upon whom be peace, accompanied by Caarten, the Cardlover, Kenney Brand, D. R. Davis and other hard riding enthusiasts, had crossed the Diagonal Wade and were doing a fierce "Me for Home" stunt towards the Old Crow Creek where the flags were visible in the distance. Without a moment's hesitation they jumped or swam everything they met, and raced home, hope that they would win the hunt alternating with fear that they would lose it animating every breast.

TWO NEW PINKIES

And now a rush and a swirl as they sorted themselves out over the last jump, and Mr. R. C. Watrin sailed on to victory, while Mr. V. D. K. Craddock, he of the yellow waistcoat, got the heavyweight, winners both, and both henceforward entitled to the proud privilege of riding in top hats and pink coats like their ancestors of old.

"And now with shouts and laughter
"And noise of weeping loud
"They enter through the city gates
"Borne by the joyous crowd.
"And now they leave their ponies
"Now on dry earth they stand
"And round them press the fathers
"And press their muddy hand."

Meantime a long string of "also rans" pressed on to the last jump. Mr. A. M. Cobbett unfortunately fell heavily at the last jump and duly received first aid from those present. Presently he leaped to his feet and said "Where's that blinking flask" whereupon those within hearing, realising that he had come once more unto his own, ceased their tender ministrations as being now quite superfluous.

BIG DAG TODAY

So it is all over, the Consolation Hunt is finished, the winners are acclaimed, and the chits they signed last night celebrating their victory among their friends, will all come home to roost in their own good time.

Meantime be it noted the Light Horse Point to Point takes place this morn at 11 o'clock and in the afternoon the long anticipated, long-looked-forward-to ladies' hunt, will take place, at 3:30 o'clock, wherat all well wishers are invited to be present and celebrate the occasion.

The official card of yesterday's hunt follows:

Consolation Hunt, Feb. 19, 1921.
Start.—Old Crow Creek.
Finish.—Mrs. Liddell's Bungalow.
Laid by Mr. B. D. F. Beith.
1. R. C. Watrin on Sirondin.
2. J. K. Brand on Wise Bird.
3. C. N. Davis on Black Prince.
4. V. D. K. Craddock on Hunter.
5. V. B. Caarten on Plain John.
6. E. Schoch on Antonio.

NAVY RUGBY TEAM DEFEATS FOOTBALL CLUB

Sailors Win From Local Rugger Men By Score Of 10-3

A match played yesterday between the Shanghai Rugby Football Club and H.M.S. Curlew resulted in a win for the Navy team by 10 points to 3.

The game opened up cleanly from the commencement and within the first few minutes the Navy scored a try far out from a good run by their inside ¾ followed by a dash by their right wing. The kick failed. Shanghai three points behind, now began to press and though they had the better of the game for a time being there seemed lack of ability to score a try.

The Navy however gave a chance when trying to clear with a long kick which Leach "marked" and succeeded in turning into a goal with a good kick. The game was now forced from one 25 to the other though no further scoring took place before the whistle blew for half time.

In the second half both teams showed a decided improvement Shanghai getting most of the game outside. The ball however dragged in the ¾ line and many possibilities were missed through the ¾ not being within reach of each other at the critical moment.

The defence of both teams was good and the Navy had considerable difficulty in registering another try. This they managed to do, however, far out in the left wing after some brilliant combination work and well-taken passes. The kick just failed again.

From this point Shanghai never looked like scoring again but were likewise determined to keep their opponents out. A few minutes before "no time" was called, however, the Navy half back seeing an opportunity "dropped" a splendid goal thus giving this side an indisputable advantage over the home team.

On the run of the game Shanghai ought to have done better. Their failure being almost entirely due to lack of combination. The Navy's outsides played well together notably in the way their insides "fed" their wings. The general idea in the Shanghai outsides seemed that the wings were expected to play to the inside instead of the insides to the wings.

Both full backs played sound games and the kicking was well judged and effective. The Shanghai forwards were not packing as well as they should have done and in many cases their beating made it almost impossible for their scrum help to take the ball. The halves on both sides played excellently both in opening out the game and in effectively stopping forward rushes.

POLICE WIN FROM S.F.C. RECS ON TOP

good style. A fine center by Wilson was wasted, McLaughlin being offside.

St. Xaviers got down and Elliott gave Madar an anxious moment. Remedios then appeared and Madar retired having done his bit, and done it well.

RECS STRIKE ONE

The first goal went to the Recs. Wilson close in, headed, and Garry cleared, but Sofoulis was hovering near, and settled on the ball, finishing the maneuver by netting it very shortly afterwards. Quincey handled in the penalty area and though Remedios spoilt Schneider's effort, he couldn't clear sufficiently and Elliott rushed him bringing Xaviers level.

The resumption found the Recs pressing, and Emmamooden would have scored but for a miraculous save by Garry. They forced two corners in quick succession.

WADE SCORES SMARTLY

The Recs next goal came from the second corner. Wilson put in across the goal and Wade timeing perfectly found the net.

Shortly afterwards Sofoulis was fouled in the penalty area, and Wilson took the chance, beating Garry by an express. This goal settled the game, and beyond an occasional break away by the Xaviers the Recs had it their own way. But they didn't seem to worry, and it was only their poor shooting which prevented a big score.

On the winning side, it was the forwards who starred, the backs were not up to their usual game. Wade, Wilson and Sofoulis played grand football and the half line backed them up well.

For St. Xaviers Garry was in great form and Elliott and Guttierez were the pick of the forwards.

Mr. Bissett gave an exhibition of refereeing which was satisfactory to both sides.

S.F.C. vs. NAVY

In this match on Saturday the Navy 'A' team was seen at its best and worst.

For the first half, they could not find their form, and the Club had the best of it, despite the earnest entreaties of the "boys in blue" on the touchlines. The Club started in and soon after commencement Nash spoilt a fine dribble by waiting for the Navy back, he made up for it soon after however by putting Club one up.

NASH BEATS DEFENCE

He took possession well out, and passed the ball and both backs with a delightful solo effort, finishing it with a close in shot that the Navy Goalie hardly saw. Then came the Navy effort, they went away and Lamb put across but there was no one there. At this stage Bertes was kept away for a while and though he was playing fine football, it was not long before Lamb beat him and equalised. Soon after from a penalty against the Club, Wetherby added another for the Navy and half time found them one up.

The second half found a very different Navy team at work. They took charge of the game, and with the exception of a lovely shot from the right by Drummond, which the Goalie seemed to lose sight of the Club had nothing much more to say. It was their last point and a good one. Then the Navy forwards started swarming and Wethereby and Riley both beat Bertes at close range, the Navy finishing up 4-2.

For the winners the forward line was splendid and all equally good.

ENGINEERS vs. NAVY 'B'

The engineers had conceded two points in this game on Saturday.

Without Marshall, Mills and Skelton, they had not much chance of winning, but their versatile goalkeeper assisted by Tomlinson played fine defensive football at back though he had hard work to keep his hands off the ball at times.

In the first half the Navy scored 3 goals, but the second half found the Engineers going strong, they also scored three goals, only as the Navy scored two more, they had to drop the points, and a fine clean game resulted in a 5-3 victory for the Navy.

RECS vs. PUBLIC SCHOOL

This important second League game was played at Hongkew on Saturday, and a fast game resulted in a win for the Recs 1-0.

RANGERS vs. POLICE

This game was played on W. Mon. ground on Saturday. The Rangers won a 2-0 victory, the goals being scored by A. Johnson and J. Johnstone.

THE NAVY vs. THE ARMY

Great interest is being evinced in this annual match between the rival services which will take place on Tuesday, the venue being the Police ground at the Race Course and speculation runs rife as to which will prove to be the better side.

The Navy team which is on the heavy side is a particularly strong one drawn as it will be from H.M.Ss. Curlew, Foxglove and Kinsha. The Curlew alone runs four soccer teams and should be able to hold her own anywhere. They have already indulged in several practice games and are now at the top of their form. Their supporters of whom there are a goodly number, say that there will be only one team in it. The team of ex-Army men however think otherwise. The side is made up of proved and tried players who are sure to give a good account of themselves. They will miss the services of W. J. Brown who is still nursing an injured ankle but the veteran J. Adams will make an excellent substitute. A feature is the inclusion in the side of a French ex-Infantryman who can hold his own with the best on the football field.

The kick-off is timed for 4:15 p.m. sharp.

THE ARMY

The Army will play in white shirts. Referee Capt. E. I. M. Barrett.

The match is being played for the benefit of St. Dunstan's Hostel for blind Soldiers and Sailors than which there is no more deserving an Institution, and it is hoped that all those who find it possible will endeavor to be present. Even those unable to leave their offices before 5 o'clock will be able to see a goodly part of the game. An added attraction to the event will be a party of Navy comedians who promise to keep the spectators merry.

The ball for the match has been kindly presented by Messrs. Lane, Crawford & Co., Ltd.

applause until the break is finished, as it is very disconcerting to players to have noise and disturbance during a break. It would also be much better for the matches if spectators would refrain from moving about during the match, as this also interferes with the players.

The table to be used for both matches will be a Burroughes and Watts, regular size, steel vacuum cushion table. The table has been very kindly loaned to the Association by Messrs. Boyes, Bassett and Co.

GRAY AT SHANGHAI CLUB

George Gray will play C. W. Porter at the Shanghai Club tomorrow night at 9:15 o'clock. There will be but one match. The game will be played in the main hall and members only will be admitted. Reserved seats are five dollars and unreserved seats will be sold at three dollars.

AT THIRTY CLUB TONIGHT

Gray plays J. V. Jensen at the Thirty Club tonight when a big crowd is expected to see the Club star make a fight. Jensen will be conceded 300 in a 700-point game. Gray will give his exhibition of trick and fancy shots and a short lecture after the game.

Jensen has been playing in great form and Thursday, in a game of 150, he made two breaks, one of 51 and the other 79.
